Once, Was Plenty.
Mr. Teagle's Job.
Very Wonderfully.
Ivan's and Peter's Land.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FRANCE WILL consult the United States concerning the reply that the French government should make to Germany's demand for the right to build up another great army.

Let us hope this government will reply briefly about as follows:

"The size of Germany's army is Germany's business and your business if you care to make it so. It is not the business of the United States. Please settle your own quarrels among yourselves; we mixed in one of your rows. Once is enough."

YESTERDAY'S LATE news told of three hundred Chinese bandits killed in Manchuria by Japanese regular troops. If Japan or China should ask our opinion concerning that incident in civilization's progress, we should again reply:

"That is China's business and Japan's business, not ours."

Many attempts are made to bring this country back to normal conditions. Minding our own business for a change might be a step in the right direction.

WALTER G. TEAGLE, able citizen, head of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has, at the request of President Hoover, taken charge of the "share-the-work movement."

The idea is to divide such jobs, employment and salaries as exist among a larger number of workers, thus diminishing the number absolutely without employment or income.

Mr. Teagle, who has abandoned his own private undertakings in the public interest, hopes, on a reasonably satisfactory basis, to find work for at least one million men and women, and that jobs may possibly be provided for two millions.

While waiting for ancient prosperity, with jobs more numerous than workers, to return, it is a good idea to make existing jobs useful to as many as possible.

YOU REPEAT piously the text "I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made," and add "almost TOO fearfully and wonderfully," when you read that the thyroid gland, on which human energy depends, secretes a product called "thyroxin" containing iodine.

This iodine-bearing thyroxin, thrown into the blood stream by the thyroid gland, regulates the amount and quality of sleep. If your blood contains the right amount of thyroxin, you sleep well. If you have too much of that specially prepared iodine, you have insomnia.

SOME DAY science may find a way of controlling and coordinating our mysterious conglomeration of glands—thyroid, adrenal pituitary and the rest of them—thus making possible conservation of energy to the age of one hundred and fifty, which should be the minimum.

At present, health is a fearful muddle. If you haven't enough iodine in the blood goitre starts, and you may become a moron. If you have too much iodine you cannot sleep.

The Greeks must have known something when they wrote above their temple door "Nothing in Excess." Aristotle's "Not too much, not too little," is the world's wisest advice.

WHEN IVAN the Terrible made one of his trips in Russia, to Nijni-Novgorod, for instance, where he murdered so many, butchering women, including nuns, in his process of making one single nation out of Russia, travel was slow.

When Peter the Great, who Europeanized Russia by bringing in engineers, merchants and scientists from Western Europe, dragged from their graves those that had plotted against him, he loaded their frightful corpses on sleds drawn by swine. That was slow transportation.

IF THEY LIVED today those ancient czars would be amazed at Russia's speed. The Soviet government, described sometimes by our "best minds" as "utterly incapable," has established thirty-five thousand miles of air routes. It would have taken Peter the Great many weeks to travel from Moscow to Irkutsch. A fast train could travel the distance in five and one-half days. Modern Russian officials make the journey, by airplane, in thirty-six hours.

It should interest this government to know that Russia is second only to the United States in air line mileage, and will probably soon surpass us.

THERE IS NO doubt that Paul D Cravath, chairman of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and others associated with him will be glad to arrange for complete operatic broadcasting.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is known to be much interested in this educational public service. There could be imagined no stranger "dog in the manger" policy than confining to one small audience music that might delight millions outside.

Women Race Pilots Keep Judges Dizzy

HOOVER GAINS IN PENNA. TALLY

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The presidential race in the East is becoming a "hoss race," with President Hoover nosing out in front at every turn of the track. At least that is the way it looks from returns in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Starting with the six New England states and New York in his column at the outset of the poll, Hoover [illegible] lost New York to Gov. Roosevelt. Then he cut into Roosevelt's lead in New Jersey to where a week ago they were running neck and neck.

With new returns this week Hoover has recaptured New York and in addition has swung New Jersey. At the same time he has made inroads into Roosevelt's lead in Pennsylvania. The next report of ballots from the Keystone state may show it in the Hoover column.

Hoover Defies Storm In Drive to Camp

SKYLAND, Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Driving through a heavy rainstorm, part of the time over slippery clay roads, President Hoover reached his Rapidan camp last night for an extended week-end of rest in the cool of Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains.

Vickerman Suffers Infection; Improved

Pittsburghers Place After Wild Flights Down Others

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Official timers at the national air races were about decided today that the next time a woman's handicap dash is on the program they had best take to a balloon if they want to see it.

Pylons of the course had been pointed out, but once in the air several of the women became confused by the variety of markers dotting the landscape and began darting hither and yon.

The first and slowest plane started bravely for the distant tower of the three-and-a-half-mile course, then wavered and turned cross country. Others got off on a five-mile course, and one even turned a lap on a 10-mile course.

However, Miss Florence Klingensmith, of Minneapolis, Minn., was one of the few who knew where they were going and why. She gave a professional bank to her turns and won with an average of 59.5 miles an hour.

When it was all over, Edith Foltz, of Portland, Ore., was awarded second place; Helen Richey, of Pittsburgh, third; Mary Sanson, of Hartford, Conn., fourth; Helen McCloskey, Pittsburgh, fifth; Mrs. Rae Trader, of Pittsburgh, sixth.

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam awarded the trophy, which, she explained:

City Pool Stays Open In Highland Park

Highland Park swimming pool will be kept open indefinitely, Director of Public Works E. G. Lang announced today in response to an avalanche of requests from bathers seeking relief from the September heat.

This pool was to have been closed for the season Monday, Labor Day.

The closing order stands for the other pools, the city being without funds to operate them, Lang stated. The other city pools have already closed.

The pool at County South Park will remain open until September 15, from 11 a. m. to 9 p. m., it was announced today.

GAR WOOD CAPTURES 1ST RACE

Miss America Stages Last-Lap Rally To Win

By PAUL WEBER
International News Service.

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—Proving himself once more the master showman of racing, Gar Wood in his "old piece of plumbing," the Miss America X, roared to a spectacular victory over Kaye Don today in the first heat of the Harmsworth speedboat classic.

The British challenger's Miss England III appeared hopelessly outclassed.

The Miss England completed the 35 miles of the heat in 33:55.95, with an average speed of 71.265 miles per hour. The Miss America made it in 31:48.72 at 76.014 miles per hour.

As if to give the crowd of 200,000 a spectacle worth their long wait in a chill and rainy dawn, Wood deliberately held the America a mile behind the British boat until the last lap of the race.

Then, with a tremendous burst of speed the Miss America lifted her nose out of the choppy waters, and thundered down the course.

The space between the two boats disappeared in a few seconds. The Miss America, a black streak at the head of a cloud of spray, caught the British boat and passed her. At the finish the Miss America was more than a mile and a half in the lead.

The second heat of the race will be run Monday at 6:30 a. m. To the winner of two out of three heats goes the Harmsworth placque, emblem of the world water speed championship.

FLYING FAMILY IN GREENLAND

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Safe after the most hazardous leg of their flight from America to Europe, Col. George Hutchinson, of Baltimore, and his "flying family," arrived last night at Godthaab, Greenland, according to word received here today.

The Hutchinsons took off from Hopedale, Labrador, at 11:15 a. m., Eastern daylight time, yesterday, arriving at Godthaab at 8 p. m., Greenland time. The flight, a jump of almost 700 miles, was almost entirely over water.

Col. Hutchinson is accompanied by his wife, two small daughters and four experienced airmen comprising the crew of his huge amphibian plane.

LONDON Sept. 3.—(INS.)—The plane of Col. George Hutchinson faces possible confiscation by Danish authorities in Greenland, the Exchange Telegraph Company reported in a message from Copenhagen today.

The dispatch quoted M. Oldendown, an official of the Greenland administration board, as stating Hutchinson's papers are not in order.

Archbishop Curley On Homeward Trip

DUBLIN, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore, left Ireland yesterday on his way home. He has been here since the eucharistic congress. In a farewell message to the Irish people the archbishop wished the country prosperity.

Lindbergh Baby Still Nameless

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Sept. 3.—The Lindbergh baby is still without a name.

Eighteen days after his birth, the little fellow is called anonymously "Baby," and his parents, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, are as far from having decided on a Christian name for him as they were on August 16.

Then they were very much surprised to be the parents of another little boy, it was learned today. They had been so sure the second child would be a girl whom they would call Anne after her mother that they were caught without any suggestions for a boy's name.

CHARLES BARRED

The much-discussed proba[illegible] of calling the child Charles, the name of the first little boy who was kidnaped and murdered, has never been entertained by the Lindberghs. A close friend said:

"No one can take the other little fellow's place."

As for "Dwight Morrow Lindbergh," after the late father of Mrs. Lindbergh, that too would bring grief to the members of the family who are still mourning the senator's sudden death, it was said.

There are so many Charleses in both the Lindbergh and Morrow families that the name is suggested over and over again by helpful relatives and friends, it seems. And that is the one name the new baby cannot have, because there was and still is, in his parents' memory, another child with that name.

RESEMBLES FIRST CHILD

The new Lindbergh boy looks remarkably like the first child, friends say. He is chubby, happy, healthy, with wisps of darkish hair and infant-blue eyes. Charlie Lindbergh had dark hair, when he was born, but it grew out and blond curls took its place. A friend said:

"The new baby probably will look like Col. Lindbergh. Right now he does not look like any member of the family except the first baby, and that baby changed to resemble his father before he was a year old, so I presume this one will, too."

Mrs. Lindbergh is well, and the whole family is greatly cheered after its long siege of agony by the normal birth of the fine, normal child, it was said. The Lindberghs are staying with Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, until Mrs. Lindbergh is strong enough to move her household back to Hopewell, N. J.

After Col. Lindbergh's request for privacy for the new child, the Morrow household was not disturbed by calls from strangers, it was said. He is very grateful for the way in which he "has been left alone" by everyone, too.

Scar on Film Girl's Leg Worth $9,500

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A scar on an actress' leg is worth $9,500, a Superior Court jury decided in awarding that amount to Miss Hazel Mills, of the stage and screen, who sued Dr. K. F. Ross, a surgeon, for $75,000.

Miss Mills charged the surgeon with a negligent operation which made her leg "unsightly and interfered with her career." She claimed she was receiving between $500 and $750 a month for acting in the films prior to the operation.

Mystery Girl Found Asleep; Goes to Jail

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 3.—An attractive 18-year-old girl, found sleeping on the porch of Mrs. Sara R Marquis, North Sewickley Township, was placed in the county jail for observation after she refused to disclose her identity to the authorities.

Traffic at West North avenue and Chateau street, North Side, was detoured for two hours early today when a broken water main flooded the thoroughfare and undermined a hole in the street, 12 feet in diameter.

BONDS DUE FROM 24 INDICTED

Bowser Posts Security For Trial in County Investigation

A number of the former county officials and politicians named in indictments handed down by the grand jury investigating county affairs, today were expected to post bond at the office of District Attorney Andrew T. Park pending their trials this fall. Park plans to give the 25 indicted until next week to put in an appearance before issuing warrants for their arrest.

Park said today that he expected all but one of those indicted to post bond within the next few [illegible] is uncertain, however, whether William H. Ziefel, former secretary to the Board of County Commissioners, can be located. Ziefel, sought for appearance before the grand jury, has been missing from his home in Mt. Lebanon several months.

BOWSER POSTS BOND

Two of those indicted, David Roberts, assistant superintendent of the Courthouse, and Patrick Swift, charged with tax reecipt frauds, posted $1,000 bond each today. Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor, said to have made large sums in slag hauling contracts for the County Airport, had posted bond in the same amount soon after he was indicted yesterday.

PLANS DIVORCE, FAY INSISTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Rudy Vallee was on her way west today after reiterating her intention to obtain a divorce from the crooner.

Just before boarding the westbound train yesterday with her parents, Mrs. Vallee said:

"I am going to get a divorce as soon as possible, probably in Reno."

Her father interrupted:

"All we've got to say is that we're going west."

Rudy went to Atlantic City. The parting followed a day in which Hyman Bushel, attorney for both Vallee and his bride of a year, the former Fay Webb, announced the two had concluded a formal separation agreement after a conference lasting several hours. He said he had tried to reconcile them.

A monetary and real estate settlement, which the lawyer described as "very fair," was agreed upon and the two parted amicably.

Still Tenders Fined, Told to Stay Home

Fining three men, charged with keeping a disorderly house, $10 each, Magistrate John J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington Police Court told them to stay in their respective districts. John Vangilia, of Bedford avenue; Charles Dimmond, of Wylie avenue, and George Theman, of McKees Rocks, were reported by policemen to have been tending a still when a house at 1924 Edgebrook avenue was raided yesterday. The still, police said, was confiscated.

WALKER RULING TO END MUDDLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Order was expected to be re-established in New York's chaotic mayoralty situation with a clarifying ruling today from State's Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr.

His office in Albany was asked to decide whether the resigned mayor, James J. Walker, legally could seek re-election this fall or whether Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee was the legal incumbent of the office until January 1, 1933.

Tammany Hall, with whose advice Walker is said to have decided to relinquish his office rather than continue to appear at the removal hearings before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was anxious to have the mayoralty election held this year, with Walker as its candidate.

Because of Walker's virulent attack on the Governor as "unfair" and "biased" in conducting the removal trial, and of Tammany's

Man Found Slain Near Walker Home

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Murder was done last night within 150 feet of the home of former Mayor Walker.

Three men in a motorcar dumped the body of a man tentatively identified as John Arthur Daggett, 23, from an automobile and drove away. The man had been shot.

ARNOLD MAN SHOOTS BOY IN FIGHT

Young Woman Flees Jealous Rage of Jilted Swain

Enraged by jealousy, a rejected suitor hid himself in the home of his former girl friend at Arnold shortly before last midnight, threatened her when she returned home, wounded her brother in the shoulder when he came to his sister's aid and then shot and killed himself, police say. The shooting followed a three-year romance.

Constable Frank W. Kratz, of Arnold, said the dead man, Earl Walker, 30, of 1520 Victoria street, Arnold, had been sought by police for the last [illegible] days, after he is alleged to have threatened Frances Choltko, 20, of 1420 Orchard avenue, Arnold, when she told him she would no longer see him.

HOME GUARDED

A police guard, Kratz said, was maintained about the Choltko home Thursday night, after Walker is alleged to have threatened the girl at a dance.

Police said Walker went to the Choltko home last night and hid himself in the living room. When the girl returned home, he is alleged to have confronted her with a revolver and said:

"Don't holler, or I'll shoot."

BOY SHOT IN STRUGGLE

A search of the home by the father, police said, revealed him hiding in a second flood bedroom. He brushed by Choltko and ran down a stairway, where he was met by George Choltko, Jr., 16. When the latter attempted to grapple with him, he is alleged to have shot him in the right shoulder. He then fired a bullet into his own head.

Both men were attended by Dr. R. M. Johnston and removed to Citizen's General Hospital. Walker died shortly after he was admitted. Choltko's condition was not regarded as serious.

Man Dies as Truck Overturns, 3 Held

Held in Woods Run Police Station while police complete an invesigation are Andy Killan, 23, of 1402 Juniata street; Anthony Zhuzas, 26, of 61 Steuben street, and John Dailey, of Warden street. They were charged with being suspicious persons. Zhuzas and Dailey were arrested at the scene. Killan was walking in Allegheny avenue, six blocks away, when arrested.

Ainey Death Held Matter of Hours

HARRISBURG, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Dr. Lillian Shaw, physician to W. D. B. Ainey, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, early today stated she felt he was "drawing very close to the end," and that she did not think he would live many hours.

Mrs. Hammerstein Sues Stepson for Support

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein, widow of Oscar Hammerstein, opera impresario, has sued her stepson, Arthur Hammerstein, for alleged breaking of a contract to support her for life. She asked $100,000 damages.

Mrs. Hammerstein was convicted of a vagrancy charge in Women's Court on June 6, 1930, but the conviction was reversed the following October by the Appellate Division on the ground she had been convicted on insufficient evidence.

In her suit brought in Supreme Court yesterday, she sad her stepson had agreed to support her for life if she would leave the country, which she did, following upon her vindication.

He sent her money in Europe, she said, and later sent her funds to return here. She was penniless when she arrived in New York, and since then he has failed to live up to his contract, she charged.

At the time of her conviction, for which she was sentenced to one day in jail, Arthur Hammerstein told the court through his attorney he was prepared to pay "a substantial sum" weekly for her support as long as she led "a better life."

WAR MINISTER LIKELY SUCCESSOR TO ORTIZ RUBIO

CABINET QUITS WITH MEXICAN PRESIDENT

Congress to Select Successor; Stormy Incumbency Ends

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio sent his resignation to Congress today, bringing a turbulent political crisis to a head after nearly three weeks of rumor and uncertainty.

He disclosed his decision to his cabinet secretly at Chapultepec Castle late yesterday, and the ministers also stepped aside to give Congress and the president to be selected a free hand.

The President's resignation was entrusted to Gen. Juan Jose Rios, secretary of the interior, who announced early today the document would be handed to the Thirty-fifth Congress at its second session.

CHOICE AWAITED

Ortis Rubio stepped down a little over two and one-half years after he had been inaugurated to serve the remaining four years of the late Alvaro Obregon's six-year term.

Congress undoubtedly will consider the resignation immediately, and there was a possibility a successor may be chosen before nightfall.

Most prominently mentioned for the office is Gen. Abelardo L. Rodriquez, minister of war in Ortiz Rubio's cabinet, who came into prominence during the Escobar revolution two years ago. Others high in the running are Alberto J. Pani, Ortiz Rubio's minister of finance and veteran diplomat, and Gen. Joaquin Amaro, former secretary of war.

HEALTH DECLARED CAUSE

Gen. Jose Rios' announcement just after midnight avoided all mention of the President's reason for resigning, but it was generally understood it was failing health. It was reported Ortiz Rubio wished to leave for Rochester, Minn., for medical treatment.

Neither did the Minister of Interior mention the political misunderstandings of recent weeks and the rumors that have flooded the capital. It was merely disclosed that the President had communicated "the text of his resignation" to the cabinet for transmission to Congress.

Ortiz Rubio ran into trouble before he had been President two hours, when he was fired on by a youthful zealot, and seriously wounded. He has been a compromise candidate of the dominant revolutionary party to succeed Obregon, elected in 1928 and assassinated before he could take office.

STATE COUNCIL CUT APPROVED

HARRISBURG, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has signed the Hutton (House) bill reducing the appropriation of the Greater Pennsylvania Council from $225,000 to $90,000.

The bill resulted in elimination of the council's work. The council was created by the 1931 Legislature to promote the economic, social, industrial, agricultural, civic and recreational welfare of the state.

The Governor vetoed the Mansfield (Senate) bill providing tax claims shall bear interest from the date of filing. The Governor said the bill would have imposed an interest charge of 6 per cent a year on all tax liens, whereas under existing laws the taxes are subject to specific penalties when they become delinquent.

State Senator William D. Mansfield today said that it was at his request that the Governor had vetoed the Mansfield bill providing that tax claims shall bear interest from the date of filing. Mansfield, in submitting the bill for preparation in legal form, said he had requested that it allow counties, only, to charge interest on liens, but that the bill, as passed, allowed interest on liens of all governmental bodies. As this would cause duplication oppressive to delinquent tax payers, Mansfield says, he requested the veto.

Indiana Town Bars Cox As Labor Day Speaker

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 3.—Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, presidential nominee of the Jobless Party, has been refused permission to a part in the Labor Day celebration in Elkhart, 12 miles east of here.

The candidate who will pass through Elkhart Monday en route to Chicago, had planned to make a brief address in the Indiana town.

Mayor William P. Krau said Father Cox would be welcome any time but that day, explaining:

"The town's park is busy with a Labor Day celebration."

One of Elkhart's councilmen suggested that Father Cox would "pack the park," if allowed to speak, but C. L. Minser, representing the Central Labor, opposed the plan, saying:

"The other speakers mightn't like it."

The other speakers are William Lemke, of Fargo, N. D., a candidate for Congress and a supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Maj. N. A. Imrie, of the Culver Military Academy faculty, a member of the Indiana Republican speakers' bureau.

contribution to a political fund; the manner in which important Allegheny County contracts were let and the private sources to which county gasoline was diverted, were revealed in the findings of the jury.

The jury, in its presentment to Judge George V. Moore, charged that a manila envelope containing $50,000 was delivered by the Duquesne Slag Products Company to Roy Walters, private secretary to the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. The jury reported that it was unable to determine whether Armstrong had kept the money, or if it had been used to make up a deficit in a political campaign.

Walters was indicted by the jury with Ziefel, Edward M. Kenna, former county road commissioner, and Howard Neely, Republican ward chairman of the Fourth Ward and protege of State Senator James J. Coyne.

PRINTING CONTRACTS

As a result of the investigation into printing contracts between the county and the William G. Johnston Company, the grand jury indicted Ziefel, William A. Shields, B. A. Seiple and H. D. Kolb, president, vice president and employe, respectively of the Johnston company. All are charged with conspiracy to cheat and defraud.

CONTRIBUTION CHARGE

The alleged contribution to wipe out a political deficit was thus described:

"It appears that this suggestion was made by the late Joseph G. Armstrong, and it was indicated that the contribution should be $50,000. It was agreed this contribution should be based on the amount of slag furnished. We find there were checks drawn by the Duquesne Slag Products Company for approximately $50,000 which were converted into cash and the cash placed in a manila envelope bearing an address and nothing on it to show where it was from. The envelope was delivered to Roy Walters, secretary to Commissioner Armstrong. Although careful investigation has been made we are unable to find any further trace of the money and we are unable to say whether it was kept by Mr. Armstrong or used for payment of some indebtedness of some political campaign.

"We have made an examination of the expense accounts of different political organizations and we are unable to say that the money was used for the payment of any political expenses."

This investigation, the jury charged, revealed that Bowser, Kittanning contractor, was given a $205,561 contract for hauling the slag and that he paid five cents a ton commission to the Duquesne Slag Products Company for help in obtaining the contract. Bowser denied payment to the slag company. The jury indicated it had admission from a slag company official of payment of the money and indicted Bowser for perjury.

The jury recommended to the court that books of Bowser's concern be impounded until after his trial.

Ziefel, Walters, Howard B. Allen, former county superintendent of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles; James E. Routley, clerk in the Commissioners' office; E. M. Kenna, former road commissioner; C. C. Benz, employe of the county purchasing department, and C. W. Doherty, a county accountant, were indicted on charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud in connection with the diversion of county gasoline to private use. Allen was indicted separately for making false entries in county books.

John J. Gallagher, assistant county purchasing agent, also was indicted notwithstanding his name was not included in the presentment as among those recommended for indictment. At the District Attorney's office this discrepancy was described as an "oversight."

TAX RECEIPT SALES

Neely, of the Fourth Ward; David Roberts, assistant superintendent of county buildings and a leader in the Fifth Ward, were among the 10 indicted for obtaining tax receipts in large numbers. They are charged with unlawful procuring of tax receipts on an indictment containing 15 counts. The same indictment and the same number of counts were brought against Gus Greenlee, Hill district "numbers" baron; Clarence Webster, James Gross, Walter Rainey and Ina Wayne, all of the Fifth Ward; Edward Sullivan, of the Sixth Ward, and A. A. Donofrio and M. Rici, of the Twelfth Ward.

The grand jury also included in its investigation alleged misappropriation of tax funds of the county and indicted M. R. Baldwin and Arthur Drumm, for embezzlement. Baldwin is a deputy collector of delinquent county and state taxes for Coraopolis and it is charged he failed to make complete reports to the County Treasurer of funds collected. The same evidence was reported found against Drumm, deputy delinquent tax collector in Mt. Lebanon.

DOUGLAS LINKS OFFICIALS TO 'SAND RACKET'

Seeks Federal Probe Of Gravel Trade; Charges Duress

Declaring that city officials are linked with a "sinister sand and gravel racket combine," and that he signed a $12,250 judgment note to the city in 1929 under duress, John Douglas, Jr., politician and builder, has promised further disclosures and an effort toward a federal investigation of the sand and gravel trade here.

Asked for explanation of the statement that he was compelled in 1929 to sign a judgment note to the city for back rental on the Exposition Building, Douglas said he was "threatened by uniformed police and forced to sign the note."

CITY ACTS TO COLLECT

The city has taken two steps to collect the debt which, according to City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner, now amounts to more than $15,000. They are:

1—Execution has been issued on a boat, bins and barges placed by Douglas' orders on the disputed wharf site at the foot of Sixth street, Allegheny River.

2—An attachment execution has been issued on any money owed to Douglas by Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor indicted yesterday for perjury by the grand jury.

Douglas expressed satisfaction that the boats on the disputed wharf are placarded and under the protection of the Sheriff pending sale Friday morning. He said:

"It prevents anyone from moving them, and that's what I want."

His attorney, Walter F. Michael, declared none of the property, with the possible exception of the sand and gravel in the barges, belongs to Douglas.

APPEALS TO MITCHELL

Douglas said he had written to Attorney General Mitchell in in Washington asking investigation of the sand and gravel industry in Pittsburgh.

As to the garnishee proceedings in which the city named Watson Bowser, Douglas said:

"I do not know Mr. Bowser, and have had no business transactions with him. Therefore, he does not owe me anything."

RAPS "COMBINE"

Douglas charged the sand and gravel companies have combined to fix prices and have extorted huge profits at the expense of contractors. He said:

"This sinister combine, so prominent in the scandals of the last county public works investigation, is hiding, as usual, behind city officials."

Douglas declared the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company, to which the city re-leased the disputed wharf property, was two months behind in its rent, which amounted to $800 and was paid only yesterday.

Controller James P. Kerr said the Iron City company had been paying rent quarterly and had always met its bills to the city.

NORMAN SAILS ON JOURNEY HOME

British Finance Czar Refuses Debt Interview

Universal Service.

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, who has been in the United States under the alias of "Prof. Skinner" on a mission linked to cancellation of foreign war debts, sailed back home yesterday.

As mysteriously as he slipped into the United States incognito, the British financial czar embarked on the Duchess of Bedford and refused to discuss his war debt mission to America with reporters who located him on board the ship.

"Prof. Skinner," as he chose to be known during a series of internationally ominous financial parleys in Washington and New York, came here with his wife from Bar Harbor, Me., and immediately drove his automobile up the ship's gangway for vehicles.

DROPS "PROF. SKINNER"

He did not use the name "Skinner" on the ship's passenger list. Instead, his name was omitted from the list entirely. But when newspapermen recognized him by his beard and general physiognomy, he readily admitted his identity.

That, however, was all he would admit.

Asked about the connection of his secret visit with negotiations for reduction or cancellation of $11,000,000,000 in war debts owed to the United States by European powers, the shrewd governor of the Bank of England replied testily:

"I have nothing whatever to say."

To an inquiry as to why he chose to travel in the United States under an assumed name, Norman replied even more crisply:

"I refuse to argue with you."

Then he turned to the newspapermen who had surrounded him at the cabin stairway of the vessel and said:

"Now wouldn't this be a good time and place to say goodbye?"

Norman's face was bronzed from the few weeks he has spent at Bar Harbor, Me., as the guest of a Philadelphia society matron—only a short distance from the estate of Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., international bankers and fiscal agents in the United States for Britain.

NORMAN'S PROGRAM

Before his secret conferences with bankers and others in America, Norman is understood to have brought with him from England a definite program of six points, including:

Reduction or cancellation of the $11,000,000,000 in war debts owed to the United States; a $5,000,000,000 international short term loan to help Europe liquidate its debts; inflation of commodity prices, which would raise the value of Britain's pound sterling; reduction of England's debt to a 3 per cent basis; lowering of the Bank of England's rediscount rate; and return by England to the gold standard.

It has been learned from a high official quarter in Washington that formal diplomatic negotiations between Britain and the United States in connection with war debts are to start as soon as Norman returns to London.

Only two nights ago, Andrew W. Mellon, ambassador from the United States to Great Britain, sailed back to England from New York after a visit in America that curiously spanned the time Norman was in the country.

DAIRYMEN VOTE CUT IN COSTS

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 3.—Reductions in operation expenses for the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Company, acting as agent for dairy farmers supplying milk to the Pittsburgh district, were voted here yesterday at the annual general advisory council meeting. Only six delegates voted against the scale. They urged more drastic cuts.

The association's assessment was reduced one-half cent per 100 pounds of milk. The assessment was set at 3 cents, to be divided as follows: One and one-half cents per 100 for the co-operative association; 1 cent for the dairy council and one-half cent for "bad debt insurance." This latter levy provides a fund to insure payment to the farmer of all milk sold to dealers through the co-operative association.

Four Ohio Plants Resume, Employ 1,250

MARTINS FERRY, O., Sept. 3.—Four local plants will resume Monday, giving employment to 1,250 men. They are the Willow Grove mine, 250 men; two Rail and River mines, 700 men, and the Martins Ferry sheet mills, 300 men.

155 ESCAPE MINE FIRE AS ANXIOUS FAMILIES WAIT

PANIC STIRRED IN REPUBLIC DISTRICT

Crowds Press Close To Shaft While Men Emerge

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—With reports of 155 men trapped in the Republic mine of the Republic Iron and Steel Company and flames bursting high from the top of the tipple, Republic and vicinity last night were thrown into a panic.

Huge crowds of frantic women and children pressed as closely to the air shaft as officers would permit, waiting for appearance of their loved ones.

MEN EMERGE

Although assured that all of the miners were safe, their anxiety was not entirely allayed until the men began to appear at the door of the airshaft and were checked by men stationed there for that purpose.

Rejoicing increased as the men continued to emerge from the airshaft up which they had climbed 600 steps, after walking from one to two miles to the entrance far underground.

The crowd of anxious persons decreased as arms were thrown around the necks of the men, their faces covered with coal dust and their clothing saturated with perspiration, and they were led away to their respective homes. More than two hours were required to bring all the men to safety.

WARNED BY PHONE

A telephone warning to get out as quickly as possible caused the men to drop their tools and hurry to the airshaft, their only exit. None knew the cause of the warning until they reached the surface.

The last man carried a note from officials who had gone into the workings to determine the extent of the spread of the smoke. The fan, which had been turned off immediately after the discovery of the fire, was sent whirling again and the smoke, which invaded 100 feet of the mine, was scattered. Electric power again gave light in the underground passages.

The Republic fire company, participating in a parade at Smithton, nearby, responded to a hurry call to the mine, with companies from other towns. Spontaneous combustion was blamed for the blaze.

AUTO CRASHES; MAN, WIFE HURT

Mark Bubanovich, 46, of R. D. 2, Sewickley, and his wife, Anna, 42, were in a serious condition in Suburban General Hospital today with injuries suffered when they and two others were thrown through the roof of an automobile as it struck an abutment and overturned in the Rochester road, near Babcock boulevard, late yesterday.

Mike Kovacick, of 4747 Plummer street, and Ignatz Rudor, 38, of 268 Maryland avenue, Millvale, passengers, were cut and bruised. They were taken home. Bubanovich swerved the car to avoid a collision with another and lost control.

Bernard Fallon, 31, of 214 Tabor street, Esplen, suffered a fracture of the leg when struck by an automobile in Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, late yesterday. He was taken to the Ohio Valley Hospital.

3 WOMEN HURT FLEEING MEN

Plunging down a steep bluff in Highland Park as they fled, terrorized, from three men who jumped from the underbrush, three women were recovering from slight injuries today while police sought the men.

Two of the women, Mrs. Emma O'Connor, 24, of 5228 Poe way, and Louise Turmal, 26, of 5212 Duncan street, were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital for treatment and later were released. The third, Anna Bunowoski, 25, of 5226 Poe way, was taken home by police. The said they were walking along a lonely bridle path in the park en route home from the swimming pool when the men jumped from the underbrush at them. The men fled.

Paroles for Mine Riot Figures Asked

Petitions for the parole of Robert Young and Thomas Meyerscough, convicted of participating in a miners' riot at Wildwood, June 22, 1931, were presented yesterday in Criminal Court, Judge Thomas M. Marshall fixing September 15 as the date for acting on the petitions.

Visiting Judge C. M. Culver, of Bradford, sentenced the defendants to two years each in the workhouse, October 30, following their conviction. The defendants are represented by Jacob Margolis.

Greensburg High Bars Post-Graduates

LEAPS THROUGH WINDOW

Terrified by a nightmare as he slept at 703 Wylie avenue, across from the Rome Coffee Shop, where the three Volpe brothers were "put on the spot," July 29, John Height, 26, ran screaming through a plate glass window early today.

Suffering from cuts about the face, shoulders and arms, Height is in serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital.

Lawrence Bond, 26, of 703 Wylie avenue, with whom Height was spending the night, attempted to stop his companion and was cut about the face and arms, but not seriously.

12 FEARED LOST IN FLOOD

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Thousands of residents on both sides of the Rio Grande were fleeing to the hillsides today as flood waters of the big river swirled over the countryside.

Some reports said 12 persons had lost their lives.

Piedras Negras, just across the river from here, was under a heaving blanket of water and 15,000 inhabitants sought refuge on higher levels. Approximately 1,000 Eagle Pass residents abandoned their river bank homes and fled to the hills.

An automobile, containing two people, was plunged into the flood waters when a highway bridge collapsed.

Many buildings on both sides of the river collapsed, the railway bridge was demolished and telephone and telegraph poles were uprooted.

Suicide Doubted In Kittanning Death

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Dissatisfied with a suicide theory, state police today were investigating the death of Joseph Glenn, 65, former policeman whose body was found in his home, a revolver clutched in his hand.

Physicians announced after an autopsy that the body when found had been lifeless between 36 and 48 hours.. State police questioned Anne Daugherty, 26, Glenn's housekeeper, late yesterday. They said she denied any knowledge of her employer's death.

Still Seized, Five Arrested in Raids

A small still was reported confiscated when police raided a house at 1928 Edgebrook avenue late yesterday. George Choman, 320 Helen street; Charles Diamond, 1310 Wylie avenue, and John Vangilio, 1400 Bedford avenue, were arrested.

Moonshine was reported found at 145 South Twelfth street, where Milton Hobart was arrested, and at 54 South Eighth street, where Philip McCrea was arrested.

Real Explainer Needed to Explain Bonus to Legion

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Pat Hurley was offerd the job. But Pat held out his left hand and waltzed to the right.

Then Mr. Hoover decided that Teddy Roosevelt, of the Philippines, was the boy who could make the Legion forget what happened to the bonus army in glorious Washington, the patched seat of our government.

That deal fell through like the boy in James Whitcomb Riley's poem. Finally, they yanked Hanford MacNider out of Canada to bell the cat.

If Hanford can do it he is a better man than we are. And we're the mug who filled the water dipper for Ghunga Dhin.

TWO ROOSEVELT TALKS TODAY

By RAYMOND I. BORST

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 3.—With the "Walker Case" a closed book so far as he is concerned, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today was to resume his drive for the presidency on two fronts—Schenectady, N. Y., and Bridgeport, Conn.

The Governor was scheduled to speak at Schenectady and then motor to Bridgeport where he will speak tonight.

An appeal to the citizens of the country to "be sure and vote" at the November election will be made at Schenectady by Roosevelt in addressing the Young Men's Democratic League of that city.

While the Governor has not revealed the subject of his Bridgeport speech, it is understood it will be a bid for the support of the Al Smith Democrats of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Overcome by Auto Fumes; Recovering

Earl F. Cannon, 2914 Glenmore avenue, Dormont, was recovering in his home today from effects of fumes from the engine of his automobile. His mother, attracted to Cannon's garage by the sound of the engine running, found him unconscious. Her cries for help brought T. Peckes, 2918 Glenmore avenue, who revived the victim by artificial respiration.

Boys, Girls at Overflow 'Lucky Bucks' Outing

Ideal picnic weather brought out big throngs today for the overflow Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck picnics at West View and Kennywood parks. Of course, the crowds did not compare with that of a week ago, but they were big enough to fill each park.

Every youngster that went to the park today was fortified with at least one strip of tickets for the rides, and these tickets were good from 11 o'clock this morning until 11 o'clock at night.

Just enough tickets were issued ot take care of the normal capacity of these parks as a precaution against overcrowding. As a result every boy and girl is getting his or her share of rides. It was observed at noon that they were not getting them quite as fast as they would have liked, but this was on account of the fact that the crowds came early. However, inasmuch as the tickets are good all day, every youngster will be taken care of.

Special arrangements have been made at each park for the comfort and care of the youngsters today and they will all undoubtedly vote that the overflow Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck Day was a whale of a success.

Incidentally, there will be dancing and other amusements for the grown-ups at both parks tonight. These parks are only open two more days—tomorrow and Monday (Labor Day) with a big labor demonstration at West View.

RULING ON N. Y. ELECTION DUE

support of the former Mayor, some political experts said all chance for a rapprochement between Tammany and Roosevelt was ended, and that Tammany would "cut" the Governor at the November elections, with the possibility that Roosevelt would lose his own State of New York.

The 47 presidential electoral votes thus hanging in the balance were considered sufficient, should the national election be close, to decide the result.

Confusion prevailed in local political circles as a result of Walker's dramatic resignation.

A movement was quickly launched by civic organizations and independents to put a fusion candidate in the field to oppose Walker. Hasty conferences among Republican leaders strengthened the growing conviction that the Republican party would favor such a fusion nominee.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES

Gen. James G. Harbord, Emory N. Buckner and former Gov. Charles S. Whitman were mentioned among those whom the Republicans might put forward as candidate. McKee, as well as former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, and Frank L. Polk were also mentioned in this connection.

Walker, freed from the strain of his last few turbulent months in office and the ordeal of the governor's hearings, said today he enjoyed the most restful night in a long while last night.

He planned to spend the Labor Day weekend at the Larchmont (N. Y.) home of his friend, A. C. Blumenthal, but declared his plans after that were indefinite.

Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter legislative committee, who filed the Walker charges with the Governor, before sailing for a vacation abroad, declared on his return in November the committee would resume the inquiry into city affairs with a view to proposing concrete reforms in the city administration.

Crowd Sees Boat Sink in Monongahela

A crowd of more than 400 last night stood at the foot of the Dravosburg Bridge over the Monongahela River and watched a wrecking boat sink in the stream.

The distress whistle of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, nearby, spread the belief that lives were endangered. But only one man was aboard and he escaped by leaping into the water.

10 Road Workers Overcome by Heat

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Ten employes of the State Highway Department working on repairs to the Leesburg-New Wilmington road, were overcome by the intense heat yesterday as the mercury rose to 102 degrees, establishing a new high for the year in this district.

DENIES QUARRY DEATHS IN PLEA

LIMA, O., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Arraigned on two charges of first degree murder, Loren E. Truesdale, 23, alleged confessed slayer of his brother and his sweetheart, pleaded not guilty and was held to the Allen County grand jury without bond yesterday.

Truesdale waived preliminary examination on the charges which accused him of the "quarry murders," Memorial Day, 1931, in which his brother, Earl, 20, and sweetheart, Thelma Woods, 19, were slain and their bodies hidden in a stone quarry pool.

An alleged confession was obtained by officials from Loren in the presence of his mother and father, officials reported. Prosecuting Attorney E. M. Botkin indicated Truesdale may be given a sanity hearing.

CITY TO PROVIDE NEEDY PUPILS WITH SHOES

$50,000 Fund to Aid 16,000 Children Near Vote in Council

The City Welfare Department has agreed to furnish shoes for needy families and an ordinance providing $50,000 will be acted on promptly by Council, probably next week.

This is expected to take care of 16,000 school children who are in need of shoes.

The distribution will be handled through the city Department of Welfare in co-operation with the relief agencies and the Allegheny County Emergency Association. Bids will be taken through the city Department of Supplies on various sizes and the cost of delivery will be included in the purchase price.

The money will be appropriated, subject to the approval of City Council, from the $800,000 relief bond issue. The decision was announced by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Welfare.

The prospect of providing shoes in the county is not bright, according to the relief leaders.

POLING SCORED BY M'SPARRAN

HARRISBURG, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—State Secretary of Agriculture John A. McSparran in a letter to Dr. Daniel A. Poling yesterday resigned as a member of the Allied Forces for Prohibition because he disagreed with the organization's indorsement of President Hoover for re-election.

McSparran was the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1922, but was defeated by Gov. Gifford Pinchot. He has long been aligned with prohibition organizations in Pennsylvania. Mr. McSparran's letter said:

"I do not question your being dry. I think you are as honestly dry as any person in the nation, but I cannot help challenging your judgment in this matter. You are the manager of the J. C. Penny foundation. You are the editor of a paper owned, as I understand it, by the same interests, and I cannot help wondering when such men as yourself and Stanley High openly indorse a wet, if people will not conclude that Mr. Penny's close friendship for the President has encouraged that indorsement."

MOB ATTACKS DRY RAIDERS

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Prohibition agents fled last night before the onslaught of a large crowd that stormed the cellar of a hotel the agents were raiding.

As the agents, firing shots to frighten the crowd away, ran upstairs and escaped over the roof of a dance hall, their automobile was overturned and destroyed by fire. A half dozen of 36 barrels of wine found in the cellar, police said, were carried out by members of the attacking crowd.

State police from Reading and Allentown policemen were called to quell the disturbance. The confusion grew as firemen were called to extinguish the automobile fire.

"Man" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science Churches. The golden text will be "Now, O Lord, thou art our father; we are the clay, and thou our potter; and we all are the work of thy hand."

Sextons,' Lay Workers' Pension Fund Set Up

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 2.—A pension fund established for sextons and lay workers has been authorized by the general council of the Congregational and Christian churches and chartered under the laws of New Jersey, according to the Rev. Dr. Lewis T. Reed, general secretary of the united denomination's pension boards.

He said:

"This is the latest step in the development of a denominational pension system started 117 years ago, but limited until now, to ordained ministers. By participation of the church and individual in the retirement fund to the amount of 3 per cent of the worker's yearly salary or wages, an annuity pension is assured at the minimum age of 65."

In addition to sextons, pastor's assistants, choir directors, organists and all other employed lay or unordained workers; teachers, doctors, nurses, social workers and janitors in missionary service; stenographers and lay office workers of mission boards and of state and national denominational offices; executive secretaries or treasurers; employes of colleges and other institutions affiliated with the denominations, may participate in the fund, the Rev. Dr. Reed said.

BITS OF LIFE
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

The Last Thought

HARRY BANKS—real name forgotten in the long ago—gazed hungrily through the window of an Eighth avenue hash joint. Nervously he opened and closed his hands. Inside, a number of men and a few women were eating the dubious delicacies of the day. Bank's eyes covered each one in turn. His mouth twitched and he shivered slightly.

The man was desperately hungry. It wasn't the polite hunger that most of us encounter every so often, nor the empty feeling that comes our way after a day's fast. This was the gnawing hunger of starvation. The hunger that prompts unfortunates to dig with eager, trembling hands into garbage cans.

How long since he'd had a meal? Banks didn't know. Couldn't think very clearly now. Three days. Maybe four. Or was it almost five? He had never begged so desperately in his life. And what is begging desperately? Asking anyone who passed and not stopping to judge faces for the proper touch. Hoping for a penny. Yearning for a dime. Praying for a quarter.

The results? Next to nothing. Three cents in all that time. Three lonesome coppers that bought three small bags of peanuts in that hole-in-the-wall candy store. Three bags of peanuts that left the throat parched and the stomach empty as before.

The man's fingers almost clawed at the window. Over there in the corner, a woman had pushed her plate away. There was still plenty of potato salad upon it. And a small slice of tongue. And a thick slice of ham.

Banks wet his lips. He twitched again. He could stand it no longer. He almost ran to the door—and walked through. . . .

"Gimme two orders of that," he muttered. "And some of those over there. And some of that gravy. And plenty of potatoes. And hurry, will you?"

Soon he was eating. Well, hardly eating. Gulping is more the word for it, I guess. In less than two minutes, he had cleaned all his plates. He was up at the counter again. He repeated the order. The counterman looked at him wonderingly, shrugged his shoulders, punched the check—and served the food.

When he had finished, Banks' movements were most deliberate. He drank his fourth glass of water. He placed the object that passed for a hat, upon his head. He squared his shoulders. He walked to the cashier's desk.

"Send for the boss," he stated. "I want to see him about this check."

In a minute the boss came hurrying over. A short man he was, but rather stocky.

"What's the matter, mister?" he asked. "Something wrong?"

Banks regarded the boss curiously.

"I'm just wonderin'," he asserted quietly, "how you're gonna take this. The best thing to do, I suppose, is to tell it to you straight. And then, if you want to, you can call a cop.

"I didn't have nothin' to eat for about five days, I think. I passed this joint and I looked inside and I got terribly hungry. Believe me, I was almost crazy with hunger. I couldn't stand it no longer. So I—"

The proprietor stepped back.

"Listen, you bum," he interrupted. "Are you gonna stand there and tell me you ain't got the dough to pay for this check? Are you?"

Banks nodded.

"Yeah," he returned. "You hit it on the nose. But get me straight on this: I ain't no chiseler. I'll work it out cleanin' dishes, or anythin'. It's just that I couldn't stand it no longer and—"

Once more the proprietor stepped in. This time his voice was icy.

"You ain't gonna wash no dishes, bum. And I ain't callin' no cops. But I'm gonna give you a little somethin' to remember me by. Like this."

He swung—and he connected. With a loud crash, Banks went through the cheap cigar case and landed against the cash register. The blood trickled from his mouth and from a gash on his left hand. As if through a mist, he saw the proprietor coming toward him. Instinctively, he put up his hands. Instinctively, he defended himself from this enemy who was bent on destruction. His mind whirled. He swung wildly—and he, too, connected.

The proprietor's eyes opened wide. He staggered. He fell back against a table. His head struck the edge with a sickening thud. He slipped to the floor.

Banks ran. But not far. Police whistles. Hoarse cries. Auto horns. Wild shouts. A hard fist against his jaw and a club bounced upon his skull. And as he sank he heard grotesque words.

"He's a murderer . . . Killed Nick, the restaurant guy on the other corner . . . Tried to rob the place . . . Murderer . . . Murderer . . . Murderer." . . .

* * *

The jury had been out but a short time. Banks stood before the bench and peered at the judge through reddened eyes. He heard words. Strange, cold, gruesome words.

". . . So the verdict, Harry Banks, is one that is well merited . . . You stole food and you attempted to steal from the cash register . . . The cashier's testimony was most convincing . . . You struck out murderously at the man whom you were attempting to defraud. You killed him . . . Harry Banks, I hereby sentence you . . ."

* * *

Banks—real name still forgotten—sat in his cell in Death Row. It was his last day on earth, or so they tell us. Seemingly indifferent to his fate, he sat chewing on the end of an unlit cigaret.

Steps resounded along the stone floor. A key turned in the lock. A man in a uniform stepped in.

"Banks," he said, "according to prison rules, you are entitled to a special, last meal. I'm here for your order. You can have anything you want to eat or drink. What'll it be?"

"Did you hear what I said, Banks?" cried the uniformed man impatiently. "What do you want to eat?"

Then Banks did a strange thing. He began to laugh. It was such a laugh as one hears only in the confines of an insane asylum. It was a chilling, crackling, weird and brutal laugh. In it was the moan of the winter wind, the screech of the ugly buzzard and the rattle of approaching death.

"Banks," he cried. "What are you laughing at?"

As suddenly as he had begun, the doomed one stopped his hideous laugh. His voice was quite clear and quite calm.

"I'm sorry, feller," he said, "but I junst got to thinkin'. You asked me what I wanted to eat. And I got to thinkin' that if you'd asked me that same question six months ago—I wouldn't be in here now." . . .

"American Weekly" Review on WCAE

Will Rogers turns political prophet and a resume of his "guess" on the presidential campaign is afforded WCAE listeners tonight at 7 o'clock in a pre-view of the "American Weekly" magazine, distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph and of the March of Events Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Louis L. Kaufmann, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes latest news developments to WCAE listeners at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

SEE NO SALES TAX CONFUSION

HARRISBURG, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The Department of Revenue said there should be no confusion over the method of collection of the sales tax, for the merchant is liable for one per cent of the amount of his gross sales.

The tax of one per cent became effective Thursday and runs for six months to finance the state's unemployment relief program. Payment is due April 1. The department said:

"The act very specifically places the tax upon the seller. The customer pays the tax only in instances where it is passed on to him by the seller in conformity with the act. It is optional with the merchant whether he passes the tax on, or absorbs it or increases the price of his commodity."

Ladder Fall Victim Dies in Hospital

Walter Emerch, 45, of 7254 Kelly street, died last night in Pittsburgh Hospital from a spinal injury suffered Thursday when he fell from a ladder while cleaning his home, according to a coroner's report.

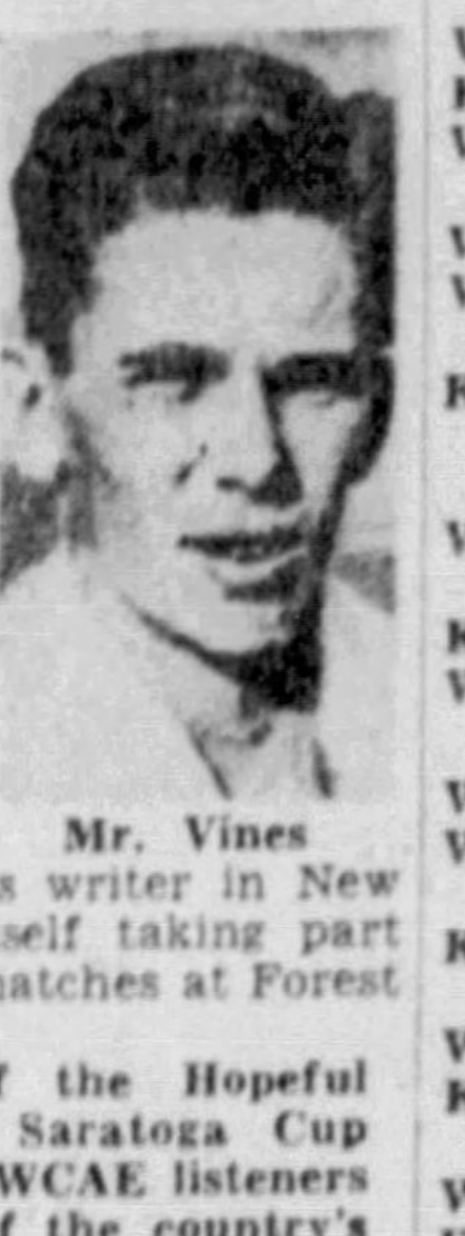
Two Turf Classics On WCAE

Tennis and turf fans have their day on the air today, with broadcasts of the men's national tennis championships scheduled on KDKA and WJAS and descriptions of the running of the Hopeful and the Saratoga Cup races on WCAE.

H. Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, defending his title at Forest Hills, is interviewed over WJAS at 6:45 by P. Schuyler Van Bloem. Immediately following, Ted Husing gives a summary of the opening round of the tournament. Results also are given over KDKA at 4 with Dr. Sigmund Spaeth at the microphone. Dr. Spaeth, better known as radio's "tune detective," at one time was a sports writer in New York and is himself taking part in the veterans' matches at Forest Hills.



Mr. Vines

A close-up of the Hopeful Stakes and the Saratoga Cup race is afforded WCAE listeners when the pick of the country's two and three-year-olds swing into action for prizes totaling $55,000 at the historic Saratoga course. Clem McCarthy, NBC racing authority, is at the microphone for both events. The Hopeful Stakes is scheduled at 4:15 and the Saratoga Cup at approximately 5.

Col. Arthur L. Conger, U. S. A., retired, who headed the Positive Intelligence section of the A. E. F., speaks over WCAE at 8:30 tonight during the broadcast of K-7, radio dramatization of actual secret service operations during the World War. Col. Conger's name has been featured in many previous K-7 programs and the one in which he appears personally tonight deals with the preparations for the Ninth Infantry attack on Vaux.

The "Magic Carpet" comes to Pittsburgh tonight to pick up the music of Jack Pettis and his orchestra from the WCAE studios at 10. Anson Weeks and his orchestra also are heard from San Francisco.

Program Pointers

The Sacred Song program from KDKA this evening at 7:30 is presented by Mathilda Flinn, soprano; Sarah Logan, contralto; Vincent Kroen, tenor, and E. M. Hicks, bass, with Aneurin Bodycombe as pianist. "In the Garden" is one of the favorite hymns introduced . . . Selections from Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow" are featured in Ann Leaf's organ recital over WJAS at 9 . . . Peggy Keenan and Sandra Phillips offer "Beautiful Blue Danube" and "Einmal Kommt de Tag" in their two-piano program over WJAS at 7:30.

Miss Logan

William N. Doak, Secretary of Labor, speaks over a nation-wide network, including WJAS at 10:15 on "The Significance of 1932 Labor Day."

Magic Carpet

Listening In—Mother's Songs: Is Kate Nervous? Fame by a Neck.

One of Welcome Lewis' ambitions is to sing a program consisting of nothing but old-time ballads "like mother used to sing" . . . Kate Smith won't step before the microphone without a handkerchief—because she doesn't know what to do with her hands without it . . . Jay Hanna, director of the Crime Club productions, is an inventor. Recently he received a patent for a new type of loud-speaker . . . William Brenton, Columbia announcer, studies Greek . . . If it weren't for the cramped position of the neck required to play the violin, Arthur Tracey might never have become a singer.

Miss Lewis

"Lefty" Flynn still carries the 190 pounds he did when he terrorized Yale's opponents on the gridiron. He was nicknamed "Lefty" because, seated next to Hobey Baker, the hockey player, in the dining hall one day, he knocked a glass of water into Baker's lap with his left elbow.

His likes and dislikes: Nat Shilkret prefers to remain inconspicuous . . . would rather work in a recording or broadcasting studio than in vaudeville . . . likes classic literature, especially Shakespeare . . . hates walking . . . likes anything flavored with chocolate or ginger . . . dislikes black, discords and elaborate cooking.

One of the most unusual pieces of fan mail ever received by a radio star is a six-foot guitar a California admirer sent to Buddy Rogers. Accompanying it was the note, "This has been in the family ever since it was a ukulele, so take good care of it."

Leo Reisman holds the world record for long rehearsing. He played one three-minute dance number over for four hours and 30 minutes until it sounded the way he thought it should.

RUPTURE
OF CHICAGO
IS COMING HERE AGAIN

He will be at the Wm. Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 7th and 8th, from 10 A. M. to 7 P. M. daily. There is no charge to come in to talk with him. Only men are invited.

He has been coming here for many years.

CAUTION: Do not wear trusses or appliances that often weaken the muscles, as strangulation is dangerous and can occur without warning regardless of how large or how small your Rupture may be. Hundreds of deaths from Rupture can be avoided. Rupture also often causes stomach pains, backache, weakness and other complaints.

Chicago Office—12th Floor, Pure Oil Bldg.

CONGRATULATIONS to the greatest Cast of Stars since "Grand Hotel"!

There were laughs, there were tears, there was applause yesterday! A new talking picture reached out from the screen and gripped the hearts of an enthusiastic audience.

Frances Marion, the noted screen writer, is well remembered for her successes "Min and Bill," "The Champ," "The Big House" and "Emma." But she wins true immortality with her splendid entertainment "Blondie of the Follies."

It is the story of two tenement girls who rise to fame in the Follies; luxury, fame, romance is theirs—but sometimes they wonder if they have not paid too great a price!

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Not since the Diebold-Steitz wedding, one of the smart weddings of late June, has there been a wedding of note in stately St. Paul's Cathedral.

But there'll be one this autumn. Virginia Eberhardt Murphy, daughter of the Bert L. Murphys, of Murray avenue, has chosen the Cathedral to be the scene of her marriage to Dr. William L. Mullins, son of Darragh Mullins, of the Schenley apartments.

Virginia has named October 18 as the wedding date, with the ceremony to be at 11 o'clock in the morning. Her fiance was educated in Trinity College, Dublin, by the way, that old, old school where Oliver Goldsmith and Jonathan Swift were educated.

* * *

The William J. Powells were recent sojourners at Bedford Springs, one of the popular nearby resorts.

* * *

Expert Sailor

Young Harry Darlington, III, is becoming quite a seaman. He's spending the summer, you know, with his mother, Mrs. Harry Darlington, of Sewickley Heights, at her Watch Hill, R. I., place.

He has clinched a second place in the August series for the Alden boats at the Watch Hill Yacht Club. And he held the same position in the races for the July prizes. And by next summer, when he's a little older, he probably will make first place.

Cully Darlington, another son of Mrs. Darlington, has had as his guest Philip Harder, son of Mrs. Harris Harder, of New York.

* * *

But to chat about some of the grown-ups at Watch Hill, so long the popular Pittsburgh resort. Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, who is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, the H. B. Collamores, of Hartford at their Watch Hill place, was guest of honor at a luncheon Mrs. George Doane, of Orange, N. J., gave recently at Echo Lodge, her Watch Hill place.

* * *

Keeping Home Ope

Mrs. William Reed Thompson will keep her Watch Hill home open until late September. Her daughter, Miss Dorothea Thompson, who has spent the summer ranching in Wyoming with the John Crossan Dilworths, will arrive September 15 at Watch Hill.

The Thomas H. Eddys and family have returned to Pittsburgh after summering with Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Eddy's mother.

* * *

The William S. Moorheads will enter the mixed foursome matches to be a part of the Labor Day celebration at the Misquamicut Golf Club, Watch Hill.

* * *

Another autumn wedding is being planned. Elizabeth Hortense Whitten, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles E. Whitten, of Greensburg, has decided to wed Myron Sturtevant Fales, of Oklahoma City, September 20 in the Greensburg Westminster Presbyterian Church. The hour will be 7:30 o'clock in the evening. And a reception in the Greensburg Country Club will follow.

Edgewood Club Study Covers Wide Field

Such varied topics as "The Romance of Modern Travel," "History of the Mystery Story," "Thrilling Tale a la Radio," "The Brownings," "Restoration of Mt. Vernon and Wakefield," "Norse Literature" and "Modern Trend of Murals" have been selected for this year's study by the Edgewood Woman's Club.

The club begins its year on October 5, when the new president, Miss Hannah Gillender, takes office. Between that date and May 3, which is the closing meeting and the date for the publication of the club's spring magazine, the members will find much of interest.

In addition to those topics already mentioned, there will be papers on "American and English Essayists," "Essays by Frances L. Warner," "Florence," "Victorian Novelists," "Modern Novelists," "Benjamin Franklin," "Gertrude Atherton," "Modern Art," "Modern Poets" and "Gardens."

No doubt an early American day in November will bring something unusual; the Christmas program also will be specially prepared, and in January there's to be a play.

Ruth Winkelman Is Married in Parsonage

Mrs. William Winkelman, of Perrysville avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Ruth Winkelman, to Jack O'Brien, of Mt. Lebanon, which was solemnized at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning in the parsonage of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church. Officiating was the Rev. G. E. Swoyer.

The bride wore a gown of blue transparent velvet with a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Genevieve Sloan, as her maid of honor, wore beet velvet and carried summer flowers. Earl Winkelman, brother of the bride, was the best man.

There was a wedding breakfast in the Winkelman home, after which Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left for a lake trip. After September 15 they will be at home in the Charles Hall Apartments, Mt. Lebanon.

Miss Suzanne Clifton Marries New York Man

Mr. and Mrs. Warren R. Clifton, of Euclid avenue, Sharon, Pa., formerly of Beaver, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Suzanne Clifton, to Walter Crafts, of New York, son of Mrs. Walter N. Crafts, of Oberlin, O. The engagement will terminate in a fall wedding.

Miss Clifton is a graduate of Oberlin College and her fiance is a graduate of Yale and of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Josephine Pagano To Mary on Sept. 8

September 8 is the date named by Miss Josephine Pagano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene B. Pagano, of Baywood street, East End, for her marriage to Louis Phillips, of Marchand street, East End. The ceremony will take place in St. Raphael's Roman Catholic Church.

Miss Jessie Pagano will be her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. Anna Grotto will be matron of honor. As her bridesmaids, Miss Pagano has chosen her sisters, Miss Helen and Miss Ruth Pagano, Miss Phyllis Schifano and Miss Columbia Caputo. Her little sister, Anna Pagano, will be flower girl and her twin brothers, Alfred and Eugene Pagano, will be page boys. Walter Lamb will be the ringbearer.

Serving as his brother's best man will be William Phillips, and another brother, Edward Phillips, a brother of the bride, Adolph Pagano, and George and Henry Martin, will be ushers.

Welsh Club to Make Rocky River Pilgrimage

The Women's Welsh Club of Pittsburgh, has planned a pilgrimage to the Welsh Home at Rocky River on Sunday, September 11. The "pilgrims" will visit with the residents at the home and will be entertained with a gymanfa ganu.

The club's September meeting has been changed from Monday to Tuesday evening of next week.

Ohio State Women's Club To Meet Next Saturday

Miss Marjorie Passmore will be hostess for the first fall meeting of the Ohio State Women's Club next Saturday in the Chartiers Heights Country Club. Assisting will be Mrs. A. L. Harrington, Mrs. C. B. Hathaway, Mrs. H. D. Haller and Mrs. Phillips Thomas.

Ingomar Club to Hear Music and Readings

A program of music and readings will mark Thursday's meeting of the Ingomar Woman's Club in Mrs. Carl Van Der Voort's home. Miss Grace LeMoyne Clement, soprano, will sing; Miss Dorothy Mulvey will read and a trio from Carnegie Tech will complete the entertainment.

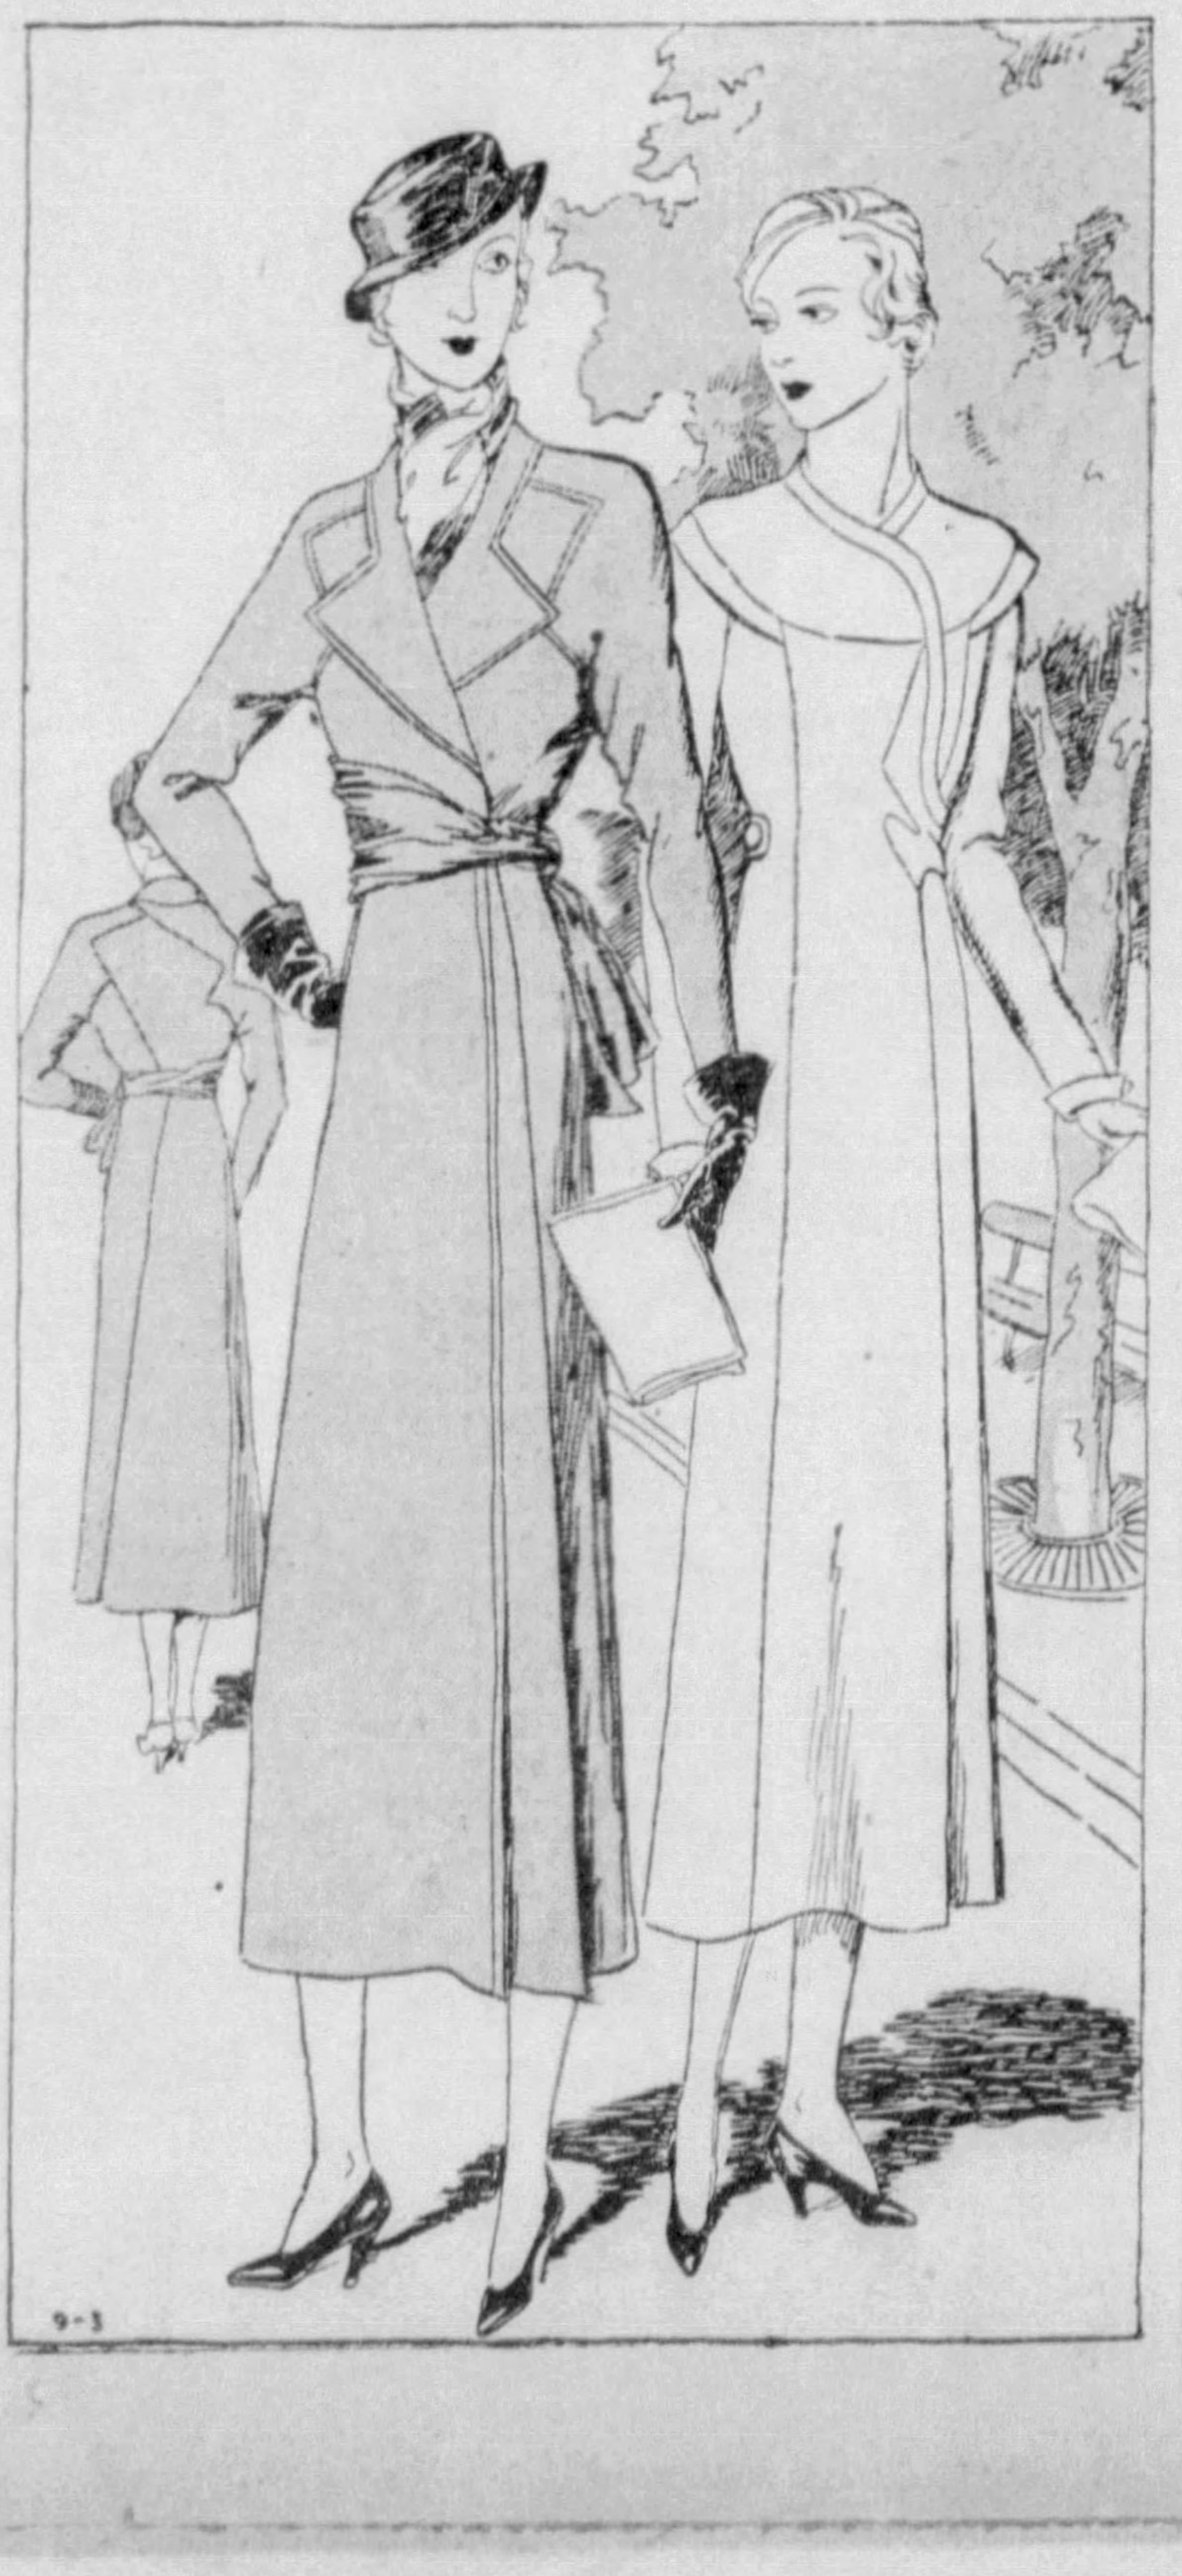
MIDSEASON FASHION DICTATES BRIGHT-DARK COMBINATIONS

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Many of the new midseason coats and coat-dresses that Paris is making now are not in the expected blacks and browns and navy blues, but take to brighter colors. Often the colors are positively vivid. Many of these costumes are recommended to be worn over dark dresses, or with dark accessories.

* * *

PURPLES, BLUES, and very deep beiges that border on caramel shades, are among the colors in these new French costumes. Reds—grape-red, wine red and ruby red—are extremely popular. Greens are less in evidence, although a few of the softer, grayed tones of green, such as olive, and dark chartreuse, are occasionally seen.

* * *

THERE IS much importance attached to the way these colored clothes are combined with dark accessories. For example, violets are more often combined with browns of extremely dark shades than they are with blacks. Navy blue is often allied with light blue. Navy blue shoes, in calfskin or kid, navy blue gloves, scarfs and hats, are much in evidence.

* * *

* * *

Mrs. Sabin Answers Her Pittsburgh Dissenters

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt still is a more acceptable presidential candidate than President Hoover to the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, in spite of the speech of acceptance in which the President satisfied some anti-dry leaders.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, replying to a message from her Pittsburgh organization which declared for support of Hoover said:

"The President proposes to write into the Constitution a guarantee against the return of the old saloon.

"We trust the people of the United States to prevent the return of pre-prohibition evils. Mr. Hoover and the Republican Party do not. They believe the Federal government should be clothed with the power to make the people behave. This means bad constitutional law and thus no lasting solution."

Mrs. Sabin said those "close to the throne at Washington" have been ignorant of the huge wave of anti-prohibition sentiment out in the country. Mrs. Sabin formerly was a Republican leader.

"A political party to my mind is merely an organ through which to express what an individual believes to be for the best interest of his or her country. When a party fails you, it then seems to me that a citizen should put allegiance to his country ahead of allegiance to any political party."

Her letter, addressed to Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, one of the vice chairmen who signed the letter serving notice of defection from the Roosevelt activities of the organization, defended the action of the national executive committee, which last July indorsed Roosevelt by a vote of 55 to 19.

It also expressed regret that the Pittsburgh women had not done their national chairmen "the courtesy of allowing me to receive the statement before you took action."

Commandery Auxiliary To Hold Card Luncheon

A luncheon, business session and card party will be held Wednesday in Malta Temple, North Side, by the Ladies' Auxiliary to Allegheny Commandery No. 35, Knights Templar.

Mme. Elsa Alsen, Opera Star, to Visit Seibels

Mme. Elsa Alsen, former prima donna of the Chicago Opera Company, will be the house guest next week of Mr. and Mrs. George Seibel, of Ridgeville street.

Home Dept. Opens Year at Congress

Only the absence of the chairman, Evelyn Gardiner Saudek, marred the opening meeting of the home department of the Congress of Clubs yesterday. Mrs. Saudek was detained by an important business engagement, but her place was capably filled by Mrs. Arthur Bass.

Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, Congress president, asked the blessing at table and Miss Josephine Gibson, program chairman of the department, gave a hint or two of the good things in store for the season.

The audience enjoyed a group of numbers sung by Marjorie Evans Stewart with Eleanor Moren at the piano. The speaker was Miss Laura Belle Wilson, director of nursing and acting-superintendent at the Children's Hospital. She spoke entertainingly on the 1931 White House conference which she attended as a musical delegate.

In particular she pointed out the ways in which club women can make the children's charter effective—by insisting on and assisting at health and dental examinations for pre-school children; education in favor of diphtheria immunization; protection against measles; investigation of the sources of milk and water; prenatal and maternal care and knowledge of local hospitals and their facilities.

Cleveland Girl Weds Man From Edgewood

Yesterday in Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Miss Dora Dee Carpenter, of Cleveland, became the bride of Robert Sherrick Shaw, of Edgewood, son of Mrs. E. R. Felton. The ceremony took place at 6:30 o'clock in the evening, with only the families in attendance. After September 14 Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will be at home in the St. Regis Hotel, Cleveland.

Miss McCullough Weds at Home Ceremony

At a simple home ceremony today, Miss Catherine McCullough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey V. McCullough, of Chislett street, becomes the bride of Dr. Sidney J. Potts, of Greensburg. Only the families are attending. The Rev. George Fisher, of the Highland Presbyterian Church is officiating.

The bride is wearing an afternoon frock of beige crepe and a corsage of orchids. Her mother is wearing printed chiffon and a corsage of summer flowers.

Dr. and Mrs. Potts are leaving immediately after the wedding breakfast for a motor trip and after September 15 will be at home in Braddock avenue.

New Kensington Club Issues Year Book

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Under its new name the Woman's Club of New Kensington (formerly the Triborough Club) has issued its first year books. They tell us that Mrs. R. V. Hartman and her cabinet take office on Thursday at a tea in the Aluminum Clubhouse, and that October's meeting will be a club institute in charge of Mrs. Frederick J. King, district institute chairman, the institute being combined with reports of the federation.

Warden Stanley P. Ashe, of the Western Penitentiary, is to talk of "Our Penal Institutions" in November and a Christmas program will be directed by the drama committee. "International Relations, As I See It," is the subject of an address which Mrs. Robert B. Stone, of the Cause and Cure of War Committee, will give at the first meeting in the new year; Miss Elizabeth M. Lee following this in February with a "timely topics" talk.

The junior-senior meeting in March will have the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty as speaker and Joseph Williams, basso, giving the music. Harvey Gaul, Pittsburgh critic, is another speaker listed. He's to talk on "Dramatic Art," and Elmer A. Stephan's talk the next month on "The Trend of Art" will be an appropriate companion talk. June 8 is the last date listed in the books. That's for the annual party in charge of Mrs. R. M. Johnston and her social committee.

Besides Mrs. Hartman the officers this year are Mrs. R. M. Swank and Mrs. F. J. King, vice presidents; Mrs. J. H. Spicer and Mrs. J. T. Allison, recording and corresponding secretaries, and Mrs. F. S. Moran, treasurer.

Elsie von Hof Has Military Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Henry von Hof, of Spring Garden avenue, announce the marriage on Thursday, August 25, in Fort Riley, Kan., of their daughter, Miss Elsie von Hof, to Lieut. Clayton Mansfield, of Los Angeles and Atlantic City. Chaplain Perry O. Wilcox officiated.

The ceremony was a military affair, held in the old stone chapel in Ft. Riley, at 5:30 o'clock.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother, wore a gown of white satin having a high nun collar, and veil of white silk net and lace finished with a duchess cap. She had a wrist corsage of gladioli and ferns. Mrs. von Hof wore beige peau d'ange lace with a turban of brown velvet. Miss Mary Bryson, of Pittsburgh, as maid of honor wore sky blue chiffon with a sapphire colored hat and carried orange pompon zinnias. Miss Evelyn Williams and Miss Bonnie Bowser, of Pittsburgh, were bridesmaids and wore powder blue chiffon with sapphire colored accessories and carried orange pompon zinnias. Mrs. Florence Mansfield, mother of the bridegroom, wore rose beige chiffon.

Lieut. Paul Mayo was best man and ushers included Lieut. Alexander M. Miller, Jr., Lieut. Peter Haines, Lieut. Mahlon S. Davis and Lieut. P. M. Morton.

After the ceremony, the bridal party left the church, walking beneath an arch of the drawn sabres of the ushers. The wedding reception was held at the quarters of Col. and Mrs Alexander B. Coxe and at the tea later, the bride cut the cake with the bridegroom's sabre. Fall flowers were used in decorating the tea table where the aides were Mrs. Coxe, assisted by Mrs. Irwin W. Guth, Mrs. Garnett Wilson and Mrs. Lathan H. Collins.

Homely People Popular if They Are Interesting

Do only the beautiful get the breaks; and are homely folks doomed to be washouts?

H. Turnbull thinks they do, and they are. And as a 100 per cent example, he gives himself. He can talk politics, poetry, or what have you. But he has a what-not for a face, and a schnozzle like Jimmy Durante.

So while the gals all rave over Bing Crosby and Clark Gable, none of 'em have any time for him. Therefore, he's decided that the only friends he has in the world are his purp and his pipe.

Think he's right?

Dear Miss Martin:

I enjoy reading your column. Of course sometimes you sure do rub it in on us humans; but that is what most of us need, I guess. It makes us think. And most of us only think we think, and we need a good jolt once in a while to make us snap out of it.

But that sort of talk isn't why I am writing this letter. I want to ask you a question, and I hope you will answer it through your column.

Don't you think that too many people put too much importance on "face value?"

Here is what I mean. Take myself, for example. I have a face that would stop a clock. I have a mouth like Irvin S. Cobb's, and a nose that is truly a "schnozzle." I am built fairly husky, through developing myself and living an outdoor life. I enjoy all outdoor sports, and my ambition is to become a rancher some day and get away from this artificial life that we call "civilization." I enjoy reading, and am fairly well informed on politics, poetry, sociology, etc.

However, I certainly am no parlor sheik, and in a gathering of other young people I am a total loss.

BECAME PHILOSOPHICAL

The talk is never on a subject on which I am informed. It is always so shallow—booze, parties, raw jokes and small gossip. I detest drinking, and people who think they have to drink to have a good time. When I was younger I often was the victim of remarks about how ugly I was, but now I have a philosophical outlook on life, and they don't get under my skin.

I think there is a reason for everything, but I don't think people should take or give so much credit for what is purely an accident—good looks. Most girls just worship at the shrine of good looks, and their hearts flutter when they hear Bing Crosby or see Clark Gable.

I have never had a girl in my life, but I love children, and most of them take to me. I have seen the time when I even thought of suicide, because I thought the Lord hadn't given me a square deal.

Now I have found that the most reliable friends, after my mother, are my collie dog and my briar pipe. Is it fair?

H. Turnbull.

MUST BE INTERESTING

Is it fair? Maybe not, brother, but let me ask you this: What, exactly, have you done to break the jinx? Railing at other people, and feeling sorry for yourself, won't do it. Being high hat and refusing to join them in their gay fun won't do it.

As a matter of fact, as you'll soon see if you take a good look around you, plenty of homely folks have made the grade in a big way. Plenty of homely folks are loved devotedly. But they're loved because they learned how to be interesting and charming companions; and that's just what you haven't been willing to do.

You've wanted to spend all your time talking on serious subjects, and passing up the fun. Serious subjects are okay, providing you don't run 'em into the ground. And funning is just as much a part of life as frowning, and just as necessary, if we're going to stay healthy. When you don't loosen up and get in on it, naturally people pass you by, and then you blame it on your looks! Which is a lotta eye-wash!

You've exercised your muscles. Now suppose you do a little exercise in learning how to get along with other folks, and see what happens.

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

It doesn't take a poet alone to draw treasure for mind and heart and spirit from the face of Nature. I wonder if instead of a facetious wisecracker first launching the phrase "ain't Nature wonderful?" it was not just an ungrammatical enthusiast struck of a heap by the beautiful spectacle of a mountain valley spread below—white cloud-lands in a blue sky—the green lighted cathedral of the woods—the Mount of the Holy Cross—the quiet stream hovered over by cerulean blue dragon fly—wonderful even in his small self—the windy downs near Redlands on an early morning, clamourous with the silver of a million larks' songs—the apple orchard by the white farmhouse in the Spring—just an ungrammatical enthusiast in deadly earnest! I think so.

The lover of the world of Nature breathes inspiration with every moment of delight he finds in it. Every mother and father who can afford it—and there are many who can and do not—should let their child spend every hour of his youngness he can (or she can) in the country. Take them to see the wonders of their own country before any other—because it is a mightily beautiful and astonishing country when it comes to peaceful or spectacular "views." It is like setting a plant in rich soil to do that. Giving a soul a drawing account. Coloring a life.

Jill looks with awed delight over the mighty and beautiful valley of a "mountain park." She says: "Isn't Nature wonderful? What a view! What a picture! The face of Nature!"

Jack, the lover of Nature, lost in the thoughts of another kind, says the same thing—but he means a different face.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Bride's Wishes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are rather worried about our wedding and we would appreciate your advice. We want to be married on a Saturday evening as many of our friends and relatives live out of the city, but our relatives all say that if we have the wedding in the evening they will not come because they have not the correct evening dress to wear.

We wish to invite about 100 guests. Is there any way in which we can make our wedding an informal one, and yet have it in the church? Would it be very incorrect if they did not wear evening dress? I would like to have two attendants. S. A.

You, very generously I believe, do not say what your wishes are about this, dear bride-to-be. This great day is the bride's day, and she should have the kind of wedding that she wishes to have. While I admire your generous thought of your relatives, still I don't feel that your plan, your dream for your wedding, should be submerged because a few relatives rebel at wearing the correct clothes.

If you really wish to have a formal wedding, if you wish to dress in the traditional wedding dress and bridal veil, then you should, I think, do so. The relatives will, I am sure, get into step about clothes . . . for relatives love a wedding, and they, moreover, love to plan their clothes for a wedding. But if they are allowed to run matters, naturally they will keep on the line of least resistance.

However, if all circumstances suggest an informal evening wedding, and if you really wish this, then you can plan this with taste and discrimination. By all means have it in church, if you wish . . . I do hope that you do.

For your informal wedding you would wear an informal frock, of course, perhaps an afternoon dress of chiffon or some other flattering material, in your favorite color, and with it an interesting hat to harmonize. Don't have more than two attendants, and have them walk before you and your father or whoever is to present you in marriage. Or have only one attendant, the maid or matron of honor.

And blessings on you, dear lady!

Note of Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When sending a check to your family doctor, should the title be used, and should you refer to his medical attention or mention your appreciation?

2. When closing a letter, should I say, "Mrs. Smith" or "Mary Smith?" D.

1. Do not write the title of the doctor on your check—just the name as to a person without this title. If you wish, it is a fine thing to write a note of appreciation of his service to you and of his attention and courtesy, sending the note with your check. Such an expression of appreciation is always a fine sign of good spirit.

2. When you close your letter to him, write:

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Brown Smith.

Undoubtedly it will not be necessary to write the formal name in parentheses under your informal name, since he will know your formal name.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Good Play and Overbidding

It is ironic, but nevertheless true, that much of the excellent play at the Bridge table comes as a result of overbidding. Players who have over-estimated the strength of their hands frequently rise to heights of greatness in redeeming their overbids by excellent play. When the hands have been correctly bid, the subtle eliminations, forced leads and squeezes sometimes at best add only an extra trick to the score, and thus lose much of their interest.

In a recent Duplicate game at the Tower Bridge Club in New York, Mrs. Elizabeth Banfield and Mr. A. M. Sobel were the only pair at all nine tables to bid a Slam on the hand below:

North—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

Mrs. Banfield
♠ K 10 9 6 5
♡ Q J 9
♢ A J
♣ K Q 9

West: ♠ 4 3 2 ♡ K 5 4 ♢ 7 5 2 ♣ 10 7 4 2

North / West / East / South

East: ♠ Q J 8 7 ♡ 10 3 2 ♢ Q 10 4 3 ♣ 6 5

♠ A
♡ A 8 7 6
♢ K 9 8 6
♣ A J 8 3
Mr. Sobel

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1♠	Pass
3♣(1)	Pass	3NT(2)	Pass
4NT(3)	Pass	5♣(4)	Pass
6♣(5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Not a particularly good Forcing Takeout. The hand, it is true, contains 3½ honor-tricks, but no fit has been disclosed.

(2) North makes the only possible response. The balanced distribution and the minimum strength upon which the Opening bid was based make it unwise to bid further.

(3) After North's minimum response and South's ambitious Forcing Takeout, South should be content to let well enough alone.

(4) North's hand, in view of South's strong bidding, probably justifies showing that it contains club support, even though a minimum otherwise.

(5) A very considerable overbid.

When the hand went down, Mr. Sobel appreciated the fact that he had bid too much. The one chance of making the contract depended upon finding an even distribution of the hearts and, of course, no more than four clubs in the hand of either adversary, as it was necessary to use one of Dummy's trumps to ruff a losing diamond or take an even greater risk by taking a diamond finesse.

The Opening lead was the spade 4, which was won, of course, with the Ace. South then entered the Dummy with the diamond Ace and took the finesse in hearts, losing to West's King. West then returned a trump, which was won with the Queen in Dummy. The Knave of diamonds was then led, and won with the King in the closed hand, and a diamond returned, which was ruffed with the trump 9. The club King was next led, which disclosed that the adverse trumps could be drawn. The losing diamond was discarded on the King of spades, and South now had to risk the favorable heart break upon which the making of the hand depended. The heart Knave was followed with a small heart, and when both opponents followed suit on the third round, the success of the contract was assured.

The hand had been considerably overbid. It was very well played, as it could only be made by finding a reasonably favorable distribution of the trump suit and an even distribution of the heart suit, or such distribution of the hearts as to avoid entirely the loss of a trick in the suit.

Today's Question:

Dealer holds:

♠ K J 9 6 5 ♡ Q 6 4 ♢ K J 2 ♣ J 10

Does this hand contain 2½ honor-tricks?

Answer—This hand contains exactly 2½ honor-tricks — 1 trick in spades, 1 trick in diamonds and ½ trick for the Queen of hearts and Knave of clubs. It is, however, a very weak Opening bid.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Freckles and moth patches are due to the fact that certain skins contain more elements of pigment than others. Complexions of this character get along comfortably, stay fair and play fair, until they come in contact with harsh winds or strong sunlight. Then the jig is up. They need quantities of cream, which acts as a barrier against influences that bring yallery polka dots to the surface.

Curls placed low at the back of the head are banished. Hair is clipped there; curls that appear in the rear are made from the ends of locks that carry the finger wave or the marcel. We're all for the coiffure that has lasting qualities these days and rear curly-cues have proved to be an intolerable bother. All right when freshly made, but messy as they age.

When walking, point toes straight ahead. Hold the chest high, head in normal position. Keep the body stretched tall. Hips will swing backward, abdominal muscles will tighten, the step will be graceful and easy. Good posture is the making of a woman. Means everything in the beauty hunt.

An ingrown toenail is caused by a narrow shoe. Have the nail treated as often as you will, if pressure continues, discomfort will return. Invalids who stay in bed, who need not wear shoes, get rid of all their foot ills.

Diet has much to do with the condition of the complexion. Beauty foods are lean meats, poultry, fish, eggs, vegetables and fruits.

Garden Bouquet Quilt - Block No.2 - The Cactus

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of this paper.

"I wish you could have heard the comments when I showed my cactus block. Well I never heard of putting cactus in a quilt, and haven't you gone modern, Nancy, with your cactus? and I think that's adorable. I want to start right away. What colors do I use?"

This was the gist of the conversation which Nancy reported to Peter after the sixth meeting of the Nancy Page Garden Bouquet Quilt Club.

"Of course the cactus is old, old as the hills or the desert, but it is also 'modern,' so I decided to put it in." The cactus, like the tulip that preceded it, stands upright in its urn. The pattern for this was given earlier. Most of the members had pieced a number of the urn blocks and seamed on to them the white triangle on which birds and flowers were appliqued. So they were ready to start just so soon as they had the pattern for the new flower.

For this block Nancy suggested a soft sage or olive green for the cactus with a rather brilliant patch of red or strawberry pink for the blossom. Since this color is brilliant Nancy suggested that a figured, fast colored material be used. The spikes or prickers on the edge of the cactus are put in with fast color embroidery cotton, either a dark green or a rich brown. They do not have to follow the design exactly, but are put in about as drawn. A very fine checked material may be used for the cactus leaves, but a plain color is better.

Trace the design lightly on the triangle of white as indicated in the small inset design. Then trace the pattern onto light-weight cardboard. Then paste the newspaper pattern with directions into the Nancy Page Scrap Book. If you do not have directions for making that, be sure to write to Nancy Page, care of this paper, and a copy will be sent to you. The scrapbook furnishes a splendid place for keeping all quilt patterns safely.

After the pattern has been traced on cardboard, cut it out and lay on material. In cutting material be sure to allow one-quarter inch on all sides for turning edges under. After these are turned, basted and pressed, applique the pieces with fine slanting invisible hemming stitches. Then with rather heavy embroidery cotton make the prickers. At any time now the birds may be appliqued, if they have not already been put in. Two blocks are now finished.

Next week the pattern is for the lily of the valley.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper, please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also inclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Science Progresses in War on "White Plague"

Dr. Copeland

It was not long ago that consumption, or tuberculosis, was a terribly dreaded disease. Everyone feared the "white plague," which threatened every household.

Although tuberculosis is still regarded as one of mankind's greatest enemies, it is not feared as it used to be. To what do we owe this change of feeling?

Fifty years ago the germ of consumption, the "tubercle bacillus," was discovered. This marked the beginning of a new era in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. Shortly after this remarkable discovery came the invention of the X-ray machine. This instrument enabled physicians to observe the early signs of tuberculosis of the chest and other parts of the body.

Better understanding of the importance of good food and proper standards of living, aided further in the prevention of this disease. With the advancements made in hygiene, the recognition of the necessity of fresh air, sunlight and rest, the number of cases of tuberculosis gradually decreased. As our knowledge increases, it is hoped that eventually the disease will disappear.

One of the greatest contributions to the control of tuberculosis is the rapid advance made in surgery. When the disease is confined to one lung, great benefit can be obtained by chest surgery. By means of a minor operation, a condition known as artificial pneumothorax is produced. That is, air is introduced into the chest cavity which contains the lung.

Sufficient air is forced in to collapse the involved lung. This closes the cavities, preventing the accumulation of pus and germs and stops the spread of the germs of tuberculosis to other parts of the body. Many cases of tuberculosis have been cured by this simple operation.

In more advanced cases, where the lung has grown fast to the chest wall, it may be necessary to have a more extensive operation. In such cases parts of the ribs may be removed. This operation is known as 'thoracoplasty" and, in many instances, the results obtained have been extremely beneficial.

Persons afflicted with tuberculosis are no longer doomed to an inevitable fate. When the disease is recognized in its early stages, cure is possible. In more advanced cases, relief and comfort may be obtained over a period of many years. It is neglect of the disease that is dangerous. It is dangerous both for the afflicted person himself and for those who come in contact with him.

Sufferers from tuberculosis who are at all careless are a great menace to the young. Children should not come in contact with these individuals.

At some time or other every one of us becomes infected with the germs of tuberculosis. But it is only when there is an excessive number of germs in the body, or when the resistance of the body is poor, that tuberculosis takes root, spreads and becomes active. For this reason children should never be brought in contact with sufferers from tuberculosis.

Household Hints

To prevent the lower crust of fruit pies becoming soggy, brush over with white of egg before putting in fruit filling.

When washing glass or silver add a pinch of borax to the water. It will make them glitter, and all stains and marks will be removed.

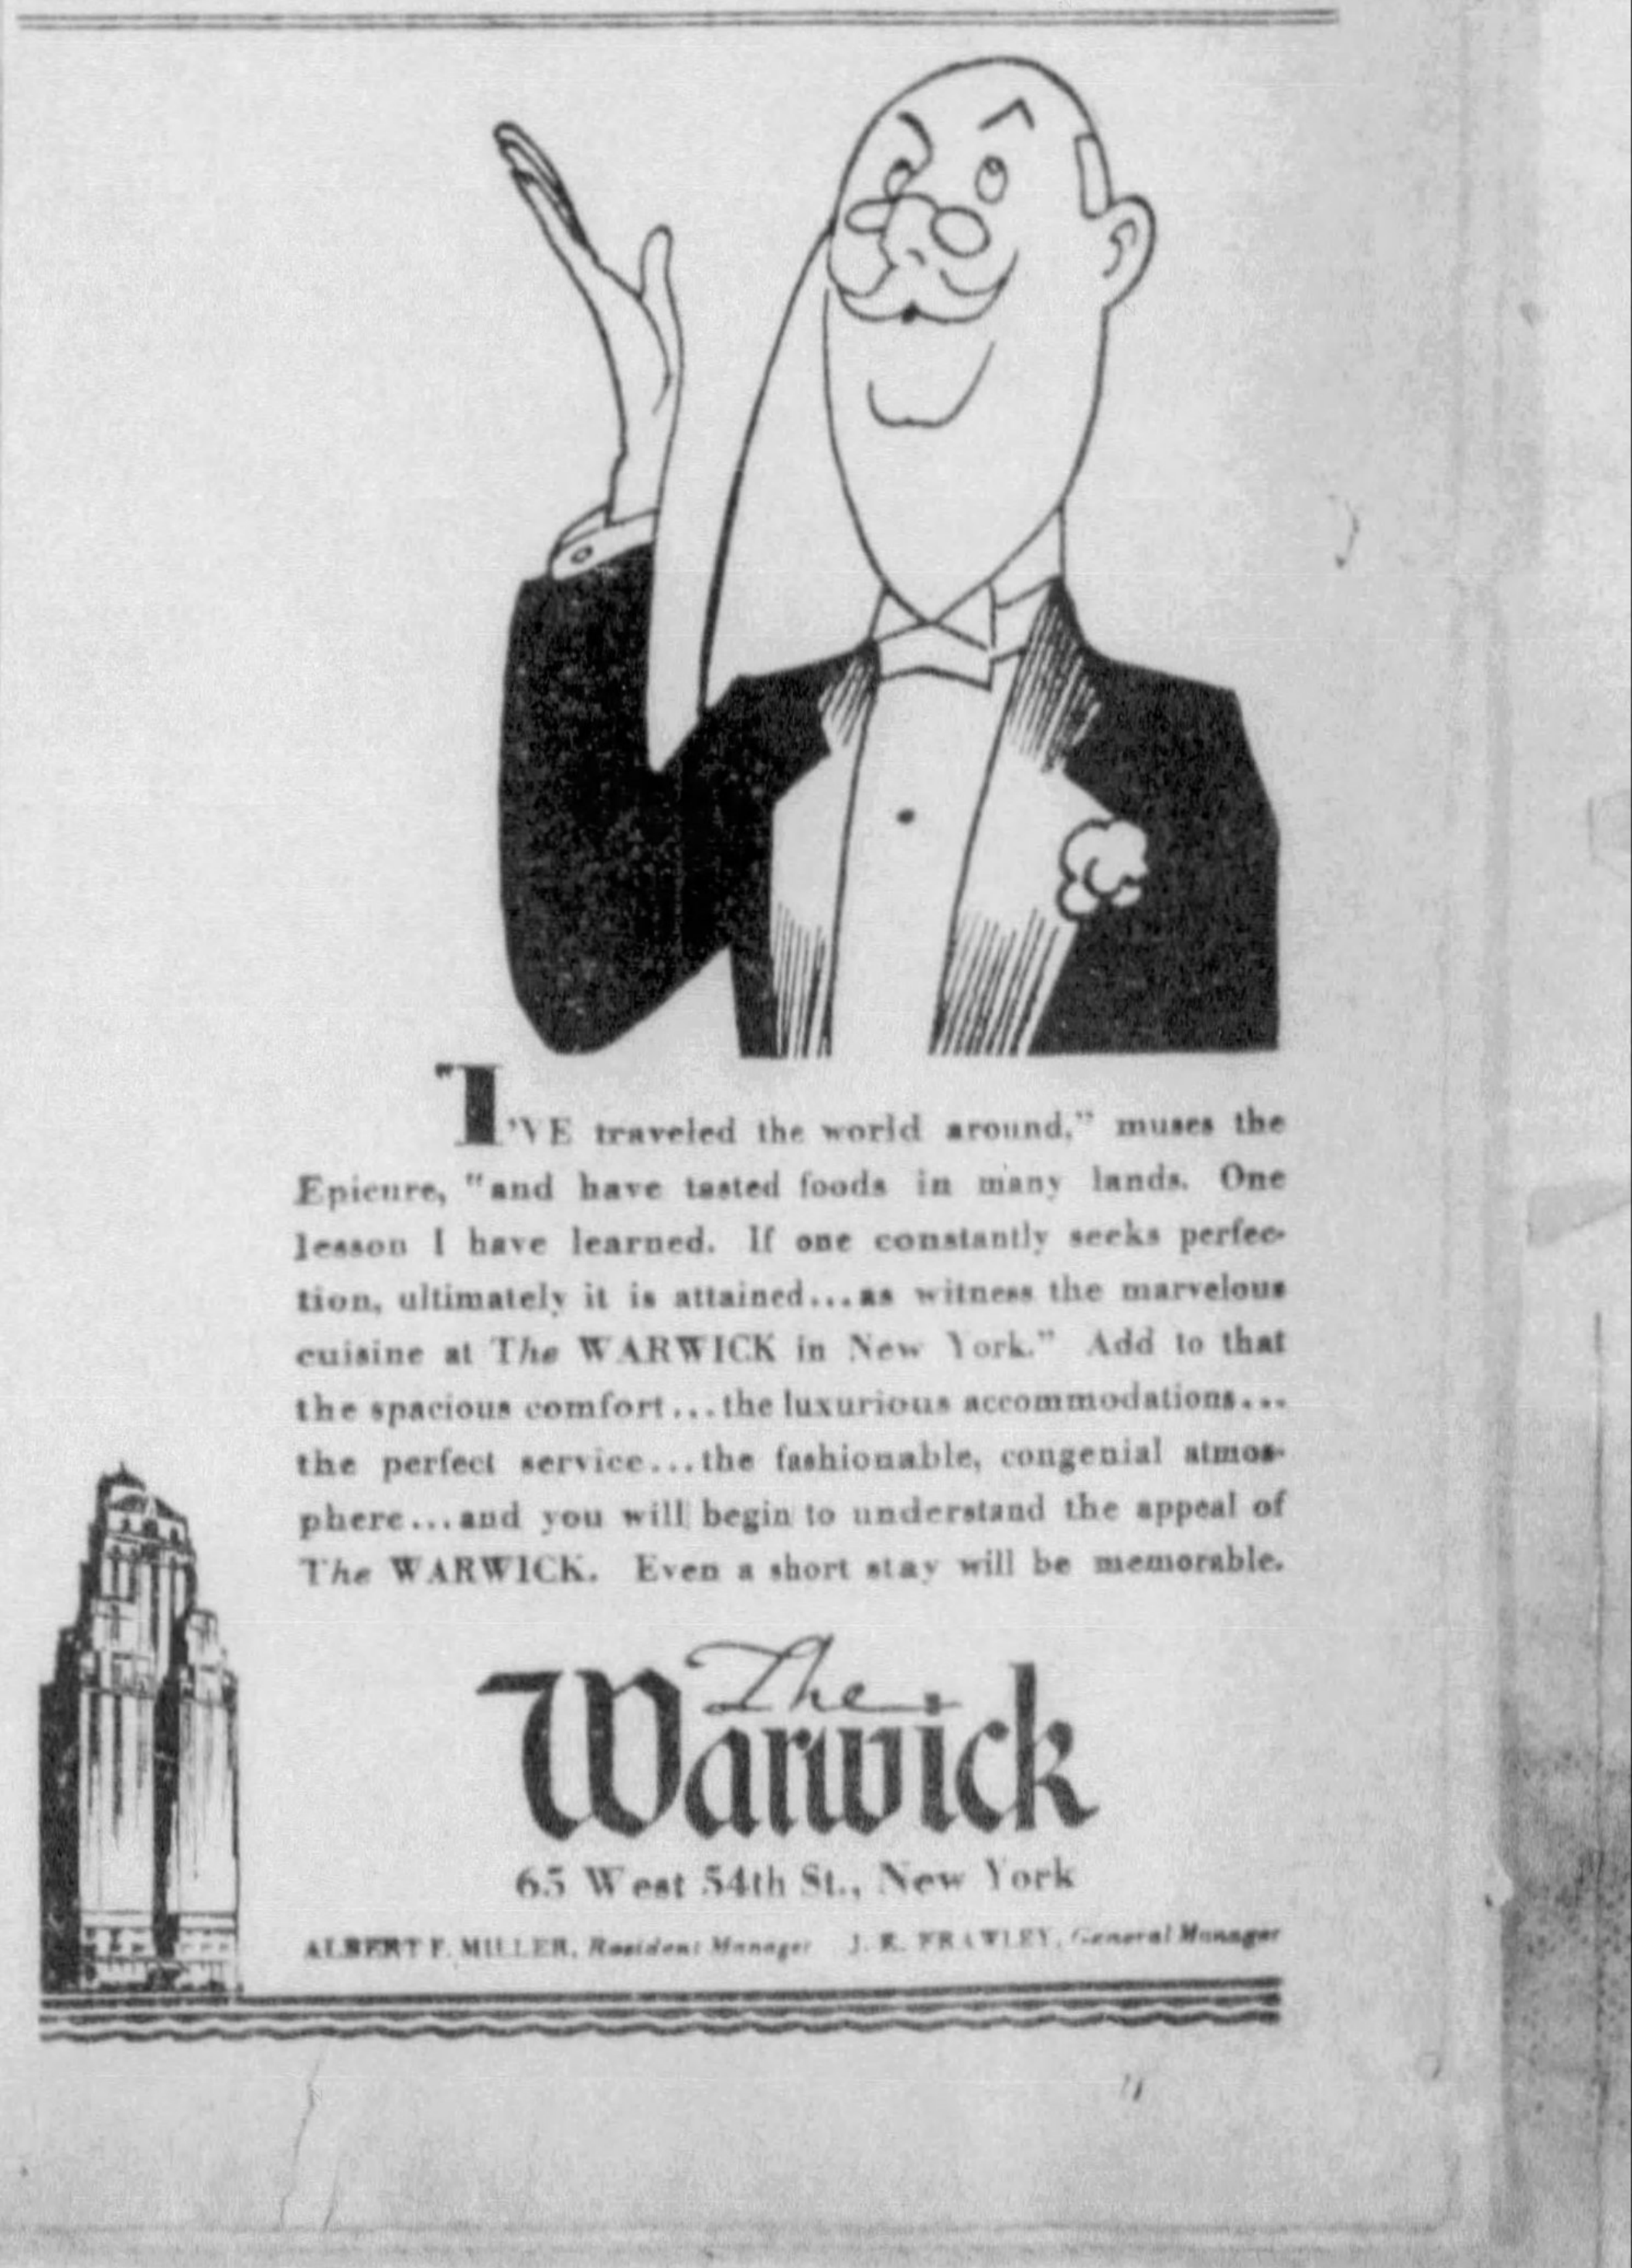
In making a boiled custard always put the salt into the milk after the milk has been scalded. Never put it into the cold milk, as it will cause the custard to separate as though curdled.

A little salt mixed with starch gives a gloss to the surface of linen and prevents the iron from sticking.

Cretonne covers should be washed in bran water if they are to retain the color.

Mint will keep fresh for some time if it is washed in cold water in which a little bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved.

To revive patent leather, rub well with a rag soaked in olive oil and milk; then polish with a soft dry rag.



"I'VE traveled the world around," muses the Epicure, "and have tasted foods in many lands. One lesson I have learned. If one constantly seeks perfection, ultimately it is attained . . . as witness the marvelous cuisine at The WARWICK in New York." Add to that the spacious comfort . . . the luxurious accommodations . . . the perfect service . . . the fashionable, congenial atmosphere . . . and you will begin to understand the appeal of The WARWICK. Even a short stay will be memorable.

BUSINESS

Auto Producers Watch For Replacement Activity

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

AUTOMOBILE MAKERS are confident that recovery in general business will bring them a prompt revival in sales. They base this belief on the steady accumulation of replacement demand which they feel must come into the market at some time in the near future.

By the end of 1932 about 75 per cent of the passenger automobiles will be more than three years old and about 33 per cent will be more than six years old. At the end of 1929 only about 58 per cent were over three years old and only about 26 per cent were over three years old. These figures have been compiled by the Wall Street Journal.

During the entire depression motor car owners have been deciding "to make the old car do another year." This is creating a condition which eventally must result in one of two alternatives. Either the number of automobiles in operation must undergo a substantial setback or belated replacement of worn out cars must occur.

* * *

Registration Shows Slight Decrease

IN 1931 FOR the first time in the history of the industry, total automobile registrations declined. They dropped to 25,814,803 vehicles from 26,545,281 in 1930. It is logical to assume that a further decline will be recorded for the present year. Some of the decrease represents cars put in storage which will be returned to use as general business improves. In view of the economic strain upon the country, the slump in automobile registrations does not appear to have been particularly great. The American public seems to be clinging to motor car transportation with amazing tenacity. There are many other possessions in what may be called luxury class which are relinquished with much less reluctance.

The present depression may have marked the peak in the per capita ownership of automobiles but the American people is not going to let the number of cars fall far below the peak without a hard struggle.

If we assume that the number of registered automobiles is to stay close to the 26,000,000 figure, there are certain conclusions which inevitably follow:

* * *

Replacement Must Average 3,300,000

AUTOMOBILES WEAR OUT. After a certain period, the cost of keeping an old car in repair makes it cheaper to buy a new one. If we assume the average life of a car at eight years, during which it will have two or more owners, about 3,300,000 new cars and trucks must be sold in each year in order to maintain a registration of 26,000,000.

Against this replacement requirement, which will total 9,900,000 cars in the three depression years ending with 1932, the actual purchases appear likely to total only about 6,600,000. In other words, there will be about 3,300,000 car owners running machines which will have passed the time when they should have gone to the junk pile.

These owners cannot replace these cars unless they make money at their jobs or in their businesses. But if the expected recovery does take place, the automobile industry will be called upon to make up for this delayed replacement demand in addition to the normal replacement requirements.

Even if three years are needed to catch up, the automobile industry will have an average production of 4,400,000 cars and trucks a year for the next three years. Such an output will not surpass the peak year of over 5,000,000 cars, but it will give the automobile makers a highly satisfactory volume of sales and reasonably good profits when recent operating economies are taken into consideration.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Bank clearings this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, were $3,803,039,000, a reduction of 36.7 per cent from last year. At New York City, clearings were $2,611,953,000, a loss of 35.2 per cent, while for the cities outside of New York the amount was $1,191,086,000, 39.8 per cent smaller.

MERCHANDISERS NOW BOOSTING PURCHASES

By MERRLYE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The summer rise in prices of securities and fundamental commodities has induced increased purchases by retailers in the wholesale market for general merchandise, according to John McKinlay, president, Marshall Field and Company.

Responding to my inquiry concerning the business reaction to the country wide improvement in sentiment, Mr. Kinlay pointed out:

Mr. Rukeyser

"During the past several weeks, dating from about August 1, the tonnage of our wholesale shipments has substantially exceeded the same period of 1931. Moreover, sales for future shipment have substantially exceeded in dollars and cents the same period of last year.

SENTIMENT BETTER

"The week before last was 'Chicago Market Week.' There was an unusually large attendance of retail merchant buyers; in fact the crowd was considerably larger than at any time since we opened the merchandise mart two years ago.

"A distinctly better feeling was manifest among these merchants. They were encouraged by the advancing prices, both of commodities and stocks, and they acted accordingly. We are very hopeful that this better tone will be sustained.

"Our mills were operated during 1931 on part time. Most of them are now running full time, some of them two shifts a day.

"In recent buying there has been a decided trend toward better quality merchandise. In the countrywide scramble for lower prices a vast amount of unworthy merchandise has found its way to the market. The public has become conscious of this uneconomical lowering of standards and is demanding better goods. Leading merchants everywhere are emphasizing higher qualities in their advertising and promotion."

SEE EARNINGS GAIN

Much of the optimistic business comment has to do with prospective improvement in earnings before the end of the year. Most companies thus far have shown as a matter of fact very dismal profit results. One of the exceptional trend buckers is the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company, of Toledo, which got into the black in the first half of this year, whereas in the corresponding period of 1931 it showed a deficit of $172,092. Asked how this deficit had been transformed into a net income of $48,130, John D. Biggers, president, told me:

"Our business depends very largely upon the building and automotive industries so we have been confronted with a drastic reduction in sales volume accompanied by a decline in prices.

"Only one branch of our business seemed susceptible of logical expansion, that being safety glass for motor cars. We, therefore, intensified sales and advertising effort in this field with the result that sales during the first half of 1932 more than doubled in the face of a 50 per cent decline in automobile production. Thus safety glass sales were relatively four times as great as during the first half of 1931.

"Our entire organization loyally co-operated in reducing expenses all along the line but perhaps no one factor contributed as much to our improved showing as the increased public appreciation of the protective value of safety glass."

August Revenue Reflects Boost In U. S. Tax

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Miscellaneous internal revenue collections for August reflected the increase tax rates and new levies and exceeded those of the same month last year by $10,716,000, the Treasury announced.

The miscellaneous collection was $54,557,700 for the month and $96,984,300 for the July-August period, an increase of $1,787,000 over last year. Custom receipts of $42,992,000 fell off $30,000,000, while all receipts were $188,878,000, a decline of $47,000,000.

OIL, GASOLINE IMPORTS OFF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Crude oil and gasoline imports showed a marked decline in July compared with June before the excise tax on imports of these commodities became effective. Figures made public by the Commerce Department showed a decline in imports of crude petroleum from 262,292 barrels daily in June to 49,205 in July, the lowest daily average in many years. Gasoline imports dropped from the daily average of 43,871 barrels in June to 2,051 in July.

The excise tax on oil imports became effective June 21. Fuel and crude oil is taxed ½ cent a gallon, while gasoline is taxed 2½ cents a gallon.

Northwestern Line Loadings Higher

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Chicago, North Western Railway handled 93,509 revenue freight cars during August, compared with 83,164 in July and 129,121 in August, 1931.

In August the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad handled 96,953 cars of revenue freight as compared with 82,019 in July and 132,173 in August, 1931.

American Woolen Advances Prices

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—American Woolen Company has advanced all uniform cloth worsteds 5 cents a yard, and raises quotations on two men's wear boucle overcoatings, and withdraws 61 men's wear worsted suitings for sale in departments 1 and 2. The company also has withdrawn several numbers of department 4 women's wear.

Ford to Resume Operations Tuesday

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Officials of the Ford Motor Company today announced that the plant, closed three weeks ago, would reopen September 6.

The officials added that only those employes who were working at the time of the shutdown are expected to return to work.

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—William B. Mayo, chief engineer of Ford Motor Company and head of the aeronautical division, has retired.

STEEL OUTPUT UPTURN SEEN NEXT WEEK

By R. E. V. LUTY

No forerunners of the expected improvement in the steel trade became visible this week, but no really marked improvement was expected so soon.

Steel ingot production is estimated at about 14 per cent as in four weeks preceding, but production appears to have been a shade lighter in the last week or two than formerly. There has been so little variation since the end of June that the official report is awaited to see if August ran above or below the July rate.

Prognostigations as to steel began to turn in favorable direction at the middle of July and became stronger week by week. The more common view has been that distinct improvement would first become visible a week or two after Labor Day, but some observers had it that nothing very pronounced might be seen before the early part of October.

BACKLOG UP LTTLE

While absence of concrete evidence of improvement is a trifle disconcerting, there are definite predictions in some quarters that next week will witness a marked increase in mill operations. Labor Day will be generally observed, but as technically it is not a steel mill holiday the other days would have to be one-fifth bigger to compensate in the official reckoning of the producing rate.

There are various reports of orders having been placed in August for execution after September 1, representing a departure from the almost universal practice for a long time of ordering only for very prompt shipment. Certainly no large tonnage has thus accumulated on mill books and in some products there is none.

In the same connection there are definite predictions that the Steel Corporation's statement of unfilled obligations, due a week hence, will show a substantial increase during August, breaking the monotony of 16 months of decreases, averaging 127,000 tons a month. Precedents are about evenly divided as to whether August should ordinarily show an increase or a decrease. April to July, inclusive, have more commonly shown decreases.

FORD TO RESUME

Following the slight decline in the sheet market reported a week ago, the pipe trade is adopting a new pricing system on standard pipe, and it appears that some extra concessions developed recently which it is hoped the new system will eliminate.

Scarcely any steel at all has moved to the automobile industry in the last three or four weeks and a mild upturn is now expected as Ford will resume next week and some other makers are preparing to bring out new models.

Tin plate mills have lately been averaging a 35 per cent operation. Nearly all tin plate for packers' cans has now been shipped and with only general line demand to depend on somewhat lighter operation of the industry is in prospect.

Wall Street Spectator

Renewed Commodity Advance Important Business Factor

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—The market is doing a handsome job of trying to create cheer over the Labor Day holiday.

With the laggard industrials joining in the rise and stocks like Steel and Telephone providing leadership, the ability of the market to go into new high ground for the recovery added fresh confidence in speculative circles.

Nor should the resumption of the rise in commodities be ignored. This is the most important thing in the business picture as it promises much-needed purchasing power.

Yesterday's rise in wheat was accompanied by the report that the real move was on with the objective of 70 cents a bushel.

Bullish stories on wheat and commodities are widespread. One report given credence in well-posted circles is that Washington will announce in the next few days that the Farm Board has sold the last of its wheat holdings, which explains why Case Threshing was included in the buying list flashed by one smart group late yesterday.

Further good buying has been coming into Delaware and Hudson on the belief it is far behind the rest of the rails in view of its unusually strong cash position.

New Bond Offerings Small for Week

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—New bond issues formally offered this week aggregated only $2,500,000 and compare with $10,165,000 offered this week and $7,514,277 in the like week in 1931.

DOLLAR DRAWS CONTINENT AGAIN

PARIS, Sept. 3.—An idea is gaining headway here that before long people on this side of the Atlantic will be as eager to acquire dollars as they were lately anxious to get rid of them, and that consequently gold soon will be moving back to the United States in substantial quantities.

This thought has been promoted by, among other things, odd shipments of gold from Europe to America, cessation of the increase of the Bank of France's gold reserve and some slight decrease thereof, recent decline of Belgian currency to the gold export point on the dollar, some relaxation in the European chase after American eagles for hoarding purposes, and the approach of the season for importation of raw materials and for the departure of American tourists.

POSITION FORTIFIED

The idea has been strengthened by the sudden recovery of Wall street prices, which has aroused keen interest among the speculative minded. Furthermore, in France, which would have to bear the brunt of any gold drain toward America, there has been a disposition to dwell on the seriousness of the budget situation and the depression in the export trade as indicating sooner or later some distrust of the franc and withdrawal at least of foreign capital that has taken refuge here.

All these arguments have their force. It is commonly admitted that the chances are that no more gold will be seen coming from America and that the dollar is in a position of greater strength than it has been for years, if only because all European central banks have liquidated their holding of it and for the most part brought the proceeds home in gold, while European private holdings of dollar notes have probably been reduced to insignificant proportions.

LONDON MAY SHARE

But it has also to be admitted that Europe has received such a harsh disillusionment about America as the land of eternal prosperity that a good long time will be needed to induce it to place heavy stakes there.

Evidence of steady business improvement, rather than sudden and feverish revival of the stock market, is necessary to restore European appetite for the dollar. And good observers incline to think that even if political commotions in Europe or rapid decline of the financial strength of France should intervene, continental capital might be attracted as much to London as to New York in the next year or two.

MANY STOCKS MAKE HIGHS FOR MOVE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The stock market came to the close of the week with marked cheerfulness today.

Week-end profit-taking was absorbed on an advancing market, which carried many issues to new highs for the recovery. By the second hour, many issues were up 1 to more than 2 points, with virtually all important groups participating.

In steels, both Gulf States and Youngstown rose about 2 to new highs for 1932, and United States Steel and Bethlehem were up more than 1. American Telephone, Santa Fe, United Aircraft and Allied Chemical rose 2 or more points. Trading was in substantial volume.

Wall Street aproached the Labor Day week-end with many traders already having left town, but with speculative quarters decidedly enthusiastic over the prospect of business quickening after the holiday, which formally marks the end of the vacation season. Dow-Jones estimated that steel operations in the Youngstown area next week would jump to 20 per cent of capacity, from the low level of 10 per cent this week.

The renewed strength in principal commodities yesterday, after recent setbacks, was an important factor in the week-end cheerfulness. The Annalist weekly index of wholesale commodity prices advanced 1.4 to 95.6, a new high for 1932, and about half way between the low of June and the level of a year ago. Raw cotton, however, as well as various cotton fabrics, have advanced to levels above those of a year ago.

Sterling cables opened at $3.47⅞, up ⅛, while the French franc was a shade lower.

RETAIL TRADE GAINS HERE

A moderate improvement continues to be noticeable in buying at both wholesale and retail, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. The opening of city schools this week stimulated the demand for children's wearing apparel, and fall merchandise in both men's and women's wearing apparel is moving more freely.

While prices are low, there appears to be an advancing tendency in textile lines, and retailers, whose stocks are particularly low, have been buying much more freely, particularly in drygoods lines. As a whole sentiment seems more cheerful, and a gradual upturn in business is generally anticipated after Labor Day. There has been a moderate improvement in the sale of groceries and provisions, with prices averaging slightly higher. Demand for lumber, while still at a very low rate, shows a slight improvement.

Cotton Estimate Issued by Bennett

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—E. H. Miller, of J. E. Bennett & Co., cotton estimate makes condition 56.6, against 67.2 a month ago, when the government made it 65.6.

Indicated crop is 11,098,000 bales of 500 pounds, or under 11,000,000 running bales.

Lake Shipments Of Iron Ore Gain

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Iron ore shipments from upper lake ports in August totaled 721,587 tons, against 639,884 tons in July and 5,064,687 tons in August last year.

For the season to September 1 ore shipped totaled 1,749,927 tons, compared with 15,774,007 tons in the like 1931 period.

Grigsby-Grunow Pays Bond Interest

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Grigsby-Grunow Company has deposited funds with Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company to cover September 1 interest payment of about $75,000 on its first mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund bonds.

Raybestos-Manhattan Gains by Recent Rise in Rubber

The rally in the rubber market and improving sales volume have been the major factors in recent strength in Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc. The company manufactures brake linings, asbestos products and mechanical rubber goods. About 50 per cent of its volume is dependent on the automobile trade. During 1931 the company was facing the problem of falling inventory values, particularly in rubber. At present the rubber market is moving to the advantage of Raybestos. A large share of its sales of automotive brake linings are for replacement purposes. The unusually high proportion of old cars being operated at present is beginning to reflect in the demand for replacement brake linings. Raybestos is in a strong financial position, with over $500,000 in cash and current assets more than 19 times current liabilities. The stock is selling close to its high for the year of 12¾. It is on a 60-cent annual dividend basis. The company has no bonds or preferred stock.

With tentative plans being formulated for establishing the domestic copper industry on a more satisfactory basis and greater optimism prevailing regarding the prospects for the red metal, the domestic price was advanced to 6 cents a pound yesterday, up only fractionally, but a full 1 cent advance from the recent low level. In some well-informed copper circles, it is predicted that a 7 cent a pound level for the metal is not unlikely within a comparatively short time now that commodity prices in general are displaying a more favorable trend.

Operations in the steel industry are likely to show a substantial increase next week, it is reported in circles close to this basic industry, and a gradual betterment throughout the fall months is generally anticipated. Some observers look for an increase to an 18 per cent operating rate during the coming week and predict that by the end of October production will be lifted to as high as 35 or 40 per cent. An advance of $1.50 a ton in the price of heavy melting scrap at Youngstown suggested that steel makers are buying raw materials rather heavily.

Loan Drop Points To Cash Buying Of Securities

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A rise in stock prices of almost 100 per cent, accompanied by no increase in brokers' loans of consequence, is one of the phenomena of the extraordinary past two months in the New York Stock Exchange.

The most obvious explanation of the sweeping advance, unaccompanied by an important increase in loans, would be that there had been heavy buying of stocks for which full payment was made in cash.

Undoubtedly the brokers' loan situation, showing a $10,000,000 decrease, was viewed bullishly. On the other hand, many large houses have thus far been able to look after their clients' debits with the result that the actual brokers' loan situation so far as customers are concerned is hidden because many houses have not had recourse to banks to look after their expanded business. Of course all hands have been cautious and debits have been kept low by large switching operations on the part of clients.

Hershey Chocolate Corporation should benefit substantially from the sustained advance in cocoa and sugar prices, especially in view of the fact that the company took advantage of record low commodity markets of a few weeks ago and stocked up heavily to a point where inventories are now well above normal. The advance of one cent from the July lows in the cocoa market is of great importance to this company.

Industrial Rayon Corporation has experienced an unprecedented demand for rayon yarn and cloth during the last few weeks. Orders have poured in with such rapidity recently that the company has exhausted its inventory of goods and is operating at 100 per cent of capacity at both the Cleveland and Covington (Va.) plants. Despite this increase in operations, which doubles the rate started on August 11 after a complete shutdown for a month, the company has been forced to turn business away.

News and Views

QUEBEC MINERAL OUTPUT

Gold production in Quebec province during July totaled 37,145 ounces, an increase of 58 per cent over July, 1931. Silver production was 50,934 ounces, an increase of 36 per cent. Asbestos production declined to 7,171 tons from 13,596, sand, gravel and other by-products to 340 tons from 597, clay products to 96,995 tons from 249,629, lime to 5,464 tons from 8,938, cement to 242,931 barrels from 506,446. July cement output, however, was above average for the first six months of the year while clay products output was below monthly average for the first half year.

COTTON SHEETS UP 5%

Pepperell Manufacturing has shortened discounts on Lady-Pepperell sheets and pillow cases by 5 per cent, equivalent to a price advance of slightly over that amount, following similar action on regular Pepperell sheets a week ago. The company also warns the trade that there is a strong possibility that discounts will be further shortened without notice. It is taking all orders on sheets subject to revision as to quantity, and reserves the further privilege of refusing any orders submitted.

LIQUID CARBONIC

At a special meeting stockholders of Liquid Carbonic Corporation approved a plan to reduce the amount of capital represented by no-par shares of stock to $30 a share from $40.91. The reduction permits transfer of approximately $6,615,489 to capital surplus from capital account, leaving approximately $10,272,180 as stated capital.

LUMBER ORDERS TOP OUTPUT

Lumber production for the week ended August 13 totaled 109,299,000 feet, orders amounted to 136,144,000 feet and shipments 125,364,000 feet, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association reports. The large excess of orders over shipments is attributed to the low level of production rather than improvement in new business.

NATURAL GAS STOCKS HIT HIGHS

The upward movement in stocks on the Pittsburgh Exchange continued today, with moderate gains recorded throughout most of the list. This reflected the strong tone of the New York market.

The gas stocks forged into new high ground for the year. Columbia Gas surpassed its previous record price for 1932. This stock has been one of the most sensational performers of the present bull movement. Its price of 20⅛ at the opening this morning compares with a low for the year of 4½.

The stocks of Columbia's companion companies, Western Public Service and Lone Star, also sold at their highs for the year. These organizations are controlled by officials of Columbia Gas. All three companies have been engaged in development work throughout the depression. The extended operating facilities will be reflected sharply in earnings when general business recovers, in the opinion of officials.

Wheat Acreage Cut By Texas Growers

DALLAS, Sept. 3.—The Texas winter wheat acreage in the Panhandle will be reduced about 10 per cent this fall. Many growers will let their fields grow up in volunteer wheat without breaking the soil at all.

CRITIC APPLAUDS MARION DAVIES' NEW PICTURE

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

"Irony"

You say that I am not the lass you knew,
The gallant madcap who was oh! so gay—
The maid who swore she never could be true,
Who kissed and blithely went her sinful way,
You mourn that wicked rebel of the past,
The savage child who loved but had no heart—
You sigh and say I was too good to last,
So saying you make ready to depart.

It's obvious for you I've lost all charm,
Now for the first time I have seen you yawn;
You tolerantly smile and pat my arm—
A cool fraternal nod—and you are gone!

Ironical, for you to say you're through
Since I've reformed to prove my love for you.

Improperly Seated!

An hamateur team of comedians playing at the Palace finally prevailed upon Billy Rose, the producer, to come to the theater and catch their act.

"Be sure to get a good seat," they advised him, "we both have colds today and you'll be able to catch our material better if you're down in front."

Rose came to the matinee and asked the manager for a front-row pew. Five minutes later, he walked out. The manager caught him in the lobby and asked why he was leaving.

"I said I wanted a good seat," declared Rose.

"No," chirped Rose, "I could hear every word those comics were saying."

Add Berle:

Milton Berle, who is somewhat in a daze brought on by the onslaught of Broadway comedians against the material he uses in his act, ran into Al Boasberg, the comedy writer, on 42nd St. yesterday.

"Hello, Funny Fellow," Berle hailed him.

"Hello, Composite Comedian," Boasberg retorted.

"Thanks," replied Milton. "I appreciate that, coming from you."

Good Investment, Anyway!

Ray Perkins knows a girl so dumb she put all her money in 2-cent stamps because she had inside information postage was going to 3 cents.

No Sense of Direction

A drummer in one of the Broadway bands, playing an engagement in Jersey City, had been left behind by his fellow musicians. Suddenly realizing he had but five minutes in which to catch a ferryboat, he started on the run with all his paraphernalia on his back.

Reaching the dock, he noticed the ferryboat was about 6 feet out. Taking a running start, he leaped for the boat and, luck being with him, made it.

"Haw, haw," he haw'd to a stranger, "I just made it."

Spanish Folly!

England, Germany and France
Worry over high finance
Wasting all their energies
Foolishly on things like these...

The Spaniards hadn't much to do,
And so their nation grew and grew;
They quite enjoyed their leisure, too...
(And so would I...and wouldn't you?)

Wilfred J. Funk.

Afterthought!

A very important chain theater operator was being shown through one of the Hollywood studios, according to Frank Britton, and being one of the company's best customers, his escorts showed him the courtesy usually accorded to royalty.

Finally he came to the president's office and the latter was informed by one of his secretaries of the important visitor's presence. Being an extremely high-blood pressure executive and not being in any too good humor, he bellowed:

"I can't see him. I won't see him! If he insists on seeing me, tell him to go to blazes and to take all his theaters with him. And tell him I said so."

The secretary walked to the door and was about to take the message out with him when the president yelled:

"But be sure not to antagonize him."

Oops!

In these turbulent Wall St. days, I. Hoffman points out, it's a wise stock that knows its own par.

On Exhibit!

An uninvited and unwelcomed flicker queen crashed the Lilyan Tashman-Edmund Lowe party to the newspaper lads at the Waldorf in the hope of cashing in on a little publicity.

Approaching Miss Tashman, the waning star blustered:

"Oh, it's been a long time since we've seen each other."

Miracles?

The telegraph editor walked into his office with a cable from Leningrad. Throwing it on the m. e.'s desk he said:

"I can't make heads or tails out of this, boss."

The m. e. regarded the cable for a few minutes and then buzzed the office boy.

Hymn of Hate

The man who doesn't care for poetry,
And sees no beauty in the rolling sea;
The man, I say, whose fiber doesn't thrill
When robins carol on his window sill,

Perceives no song, no godly harmonies,
Has, of the joys of life, a scant amount,
(Though, as a rule, a handsome bank account.)

—Mildred Bailey.

Subs Preferred

The Theater Guild announced some time ago that it would use nothing but American actors in its production of "The Good Earth," now in rehearsal. Accordingly, Henry Paul Senber, a mime who specializes in Oriental characterizations, spent the entire summer in front of a mirror discipling his face to simulate a Yangtze boatman.

Confident that he would be handed a part, he walked on the Guild stage Monday morning. In a few minutes an assistant director approached him.

"I say, old man," he offered apologetically, "I'm sorry but there's nothing in this for you. You see we're not using real Chinese!"

Four Marx Brothers Do Crazy Things In Warner

By JAMES A. BAUBIE

Puck must have had the Four Marx Brothers in mind when he said: "What fools these mortals be!"

The only thing the picture proves is that there is no limit to the brothers' nonsense. When they were a riot in "Cocoanuts," movie-goers thought they had used all their quips. Then along came "Monkey Business," and everyone felt sure that had drained them of their last chuckle. But "Horse Feathers" is the supreme idiocy of them all.

It opens like an old-time musical comedy when Groucho arrives to become president of Huxley College. He sings his inaugural address while the dignified faculty and trustees, in long beards, dance about him like dainty chorines.

"Is there anything further, father?" Zeppo asks.

"Anything further, father? That can't be right. Isn't it: Anything father, further—oh, just call me papa."

Wagstaff decides what the college needs is a good football team, so he visits a speakeasy in search of players, and then goes to the apartment of the college widow, played by the very pretty Thelma Todd.

She lures Wagstaff into a canoe hoping to wheedle out of him the football signals the Huxley team is going to use against Darwin. In the middle of the lake Groucho confides to her that it is the first time he has been in a canoe since he saw "An American Tragedy."

The four brothers travel at a dizzy speed to the climax—the great football game between Huxley and Darwin. Chico, as the bootlegger, is quarterback for Huxley, and when he isn't calling signals in rhyme, he interpolates with his unique piano playing. And, of course, Harpo becomes serious long enough to play beautifully on his harp.

Harpo is the hero of the game. He makes one touchdown after another by loading several balls into a rubbish wagon and driving madly down the field for a wagon load of goals.

And lest we forget, Zeppo—the unknown quantity—actually does something in this picture. He sings a love ditty in a way that reminds you of Bing Crosby.

There's one word in the dictionary that was coined just for this occasion — And that's "CRAZY."

Gunmen and Crooners Blasted by Tracy In Stanley

By MILDRED FILLMORE

If it is possible to immortalize a newspaper columnist, then that is exactly what's accomplished by "Blessed Event," the greatest fourth estate film since "Front Page," new Stanley attraction.

Obviously Walter Winchell, New York columnist, who originated the phrase "blessed event" in deference to old Doc Stork, is the personality about whom the picture is woven.

Starting with a bang and ending with a couple of bangs, so to speak, this talkie is just all a talkie should be: fast as a gunman's trigger finger, dramatic as an execution and just enough S. A. to make it human.

And now a word for the chap who blesses this "Blessed Event" with some of the neatest bit of acting ever to honor the newspaper guild—Mr. Lee Tracy, who plays the columnist so gallantly and so smartly that even Mr. Winchell was pleased. And be it remembered it was this same Mr. Tracy who made a hit as the reporter in the stage play, "Front Page."

Pittsburgh's own favorite son, Dick Powell, has a happy feature role in the film as the crooning radio star whom Tracy detects and doesn't miss an opportunity to "ride" in his column and radio talks. Powell appears in several lengthy "shots," and his voice, which is really very pleasing, is heard during several additional scenes. All in all, it should please any master of ceremonies.

Tracy, an ad salesman, gets his break while subbing for the regular columnist. He gets his paper into scores of libel suits, but he also jumps its circulation when he begins printing expected births, calling them "blessed events."

In the course of his columning, he ruins many a reputation and builds many another, stepping on toes here and there and helping others up the ladder of success, always printing the news just as he knows it.

Then he trods pretty hard on a "big shot" gangster who sends around one of his henchmen to warn Tracy. One of the best bits in the film is the scene between Tracy and the henchman, as the slightly built writer enacts an execution in the electric chair, giving the "bad man" the "conniptions."

In all, he is a kind-hearted, fearless reporter, whose love is divided between his column and his sweetheart, Mary Brian.

Tracy's disrespect for Powell, the crooner, brings the story to a climax when he is warned to stay away from the opening of the singer's new night club. A gang of gunmen is planted in the club "to give him the works" if he dares to come.

Marion Davies Earns Acclaim in Role Of 'Blondie'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Every one knows the story of the good little girl who goes out into a wicked world of glamor and glitter, meets all sorts of temptations, and comes out without one golden tress singed or the weeniest smudge on her cute little nose. That is the story told in "Blondie of the Follies," the new screen play for Marion Davies, shown at the Penn yesterday. It is a large canvas and Marion Davies has the center of the picture most of the time. She lives in a tenement, in the section where the horse still survives as a friend of man, and she has a father who is as good as gold, and a chum who is intent upon a career. This chum, played with effect by the old favorite Billie Dove, gets her career, and incidentally falls very much in love with Larry, in whom we recognize that handsome though virtuous devil Robert Montgomery. Robert likes blondes, and so in the end Marion just cannot get away from him, though she promised her pal that she wouldn't take him away.

Mr. Seibel

Before the alluring Marion finally is caught she has to undergo many trials and tribulations. She gets a champagne jag—in a scrap aboard a yacht she and Billie Dove fall into the bay where it is wet but not deep—and last of all she is hurled into the orchestra and breaks a leg or two. Even at the final fadeout her troubles are not over, because Larry Montgomery appears with a crew of surgeons, and they are going to break her leg all over and reset it. Which relieves the audience, who would not like to see Marion walk on crutches in her next picture.

This story has many opportunities for every sort of acting, from arch humor to pretty pathos. Marion Davies runs the gamut intelligently and vivaciously. Billie Dove is a worthy second. Robert Montgomery is the good and true young millionaire. Zasu Pitts has a few scenes in which she is irresistible as usual.

And then comes a picture of "Our Gang," which is a joy from first to last. Juvenile and canine comedians keep the audience in an uproar, which ends in general satisfaction when the dog-catcher, who is the villain of the piece, gets his. Yes, it's another great week at the Penn.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BISHOP, Cal., Sept. 3.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

A way up here in the mountains we got the news by Indian runners that "Little Big Chief" Mayor Walker had resigned. Now how is New York going to tell when Mayor Walker has resigned, and when he ain't? They can't tell from his actions.

Will Rogers

Moccasin talk just tells me that "Ma" Ferguson is probably nominated. I would like to ask a favor of my friends, no matter where they be, if they have any flowers, old wreaths or crepe bows, to please send 'em to Amon G. Carter, of Fort Worth, Tex. It's rather a pathetic case. He had always stayed clear of politics, but the summer heat got him, and he started to actively campaign against "Jim" Ferguson. One hundred and twenty million and he picks out "Jim" to argue politics with. It would be like me arguing lip rouge with Greta Garbo. So send the poor devil any consolation you can. Yours, WILL.

Sun's Eclipse In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Probably the most remarkable pictures ever made of one of nature's greatest and most glamorous spectacles, the total eclipse of the sun, is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, shown in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. The pictures of the totality were made at Fryeburg, Me., by Hearst Metrotone News in co-operation with scientists of Northwestern University, who also talk on the amazing display. Giant cameras constructed specially for the work at enormous cost show every phase of the majestic celestial spectacle. These pictures will not only bring to motion picture audiences throughout the world the most comprehensive and impressive scenes of the eclipse, but will serve as an aid to scientists seeking the solution of solar riddles as yet unsolved. In addition there are scenes of the millions in and around New York who viewed the phenomenon, and a talk by The Globe Trotter.

Exciting scenes of automobile drivers risking their necks in vast clouds of dust in Woodbridge, N. J., are presented. There are also pictures of the races at Middletown, N. Y., where even more perilous chances are taken and hair-raising skids are numerous.

America's progress in the air is vividly exemplified at Cleveland, where the National Air Races are being held. Army Marine and civilian aviators join the demonstration, which includes flying at terrific speed, amazingly accurate bombing, and impressive formation flying by large fleets of planes.

Eastern boys and girls introduce aquaplaning to Estes Park, Col., with decidedly novel trimmings. The motor power is furnished by rough-riding cowboys.

The latest wonder in printing presses is presented as a demonstration of the amazing progress that has been made in the graphic arts. This monster mechanical marvel, a color rotary press, has just been installed in the New York plant of the Hearst Publications. It is the largest in the world and is one of 13 similar presses which will be installed in various plants of Hearst newspapers throughout the country. Three of these gigantic machines, of which this is the first, will be located in New York, where they will supplant other presses in the printing of the American Weekly, comic sections of the New York American and the Evening Journal's Saturday magazine and comic sections. It has a running speed of 28,000 forty-page papers an hour. This monster weighs 300 tons, is 60 feet long, 20 feet high, and 15 feet wide, and represents an investment of over $350,000.

MAY DROP BOTH PITCHER AND PILOT

THAT THE OWNERS of the Cleveland baseball club will have to get rid of either Manager Roger Peckinpaugh or Pitcher Wesley Ferrell before another season comes around there is hardly any doubt. But in trying to make a decision between the two, the men in control of the Indians will be on the horns of the well-known dilemma. A pitcher good for 20 victories or more per season, who in four years has won 90 games against only 46 defeats, could not be replaced easily. It might be less difficult to find a capable new manager. But the dismissal of Peckinpaugh, on the other hand, would be an admission that the star pitcher is greater than the constituted authority of the club, and that would put a new pilot under a heavy handicap. There would be two strikes on him before he started.

Wesley Ferrell

When any one player is bigger than the club, that club won't get anywhere. Discipline and respect for authority are among the main essentials to any team's success. Both Peckinpaugh and Ferrell are known to be unpopular with the majority of the directors. Possibly the latter will decide in the end not to keep either of them.

TENNIS EXPERTS PRONOUNCE the new national doubles champions, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, two of the greatest money players in the game, athletes who play just well enough to win in the primary stages, but who can raise themselves to the proper pitch when an important point or match is desired. It is expected Vines, at least, will show the same quality in the singles title tourney opening today.

The critics say that Vines in particular gives them this impression. The United States and Wimbledon singles champion appears to loaf lazily on the court, looking mediocre. Then he suddenly bobs up in a tight spot and crashes through the needed shot.

THE WORLD SERIES of 1932 will be the seventh for the Yankees in 12 seasons. In six series they have drawn, with their opponents, a grand total of $5,337,885 and 1,485,581 paid admissions.

One of these series, that with the Cardinals in 1926, set some records that still stand. These are 63,600 for attendance at one game; 328,051 at a series, and $1,207,864 for receipts at one series.

WHILE THE DISCUSSION of Dizzy Dean is on, Catcher Jimmy Wilson goes so far as to pronounce him the best pitcher in the National League. "I have caught a lot of good pitchers," Wilson remarked. "Bill Hallahan is a bear. Grover Alexander was a marvel. The smartest hurler I ever caught was Hal Carlson. But I've never seen anybody quite like Dean. All season he has not made the same mistake twice. If any batter nicks him for a base hit on a high pitched ball, that batter will wait until doomsday before he gets another pitch from Dean just like it. Diz may sound conceited and swell-headed, but he means it all in fun. He rides all of us. Frank Frisch is the greatest ball player the National League has had in my time, but Dean will tell him he doesn't know a thing about hitting. I was in the majors when Dean was in grammar school, but he kids me, too. But it's just a laugh to all of us, and that's all Diz means it for in his own way."

Jimmy Wilson

DEAN IS A great pitcher partly because he's a great ball player, Wilson says, pointing out that only two sacrifice bunts have been successfully pulled against him all season. They were drag bunts past him. He covers more ground in the infield than a fast shortstop, Jimmy declares.

"The fellow is a genius," Wilson adds. "Here he is only 21, leading the National League in strikeouts in his first season, and leading a darned good pitching staff in victories. He has everything, from color to stuff. He can throw anything all day long, and has plenty of courage too."

ELMER KNETZER, veteran Brentwood pitcher, who started the season with Wilkes-Barre in the New York-Pennsylvania League, is now hurling for the Hazelton club in the same circuit and showing his usual good form.

At Hazelton, Knetzer is under the management of a former Pittsburgher in the person of Jake Pitler. Jake himself is still holding down second base and showing the way to a lot of younger players.

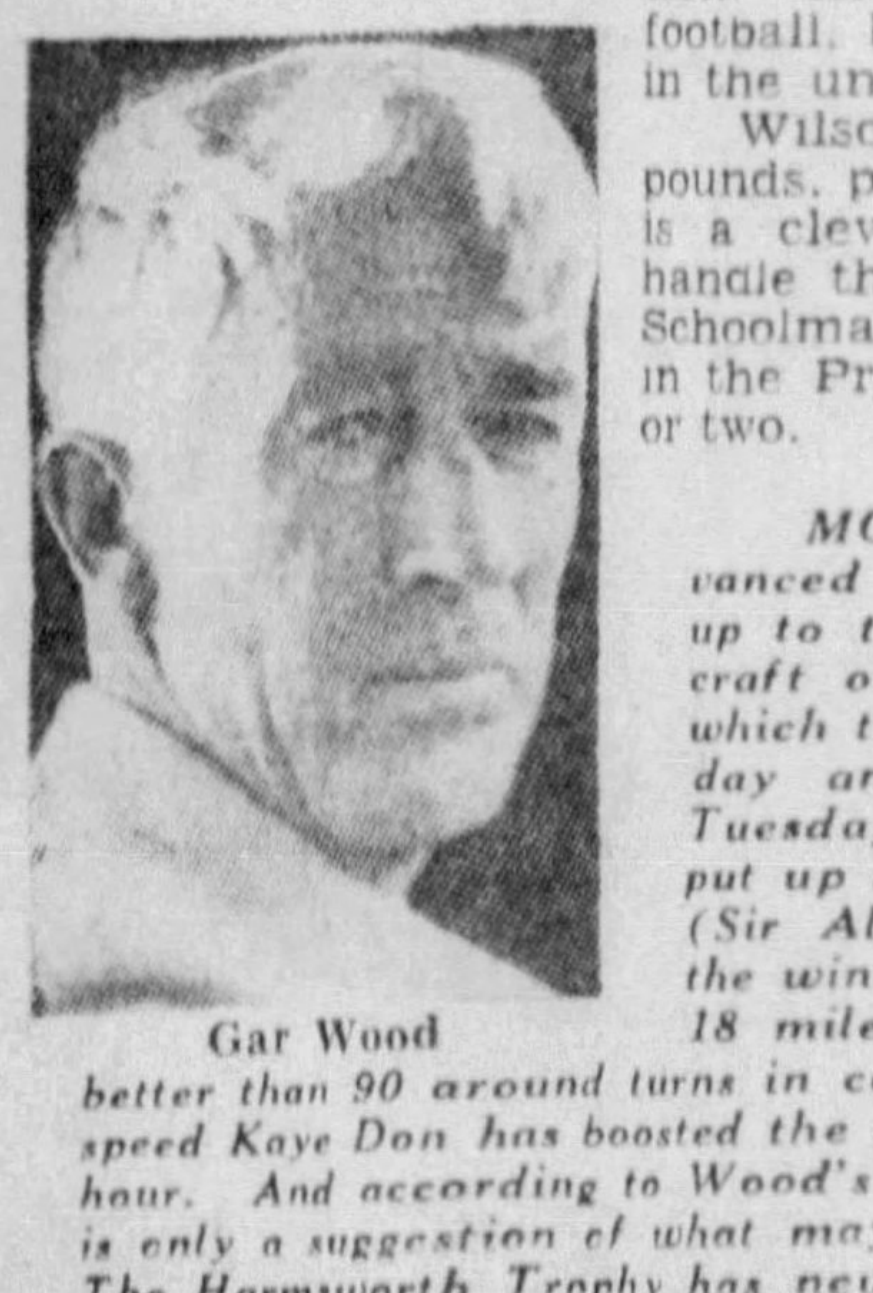
THE FACT THAT Ernie Schaaf, knocked out less than 10 seconds before the close of the final round by Max Baer, and cold several minutes, would have received the decision if he had won the majority of the earlier rounds, as in the case of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's getting the newspaper verdict when kayoed in the same way by Stanley Ketchel back in 1909, has the fight fans buzzing again as to the justice of the system. It has long been a source of debate. When Tim Hurst was making Pittsburgh his headquarters he used to say that if he were refereeing such a bout he would call it a draw. One of the latest suggestions is that the knocked out man be given the usual between-rounds time of one minute, and that if he fails to recover in that period the other fighter be credited with a kayo. Many old-timers continue to object to the modern system. They look on it from the angle that, even though it is too late to complete a count of 10 before the final bell rings, the floored fighter is not on his feet at the finish, and in their eyes that's a knockout.

THREE FORMER FOOTBALL stars at Carnegie High School will enter Washington and Jefferson College this fall, and are all set for a determined effort to win regular positions on the freshman eleven. They are Bob Chidlow, Pete Drost and Bill Wilson, among the best players ever developed by Coach Dick Schumacher, who also is a W. & J. man.

Chidlow, a young giant scaling 202 pounds in condition, was a regular tackle for four years at Carnegie High and one of the outstanding linemen in the history of the Chartiers Valley school. He was a fine defensive player and an excellent blocker. Chidlow is in first-class shape after working all summer on a farm.

FOR TWO YEARS after his graduation from Carnegie High in 1930, Drost was a regular at Wyoming Seminary, the institution that gave Pitt a number of stars. He weighs 192 and plays a guard position. In addition to making his mark in football, Pete is a good wrestler, performing in the unlimited division.

Wilson is a slashing halfback of 170 pounds, packing lots of speed and power. He is a clever forward passer and also can handle the receiving end in expert fashion. Schoolmates predict he will be a sensation in the Presidents' backfield in another year or two.



Gar Wood

MOTORBOAT RACING HAS advanced far through the years leading up to the present struggle between the craft of Gar Wood and Kaye Don, in which the second heat will be run Monday and the third, if necessary, on Tuesday. When the trophy was first put up 29 years ago by Lord Northcliffe (Sir Alfred Harmsworth), of England, the winning boat, Napier, averaged only 18 miles an hour. Now they're doing better than 90 around turns in competition, and for straightaway speed Kaye Don has boosted the world record to 119.81 miles per hour. And according to Wood's predictions, this amazing speed is only a suggestion of what may be expected in years to come. The Harmsworth Trophy has never left these shores since Wood regained it with Miss America I in 1920. This is the seventh time England has challenged for it.

DUDLEY MEETS DUTRA; WALSH PLAYS CREAVY

ST. PAUL, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—It was Olin Dutra, the strapping par-smasher from Santa Monica, Cal., against Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., and champion Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., opposed to the surprising Frank Walsh, of Chicago, today as the National Professional Golf show entered the semi-finals.

Gone were the long shots, Al Collins, of Kansas City; Ralph Stonehouse, mighty little Hoosier from Indianapolis, and Herman Barron, from Portchester, N. Y. Out of the struggle, too, was Bobby Cruickshank, New York's wee Scot with a deadly punch.

DUTRA, DUDLEY A NATURAL

Nothing but sizzling struggles were anticipated today as the four members of the tournament's last man's club opened their drives for Sunday's final, but the one between Dutra and Dudley was regarded as the "natural" with the odds fluttering strongly toward the Pacific Coast star, now in the midst of his greatest year in golf.

Dutra, winner of the championship medal, has been 12 under par since the tournament opened and has brushed aside his opponents with ease. Dudley hasn't shown quite that good a game but did display his nerve and stamina yesterday with a rousing rally that enabled him to defeat Al Collins, of Kansas City, after 38 holes.

In his sweep toward championship form this season, Dutra has won the Metropolitan Open, the North Shore Open at Chicago, and narrowly missed the National Open and the Western Open crowns. He has shattered four course records from coast to coast.

CREAVY BEATS CRUICKSHANK

Creavy was rated a favorite over Walsh, but the galleryites didn't look for anything like a setup. The Chicago star, recovered from a bad injury that forced him out of the winter tournaments, has galloped in with easy triumph, tumbling Cruickshank yesterday, 8 and 7, to join the champion in the semi-final of the lower bracket. The Keller course is 6,686 yards long and has par of 72.

SOCCER TEAMS ORGANIZE

The Keystone Soccer League, of the district's best, practically was organized at a special meeting at the Bridgeville Owls' Club last night.

Heidelberg, the former national amateur champions, Shannon Morrys, West Penn champions, who will change their name to Zoneys this season; Morgan, Bridgeville, Gallatin and the German Sport Club attended the meeting and signed up with the league. It is quite possible that Cecil also will enter the loop.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON—A FISH THAT IS A CANDLE—The Oolakan's scientific name is Taleichthys Pacificus. It is a member of the salmon family, and is usually converted by the Indians of the Northwest into a candle. A strip of bark is passed through the fish as a wick, and the extreme oiliness of the body keeps the wick blazing when ignited. The Oolakan is also a favorite article of food in British Columbia. 6,500 HOTELS NAMED FOR AN EARL.

YANKEES NEAR NEW RECORD

The New Yorkers today had the opportunity to prove themselves the most consistent scoring machine in all the history of organized baseball.

If Joe McCarthy's sluggers put across a single run in today's final tussle with Washington at Yankee Stadium, they will eclipse the existing record of 132 consecutive games without a shutout set by the Philadelphia and Boston clubs of the National League in 1894.

EQUAL OLD MARK

They equaled the old mark yesterday, even while they were losing to the Senators, 7 to 1. For eight innings big Firpo Marberry turned them back monotonously, yielding only four hits, but in the ninth Babe Ruth drew a pass and Lou Gehrig crashed a triple.

It was the second straight day the league leaders preserved their record by the narrowest of margins, Alvin Crowder having blanked them until after one was out in the ninth. The defeat reduced the Yanks' lead over the Athletics to 9½ games.

BROWNS BEAT SOX

In the only other American League game, the St. Louis Browns took a tight one from Chicago, 3 to 1, George Blaeholder getting the better of Ted Lyons in a pitching duel.

Continuing their burning pace at the head of the National League, the Chicago Cubs chalked up their thirteenth straight victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 5. Hazen Cuyler and Mark Koenig hit home runs to lead a 14-hit attack on three Cardinal pitchers.

The Pittsburgh Pirates made it six victories in a row by beating Cincinnati, 2 to 1. Larry French allowed the Reds nine hits, as against six the winners could manage off hard-luck Red Lucas, but timely blows by Traynor and Thevenow made the difference.

LOCAL POLOISTS AWAY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 3.—The Pittsburgh Polo and Riding Club opens a three-game engagement with the Iroquois trio here today. The invaders arrived here this morning. The teams also will play tomorrow and Monday.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The history of the Harmsworth Cup motor boat races, being decided on the Detroit River today, Monday and Tuesday, with Gar Wood and Kay Don promising to travel at more than 100 miles an hour in their series of tests, dates back to 1903, when Lord Northcliffe (Sir Alfred Harmsworth) put up a $5,000 bronze trophy to establish the event . . . The first race was held at Queenstown, Ireland, now Cobh, and the winning speed was 19 miles an hour . . . Wood first won the trophy for the United States in 1930 and has defended it six times . . . Last year's race proved a fiasco when Don was lured into crossing the starting line ahead of the gun and was disqualified.

The National tennis tournamen which opens today at Forest Hills, L. I., is expected to bring together Ellsworth Vines, the defending champion, and Henri Cochet, the French star, again in the final round . . . They last clashed in the Davis Cup matches in France . . . Cochet won the National honors in 1928 . . . He is one of the most daring players on the courts and right now the outstanding amateur player in the game.

Harvey Harmon, former Pitt star, now coach of the University of Pennsylvania gridders, was among the spectators at the Olympic Games . . . He is back on the job now, and has a tough schedule ahead of him . . . Alex Fox, former Pitt captain and guard, will be back with him as an assistant . . . Dr. Tom Canon, of Carnegie, who recently upset the dope by winning the Cleveland district golf title, managed one of Pitt's first golf teams in the days when K. E. Davis was graduate athletic manager at the local institution, and Karl was among his rooters in the gallery when he won the title in the 37-hole final round match . . . Canon was graduated from the Pitt medical school in '29.

Davis, by the way, reports Western Reserve, where he has been the athletic chief for the last three years, is stepping right along in sports and will be stronger in football this season and is looking forward to the day when it will be able to jam the 82,000 seating capacity of the Cleveland Stadium for its games . . . It will play Ohio State, among other teams, next year.

The famous Pikes Peak automobile climb in Colorado will be held again on Labor Day . . . It is an ascent of 5,000 feet over a distance of 12 miles, 2,200 feet and a tough test for the cars due to the many curves, grades and the altitude . . . The record is 17 minutes 10.3 seconds, made last year by Charles Meyers . . . The event dates back to 1916 and has been staged annually since with the exception of the war years of 1917, 1918 and 1919.

Northwestern is preparing for another tough battle with its old enemy, Notre Dame, on the gridiron this fall, according to Pug Rentner, captain and backfield star, who was a visitor here this week . . . The Wildcats have lost only Russell from their backfield, but Coach Dick Hanley will have to replace two guards and one tackle . . . Rentner believes his team will make a great bid for the Big Ten title, and rates Minnesota and Michigan the hardest opposition for the laurels.—HARRY KECK.

Johnstone Betters Course Record

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 3.—Walter Johnstone, pro at the Butler Country Club, today holds the course record for the Latrobe Country Club as a result of his sub-par 66, shot yesterday.

Johnstone bettered the record of Kenneth Stuart, Latrobe pro, by two strokes, while playing in a foursome with Russell Sheldon, of St. Petersburg, Fla., F. O. Keltz, of Latrobe, and Stuart. The home pro's former mark was 68.

POLO MATCH TODAY

DUNBAR, Pa., Sept. 3.—The Deer Park Polo Club will play the Charleroi Robin Hoods here today in the first of a three-game series. Tomorrow afternoon and Monday will see the other games take place. Bliss Flaccus, of the Pittsburgh Polo Club, will ride No. 1 for the Deer Park trio.

U. S. CUP TEAM TOPS BRITONS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The British left a physical mark on the classic Walker Cup, the result of a wild shot by their only winner, besides proving they can "take it" and still come back fighting, but otherwise today they were still far short of menacing American golf supremacy.

Captained by the veteran and National Amateur champion, Francis Ouimet, a team of youngsters, ranging in years from 20 to 25, sustained the United States' unbroken winning streak in the International competition. The Americans won eight out of 12 matches, lost one and halved three others, a new record for deadlocks in Walker Cup play.

George T. Dunlap, Jr., and Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., both of New York; Charley Seaver, of Los Angeles, and Gus Moreland, of Dallas, all doing double duty, as well as the rising young Virginian, Billy Howell, dominated the two-day conflict.

The "freshmen" figured in seven of the eight triumphs, Dunlap, Seaver and Moreland each turning in two winning performances. Dunlap stood 10 up on Eric McRuvie at the end of the first round of their singles match. The New Yorker registered a 66, five under par, for the Country Club's layout. He bettered the course record and set a new low mark for Walker Cup competition. He went on to defeat McRuvie, 10 and 9.

Britain's lone victory was scored by Leonard Crawley, over the veteran George Voight, of New York, 1 up on the thirty-sixth hole.

GOLF PLAY CARDED

The annual fall tourney of the Pittsburgh Traffic Club will be held at the Longue Vue Country Club Wednesday, September 28, according to announcement made yesterday. All officers from the East and Middle West sections will participate.

The last Saturday baseball spectacle of the Pirate home schedule will be staged at Forbes Field this afternoon, the Cincinnati Reds to lend a hand in the festivities. A veteran actor has been studying his part for a few days, but when and if Eppa Jeppa Rixey steps upon Fogarty Knoll today he is due to have a lot of angry guns trained on him. Whether they will prove effective is another question.

The good-natured Virginian did not seem to be in the least worried as he limbered up for his mound task. No less than four times this year Eppa Jeppa has taken our measure and apparently he has a yard-stick that carries a certain amount of magic. Rixey will be opposed by Bill Swift, the Kansas City graduate.

CARDS HERE LABOR DAY

Only the Labor Day games with the St. Louis Cardinals remain on the home card after today. At the conclusion of today's scrap the Buccos and Reds will sally to Cincinnati, there to stage a single contest tomorrow. The Pirates will then hustle home to the farewell honors with the fading champions of the sport—the St. Louis Cardinals.

Larry French turned in another victory yesterday as the Pirates won their sixth game in a row. French was hardly any better on the slab than Red Lucas, who was even stingier with his hits than was French. Larry, however, had remarkable cleverness to show the Howleyites in two big crises. He was in a bad jam in the seventh as a result of a fluke hit by Babe Herman and his mates had him holed in the eighth, but emerged from the pits and carried on to the victory like a champion.

FRENCH IS CLEVER

Hendrick opened the seventh with a double. Herman beat out a tap and the tying run was on the sacks. Larry took Chick Hafey, great hitter, out of the picture without permitting a run and he made Ernesto Lombardi, another dangerous slugger, ground into a double play. Thevenow's error of the eighth jammed up French, but with the bases filled and two out he caused Babe Herman to ground into a double play.

Comorosky's single and Traynor's double gave the Pirates a run in the first. Suhr opened the seventh with a double, moved up

Baseball's Humorist
Says:

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Considering what they've done under his management, the Cubs should be called Grimm's Fairy Tales. It sure looks like Charley has plotted out a happy ending for them and he should fix it up so Lon Warneke can marry the princess.

Nick Altrock

I don't know how Grimm stirred up the Cubs, but my guess is as good as anybody's. When Charley took over the reins, I'd guess he said, "Boys, I don't want to borrow any dough from you, so you can keep your mind on the game and not be day-dreaming how much a 90-day I. O. U. will bring you at 6 per cent interest, when, as and if it's taken up then."

The boys probably were so pleased that Charley didn't mistake them for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, then stepped right out and sewed up the pennant.

NATIONAL NET PLAY UNDER WAY AT FOREST HILLS

VINES FAVORED TO RETAIN LAURELS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The finest international field since 1927 assembled at the West Side Club today for the opening of the national singles tennis championship.

Despite the high caliber of the opposition, Ellsworth Vines, lanky Californian, was favored to retain the title he won in such sensational fashion last year.

Standing in the way of Vines' second crown in as many years were 17 of this country's first 20 ranking players: Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard, of France; H. W. Austin and Fred Perry, of England, and Jiro Satoh and T. Kuwabara, of Japan.

Strongest of the home-breds, aside from Vines, loomed George Lott, Wilmer Allison, Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, Cliff Sutter, John Van Ryn, Lester Stoefen, Gregory Mangin, Davey Jones, Berkeley Bell and Frankie Parker, the 16-year-old Milwaukee youngster, who holds the national junior title and thrice has whipped Lott this year.

If play follows form Vines and Cochet will meet in the final round since these two favorites are seeded in opposite halves of the draw. But each faces serious competition once the preliminary rounds have been played.

Vines, Cochet and many other leaders drew first round byes and thus will see no action until tomorrow but there were several high-class matches on the opening day's program.

In one, Wood was to play Arnold W. Jones, of Providence; another pitted Bell against Elbert Lewis. Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, drew Wray D. Brown, of St. Louis as his first rival and Parker had to face the experienced Japanese, Sadakazu Onda.

ROYSTONS WIN AT HIGHLAND

J. R. Royston and J. R., Jr., with a net 67, won the annual fathers and sons tournament at the Highland Country Club yesterday. The Roystons also won low gross and low net prizes.

C. L. Foster Meyer captured second place honors, with a score of 71. H. H. and R. B. Parker, with a net 69, were second low net winners. Other scores:

R. M. and J. W. Young, 90-18—72; H. M. and W. T. Reed, 86-10—76; W. B. Sheppard and W. B., Jr., 92-18—74; Charles Wolff and Charles, Jr., 81-6—75; E. F. Geyer and E. F., Jr., 91-17—74; O. F. and R. A. Pannier, 91-18—73; B. F. and J. R. Thomas, 97-16—81; C. V. Watkins and C. V., Jr., 100-16—84; W. D. Phillips and W. O., Jr., 102-22—80; G. H. Lee and C. H., Jr., 120-30—90; M. C. McKnight and Luther Stevens, 97-20—77, and Dr. C. F. and R. J. Boucek, 98-15—83.

With her trusty mid-iron serving the purpose of a bag full of clubs, Mrs. Margaret Curry, women's city golf champion, stroked the Schenley Parks links in 89 to win the one-day tournament staged by the Woschengo Club.

Mrs. H. Masury, also using a mid-iron, was second best, with a score of 94. Mrs. S. E. Donald, with a 102-25—77, won low gross prize in the second division.

E. A. Diebold and his son, Fred, won low gross prize in the annual fathers and sons tournament at the Pittsburgh Field Club. They had a score of 81-13—68. F. A. and S. C. Johnston, with a card of 82-13—69, were second. J. C. and R. D. King captured low net honors, with a 65.

The biggest day in the history of air passenger traffic in Pittsburgh was reported today by the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, Inc. The regular westbound service, at 1:05 p. m., was to be operated in four sections, one each to Columbus, Chicago, Kansas City and Los Angeles. Another plane was due at 7:33 p. m. from New York. East-bound there was to be a plane at 3:30 p. m. and two at 5:23 p. m. to New York. In all 96 passengers were scheduled, mostly westbound.

Dates for Voters To Qualify for November Polls

Here are the dates on which residents of Allegheny County may qualify to vote for President and other offices at the November election:

September 7—Last day to be assessed for payment of poll taxes, a tax receipt being necessary to register. Receipt must be for taxes paid within two years.

October 8—Third and last registration day, also last day to pay poll taxes.

September 6 and 7—Register assessors will sit at polling places in boroughs and townships to list those who may have been omitted in house-to-house canvass.

CHILLYSAUCE

Manager Gibson's first impressions of Pitcher Hal Smith are highly favorable. Smith wanted a lot of work yesterday and he did a long chore on the practice slab while the Pirates batted.

Gibson was pleased with the bewildering sidearm delivery owned by the Kansas City rookie. Smith's extreme height adds to the general confusion. He is almost as tall as Eppa Rixey.

Tony Piet will have to make some changes in his hitting stance and swing. The Polish Mercury has poor timing on many pitchers, which doubtless accounts for his slump.

Carleton Molesworth, who plucked Piet out of the Texas League, thinks Tony will develop into one of the best second-basemen in the game, but Moley, too, says the infielder probably will have to be made over at the plate.

Manager Gibson will go along with Piet. If Joe Cronin had been given half as much consideration he would have been a star for the Buccos. Gibby is wise in the course he pursues with Tony, who is a smart boy. The smart athletes keep changing until they reach a solution of their troubles.

It is unfortunate for Howdy Groskloss that he also is a second sacker. Howdy seems to be a more natural hitter than Piet, but Tony has had much experience and besides his fast fielding he is one of the league's best base runners.

Gus Suhr fattened his batting average as Lucas toiled on the mound. Gus had a perfect day with a double, a single, and a pass. It's a relief for the Dutchman to tangle with a righthander occasionally.

Let Gus face the ordinary run of pitchers that work on all teams, aside from the Buccos, and you could make a fairly safe wager he would bat over .300.

Book Wins City League Playoff

The City League race was brought to a close last evening, when the Book team became both half winners, defeating the J. L. Thomas nine, 4 to 1, in the playoff game for the second half flag at Greenlee Field.

Lee Carroll, former Dormont mound star, twirled for the East Enders, with the veteran Abe Martin doing the winging for the Book aggregation. More than 2,000 fans saw the game. The game was a seven-inning affair.

The Dormont nine, of the City League, defeated the Crawfords, 6 to 1, on the former's field last evening.

AMATEURS WIND UP TOURNEY

Between Rounds

Willie Davies has been signed to box Eugene Huat, of France, at Toronto, Canada, one week from next Monday night. It will be their second meeting, Davies having been returned the victor in a 12-rounder two years ago.

With the exception of an opponent for Young Rudy in the eight-round semi-final, the card is complete for the Tiger Randall-Jack King show at Greenlee Field next Thursday night. Eddie Zivic boxes Al Van Gura, of Homestead, in the second bout and Petey Johns and Bobby Rowe box the opener. Johns won by a technical knockout over Rowe in the latter's first professional bout at Motor Square Garden.

Jules Beck confirms reports that he may promote boxing shows at the Moose Temple this winter in addition to acting as matchmaker at Motor Square Garden.

Johnny Datto and Charley Baxter will wind up their hard training at the Pittsburgh Lyceum tomorrow for their 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Tuesday night, the show being set back to one day later in the week than usual on account of Monday being Labor Day.

Boxing Tournament Closes Tonight

112-pound class—Matt Oznick, Emerald A. C., North Side; Leonard Patton, Patton A. C., Finleyville; Tommy Tuite, North Side A. C.

118-pound class—Al Martzo, J. L. Thomas Club; Philip Tuminelli, Terry A. C.; Pete Salak, Ukranian American League.

135-pound class—Jimmy Campbell, Patton A. C., Finleyville, Pa.; John Bacho, First Ward Independent Club; Richard Ambrose, J. L. Thomas Club, Bloomfield; Billy Moffat, North Braddock A. C.

175-pound class—Al Bandy, First Ward Independent Club; Stokey Stoken, Valley View Club; George Kostas, First Ward Independent Club, Homestead, Pa.

Agreement Reached, Hockey War Ends

MONTREAL, Que., Sep. 3.—(AP.)—The American League has returned to the organized hockey fold, thereby ending one of the bitterest controversies in the history of the game.

Frank Calder president of the National Hockey League, announced last night an agreement had been reached whereby the American League would resume its affiliation with the older circuit and once more become subject to the N. H. L.'s player draft.

At the same time, the American agreed to suspend operations in all cities where the game had been instituted by any one of the three leagues constituting organized hockey—the National, Canadian-American and International.

DON PUZZLED BY FAULTS OF BOAT

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Miss England III, Kaye Don's entry in the Harmsworth trophy race, arrived at its boat well at the end of today's first heat with its stern riding low in the water. Don said that the boat had taken considerable water during the heat, but he did not know the cause.

Gar Wood, of Detroit, defending the trophy in his Miss America X, won the first heat by about two miles. The average speed for the 35-mile heat was Miss America X, 76.014; Miss England III, 71.265.

CRAFT BAILED OUT

As the Miss England neared the boat house at the end of the race, a mechanic standing on the prow called to the operators of the speedboat towing her to rush her into the well as soon as possible. Don called for pails to bail out the craft.

Asked why the boat appeared so low, Don replied:

"We began taking water. I don't know why. I don't think we sprung a leak and I don't think we shipped all the water we took on board. How it got there I don't know. That is what we will have to find out today."

HULL INSPECTED

Commodore Greening said he believed Miss England's spark plugs had been fouled.

Soon after the Miss England was docked, chains were placed about the craft and it was hoisted from the water and an inspection of its hull begun.

PARK SLEEPER LOSES PANTS

At least that is what he thought as he awoke on a bench in West Park, near Irwin avenue. He was embarrassed when full understanding came—he was pantless, shoeless and sockless.

With a rug wrapped around the exposed portions, Deford made his way to North Side police station where he told his story. Said he:

"I didn't mind the loss of the pants or the socks or the shoes, but I had 27 cents in the pockets and I do miss that."

Ladysman Races At Saratoga Today

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The twenty-eighth running of the $40,000 Hopeful Stakes for 2-year-olds drew an entry list of eight colts and one filly at Saratoga's famous racing strip today, but the railbirds figured it strictly a two-horse race.

The issue, as they saw it, lay between W. R. Coe's Ladysman and William Woodward's Happy Gal, the year's best juvenile filly. Ladysman entered the Hopeful with a two-to-one edge over Happy Gal in three meetings this year.

Other overnight nominations for the race included H. C. Phipps' Devalera, coupled with Happy Gal, as the Trainer James Fitzsimmons entry; J. H. Loucheim's Sandy Bill; W. S. Kilmer's Sun Archer and Sun Captor; C. V. Whitney's The Darb; Leo Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, and the Quincy Stable's Repaid.

Wife of Local Boxing Referee Succumbs

Mrs. Anna Lewis, wife of Billy Lewis, local amateur boxing referee, died suddenly in the Bellevue Hospital last night.

Lewis was notified of his wife's death while officiating bouts at Beaver Falls. Arrangements for the funeral, which will be held from the family residence, 611 Russell street, North Side, will be made today.

LOCAL NETTERS DEFEATED AT MORGANTOWN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Pittsburgh racqueters entered second and third round singles competition today as the fourth annual Morgantown Country Club Invitation Tennis tourney advances into the torrid stages here on the Hillside rectangles of the Mountaineer organization.

RUSS UNGER BEATEN

The Steel City players who succeeded in breaking into the skirmishing yesterday fared rather badly. Russ Unger, rangy Mount Lebanon leader and winner of the South Park man-to-man crown a week ago, offered sizzling battle to the hard-hitting Bob Elliott, noted Baltimore contender, but succumbed, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, after a scintillant joust wherein baseline plays gained crackles of applause.

E. A. Knoche, Lebanonian mate of Unger, likewise encountered tough break in the inaugural bracket. Knoche opened brilliantly to reel off three consecutive games from Barney Welsh, Duke ace, but lapsed thereafter as the Southerner steadied to carry off a 6-3, 6-1 decision.

John Brown, third of the Lebanon delegation, also met with disaster as Price Colvin, Baltimore hope, and, with Alex Keiles, runner-up to the National Public Parks doubles title, outstayed him to the tune of 6-3, 6-2.

DARKNESS HALTS MATCH

Paul Sullivan, P. A. A. performer, was in perilous predicament with George Dudderar, local luminary, as darkness halted the milling with the Morgantowner heading the parade at 6-3, 6-6. Sullivan led at 5-2 in the second stanza and blew some half-dizen or more set points as Dudderar deuced the count.

Meanwhile, such redoubtable Pittsburghers as Dr. John O'Loughlin, Bob Lampus, Bud Leyda, Billy O'Loughlin, Frank Broida, Eddie Alcorn, Frank Smith, Andy Smeaton, Harry Wald and Jim Slocum remained idle. Lampus, Broida and Alcorn advancing by default. Bill Snee, husky Elizabethan, breezed to frame three by default of Sam Cohn, of Beckley, and 13-11, 6-2 decision over Ed Tonry, Martinsburg satellite.

Championship Swim Meet at South Park

Four championship events and eight open swimming and canoe events feature the program to be presented today by the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. in the South Park pool. Miss Lenore Kight, of the Homestead Library Club, who was a member of the United States Olympic team, will appear with the Homestead entries.

The championship events are 100-meter junior for women; 100-meter junior for men, 300-meter senior medley for men, and 800-meter senior relay fo. men.

The open events include 15-foot dive for men, 100-meter breaststroke for women, 50-meter free style for girls under 14 and 50-meter free style for boys under 14. The canoe events include canoe tilting, gunwale canoe race and bow and canoe race.

Miss Kight and Anna Mae Gorman, members of the United States Olympic team, along with several other prominent local swimming stars, will give exhibitions in the Pittsburgh Field Club pool tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Johnny Schmieler and Taylor Drysdale, National collegiate champions, also are included on the program.

Test Poll Gives Hoover Large Gains in East; May Take Penna. Lead

By COLE E. MORGAN

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—President Hoover took a long stride today in consolidating his strength in the East.

Added returns in the nation-wide Presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States definitely placed New Jersey and New York state in the Hoover column as the campaign swung into September.

The slender margin of 22 votes by which Gov. Roosevelt held New Jersey a week ago, today was turned into a 119 majority for Hoover.

HOOVER GETS BLOCK

The swing of New York and New Jersey to Hoover now gives the President as an unbroken block the eight easternmost states with a combined electoral vote of 104.

From the outset of the poll he has continuously held the six New England states.

Pennsylvania may be the next state to swing over to the Hoover column, adding another 36 votes. The last tabulation from Pennsylvania showed Hoover scoring a net gain of 28 votes and cutting the Roosevelt majority in the state to 136.

If Hoover keeps pace in Pennsylvania with the progress he has been making the last few days in New York and New Jersey, another week probably will swing that state over.

SOUTH FOR ROOSEVELT

The switch on Pennsylvania would give Hoover a solid eastern block of 166 electoral votes. West of Ohio, however, he has only the nine votes of Kansas, so that he still appears far short of the 266 necessary to elect.

While Hoover was scoring these telling gains in the East in today's tabulation, Roosevelt was piling up leads by the hundreds to add to his already impressive majorities in the cotton states of the South, where there can appear no question as to their being safely in the Roosevelt column on election day in November.

Presidential Trend by States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

CHAPTER XII.

Val hadn't seen much of Marjorie since she started work. But she knew what was going to happen. Marjorie was going to announce her engagement to Frank.

Marjorie did.

After that there were more teas. Another girl, Dora Chalanger, announced hers.

To ease her heart Val wrote about Lester to Joe. It was a glowing description of a perfectly wonderful man whom she saw very seldom but thought about a great deal.

Joe got the wrong idea, wrote her an almost congratulatory letter. She tore it into shreds, her cheeks burning miserably. Would she ever stop making believe? Would she always be a fraud?

The next day she met Lester as she was hurrying for a street car home. He held her hand longer than necessary. No mistaking his interest, and she didn't even try to hide hers.

"I'll be seeing you soon," he said. "I've had a lot of night work and some dates I couldn't get out of. Wish I had my car, I'd drive you home!"

She rode right past her corner, thinking about him. You see! He was still interested! She'd shown him! She forgot how much she had wanted to telephone.

She battled the desire to telephone again. Days slipped by. He didn't come.

BUILDS STORY

She began to build a story, like the stories she used to make up when she was a little girl. It was a story about a young man who fell into a sort of "understood engagement" with a girl whom he thought he loved. Then he met another girl . . . the other girl was Valentine, of course . . .

She wrote to Joe again: "I did not make myself clear in my first letter, and congratulations are not in order at all. There are reasons why he cannot come to me. I know in my heart just what they are. I am almost sure that he is engaged to the other girl, Joey, and I know that he is far too honorable to break it off, too honorable to come to me again, now that he realizes that we love each other. Oh, Joe, my dear, what a tragedy life can be!"

She put so much feeling into it that she thoroughly believed it when it was finished. Read it over, blistering it with a tear or two as she read.

She was just beginning to feel happy in a blighted love when Lester came back.

"Can I come over tomorrow night?" he asked.

Just like that. Casually. As if it were the most natural thing in the world.

Val was almost deliriously happy. Aunt Julia grumbled, but she baked a lemon pie and one of her famous devil's food cakes. Lester ate prodigiously, said he hadn't had such a gorgeous evening in weeks.

RIDES WITH LESTER

"You see? What a boy wants is good food. Didn't I tell you he'd enjoy it?" Aunt Julia exulted.

But there was trouble to come.

Lester had a car. He liked to go for rides. Lester's idea of a ride was to drive into a quiet spot, park and . . . well, if it had been anyone but herself and Lester, Val would have had to describe it as "pet." But with Lester's arms around her, Lester's cheek against hers . . . "Different," she told herself, "different."

There was a little road off the boulevard that wound from East Oakland up the range of hills above Redwood canyon. There, on a grassy knoll near some tall eucalyptus trees they used to park. There was a view. Valentine always pretended that they came to see the view. Lester laughed at her.

Aunt Julia began to worry again. When Val would tiptoe in late at night, hoping to find her asleep, she would be sitting straight up in bed, an old blue cape that had belonged to Val when she was a little girl, over her shoulders, a magazine open on her lap.

> ### Synopsis
>

"Val, come in. Did you have a good time?"

AUNT IS OBSERVATIVE

Her eyes, strained and a little red behind the gold-rimmed glasses, would peer at Val, slide over her neatly combed hair (Val always combed her hair as they drove up to the house) to her mussed skirt, her flaming cheeks.

There was the night she noticed Val's lip rouge smeared over her cheek in a pale scarlet smudge. She didn't say anything about it. She never admitted, even to herself, that Val had been out, like others, "necking" . . . a cheap, ugly word . . .

Instead, she launched into a long tirade against men and common girls who let men maul them, slobber all over them . . . enough to turn a body's stomach, just reading about it!

"Don't read about it, Aunt Julia!"

"Humph, that's all they write about nowadays. Every day you pick up a paper you read about it . . . 'Holdup of petting couple on lonely road' . . . Val! I wish you wouldn't go on rides at night . . ."

"I don't stop on lonely—" Val stumbled over the lie.

"I don't suppose you do. Great goodness! Niece of mine!" Aunt Julia stumbled over hers, too. "Should hope not . . . humph, hrr!"

Val hated it. Why couldn't Aunt Julia go to sleep like other people instead of sitting up, waiting, every night?

It was hard to get through the afternoons in the office. Val would find herself drowsing over the typewriter about 2 o'clock. Dreaming about Lester, neglecting her work.

VAL IS AFRAID

Two or three reprimands came to her. She realized with an unhappy start that she might lose her job. . . . She mustn't think of him any more . . at least not during office hours.

Mustn't stay out so late, either . . . didn't look right . . . Lester would think . . .

Yes, there was no doubt about it, Lester was beginning to think . . . His embraces were getting rougher, his kisses longer . . . Val was getting afraid . . . But she was afraid of offending him, too. Afraid of making herself ridiculous by showing she was afraid.

Girls in books were never afraid. Surely other girls . . . other girls had to get used to things. Oh, if only Millie were here . . . someone to talk to . . . even Marjorie . . .

Val came to talk about Lester, stayed to listen to Marjorie talk about Frank.

Why anyone would want to marry Frank was something Val couldn't understand. But at least Frank WANTED to get married. That was something. The boys she had liked never did. Lester showed her that he loved her, but he never said a thing . . . Perhaps it was because he hadn't known her long enough. Perhaps it was because she was too prudish with him, always drawing back, stiffening up, always afraid . . .

WARNINGS RENEWED

Aunt Julia, as if cognizant of what was going on in Val's mind, renewed her warnings, her tongue curled . . . cheap girls . . . common women. In the end the very men who took advantage of them despised them, and no decent woman would look at them again. She was glad Val was different, glad she had been able to give her the sort of training that would stand her in good stead now that she was older and out in the world, meeting all kinds of people.

She talked so much one night that Val, who had come home starved, could hardly swallow a bite of dinner. She wanted to fly from the table, to scream

"Did you have a good time?" asked Aunt Julia.

"Don't! You don't know what you're talking about!"

But she finished. Ate at least half of her cabinet pudding, though she never liked it, even when she was hungry. Then she rose, to go to her room to dress.

"I wouldn't, only I promised Lester—"

"I know. Lester. Always Lester. I'm getting so I don't like Lester, Val. He's in too much of a hurry to get you out of the house. He . . . he doesn't get fresh, or anything like that, Val?"

Val went over her hand-mirror, rubbing lip rouge in with her little finger.

"Of course not!"

"I wish you weren't going tonight. This night, specially. We could have gone to a movie. I haven't seen a good movie in ever so long. It isn't the same, going alone."

Pity for her aunt seized Val . . . pity for herself, having an aunt who never wanted her to do anything like other girls.

"Maybe we could all three go to the movie. Lester seems to like me—"

"We could, sometime. But tonight—"

Lester's car outside. The impatient staccato ring that was Lester's. He never wanted to come in. He wanted her to be ready. She took her hat, looked back at Aunt Julia. She wanted to stay home with Aunt Julia, she really did. She didn't really want to go out, but Lester . . . You couldn't explain things like that to him. He was used to girls who were always ready to go.

"Goodbye, Aunt Julia, dear—"

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Called to Attend Opening of Box

I laughed until tears stood in my eyes at the cartoon which Dicky had shoved beneath my door. But there was warm gratification mingled with my amusement. I read the message beneath the grotesque picture. How often Dicky had employed his gifted pencil in sending me an absurd drawing masking an apology for some exhibition of temper on his part!

I knew full well why he had shoved the message under my door at this particular juncture. With the conference that Lee Chow had summoned so imminent, there was no time for him to come to me with a spoken apology, because we surely would be interrupted by the summons. Yet he was unwilling to meet me before the others without first sending me some sort of apology for the absurd, jealous temper he had displayed because I had brought Baby Faith down for Hugh's inspection.

Feeling ridiculously like a school girl, I kissed the drawing before putting it away in my desk, and then I rushed through my shower and dressing, finishing with a little feeling of triumph over time, just before Lillian knocked at my door. There was a puzzled look of excitement upon her face, and I knew that it would have been covered by her usual indifferent mask if she were talking to anyone upon whom she wished to impress a total lack of interest in the proceedings of the day.

A STRANGE CONFERENCE

"I've told Marion to come down to that little study off the library in five minutes," she said. "That's where Lee Chow wants us. I've talked to her, and we understand each other about the box. But, my word, Madge, that sapient Chink downstairs sure is piling thriller upon thriller! I won't spoil it beforehand, however. Come down and see for yourself what's doing.

I hurried with her down the stairs, infected by her patent excitement, and stepped just inside the door of the small study off the library, feeling as if my eyeballs were distending with amazed curiosity.

Gathered around a small table, upon which rested the lock box that I recognized as Marion's, were my father, Dicky, Harry Underwood and Hugh Grantland. But they were not looking at the box. My eyes and Lillian's followed their tense, watching eyes to the figure of Lee Chow standing near another table, upon which lay a sterilizing tray holding within it two or three gleaming implements of a surgeon's profession.

The hands of the Chinese were outstretched to Katherine, who stood so near the door leading to the library that she could hear the lightest sound from within it, and by stepping back a pace could see into the room.

Remembering what she had told me of her patient's deafness, I recalled the reason for choosing this small and inconvenient room for the conference. They needed the services of a nurse—why, I had no idea—and they did not wish to bring a stranger into the conference.

READY FOR EMERGENCY

But what was Katherine doing? At first I was completely puzzled; then I saw that she had placed small torniquets at the base of every finger and thumb of Lee Chow, and larger ones around each wrist. As she finished, Harry and Dicky ranged themselves on either side of him, and the Chinese spoke with authority to Katherine.

"Remember, I shall speak but the one word, 'right' or 'left' to you, and you will hand the lancet to the man upon that side of me."

Katherine nodded, her face gravely attentive, and Lee Chow spoke to Harry and Dicky.

"If I say 'thumb' or 'one,' 'two,' 'three' or 'four' to either of you, work very quickly. My life may depend upon your speed."

"At the door," she said, opening the one behind her that led into the hall, and disclosing Marion standing just outside.

"I understand you have the key to this box and have consented to open it for me," Lee Chow said measuredly. "Will you please do so now?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today the members of the Arsenal Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club were informed that starting tomorrow rehearsals for the first annual Arsenal "Frolic" will be held.

Any boy or girl who is a member of this chapter, and who would like to take part in this performance, should report to Eddie Johns or Russell Niggl tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The members today were greeted by an old friend and a great favorite with the youngsters of the Arsenal Chapter, Betty Richards, who has been away for more than four weeks, returned and received an ovation which lasted several minutes. After thanking the members for the kind way they greeted her, she sang and danced for them and then officiated as mistress of ceremonies.

ENTERTAIN MEMBERS

With Betty on today's program was Josephine Lang, who also sang and danced.. Thomas Hart, no relation to "Bill Hart," two-gun man of the movies, told several amusing stories and Josephine Kane closed the meeting today with a very pretty acrobatic dance.

Members of the Schenley Theater enjoyed the playing of the reorganized Schenley Orchestra and the playing and singing of the "Texas Cowboys." Manager Thomas announced that starting next Saturday the stage shows which were offered for the amusement of the members last fall and winter would be resumed, now that all the youngsters have returned from vacations.

At the Manor each youngster who attended the meeting was presented with a pen and pencil school set. Those given to the boys were in the form of a baseball bat and those the girls received were in the form of a large pencil. These sets are very complete, each one containing a pen and pencil, eraser and ruler.

MANOR NEWS

Anna Haggerty and Jack McQuillan, who have been members of the Manor Chapter since the organization of the club, have moved away from the neighborhood but they both have promised to return soon for one of the regular Saturday meetings.

Sara Samillo, formerly of East Liberty, has moved into the Squirrel Hill section and joined the Manor Chapter last week.

Eleanor Turner was excited all last week and everyone who saw her noticed that she always had a great big smile. When asked "why all the excitement," she proudly answered that she had made what is known as a double in school. She jumped one complete grade, from 4-A to 5-A. Congratulations, Eleanor!

Today the members of the Manor Chapter were shown the all-talking, all-Pittsburgh motion picture which was made by Warner Brothers a couple of months ago and there was much excitement and applause when "Stinky" came on the screen, because that part was played by Milton Pinsky, one of the members of this chapter.

John Joseph Callahan, a member of the Kenyon Chapter, held a birthday party today and had as his guestst 14 fellow members of the club. Ice cream and cake with pink lemonade were the order of the day.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

A good many folks around the square were more or less intrigued, Wednesday forenoon, when an old-fashioned calliope drove around, sending out various tunes. Everybody associated a calliope with a circus, but this one was plastered with streamers proclaiming Chas. U. Becker for governor.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

I wish that hosts would sympathize
And not sneer at and ostracize
The guest who knows he's had enough,
And not insist he drink the stuff
With cries, in tone and manner lofty,
Of "Just one more—don't be a softy."
Some day I'll up and bash the gink
Who forces on me one more drink;
I know I've got enough sagacity
To realize my own capacity
And I resent the illiberality
Of such insistent hospitality.

True Statesmanship

Gov. Roosevelt's Sincerity in Dealing With the Prohibition Question Is Refreshing.

Gov. Roosevelt's speech at Seagirt was a noteworthy achievement in the field of TRUE STATESMANSHIP.

To take a theme such as prohibition, a subject of violent disagreement, passion, bigotry, contention and distortion, and to present a comprehensive resume of its salient elements, as a problem in government and public policy, omitting no material aspect, and to do this in calm and unexaggerated language with due regard for truth and an obvious determination not to overstep the facts, marks the statesman's approach to a great question and the statesman's conscience in dealing with it.

The collapse of prohibition by constitutional amendment is frankly faced. The long struggle for enforcement is seen to h[illegible] broken down. Evils greater than even intemperance ha[illegible]ing up in the wake of prohibition's failure. They [illegible]nation; they menace the social fabric; they endanger [illegible]e and security of all classes.

Gov. Roosevelt, as the spokesman of his party, proposes that THE DEMAND SHALL BE HEEDED, and the necessary CORRECTIVES APPLIED.

As one versed in our constitutional history, he sees that we departed from our landmarks in taking from the states and vesting in the federal government, a POWER OF REGULATION that could only prove effective if supported by local sentiment. Without this support, the alternative was local resistance, with the inevitable result of disrespect for all law and a sharing defiance of public authority.

"The Democratic party," says Gov. Roosevelt, "has fairly and squarely met the issue. It adopted a plank so plain and clear and honest that no one could doubt its meaning."

Citing the platform declaration of the Democrats, "We advocate the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment," the Governor properly gives correlative emphasis to his party demands that "the federal government effectively exercise its power to enable the states to protect themselves against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws."

This is SOUND DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE.

While the lamentable results of the invasion of the field of the states by the federal power are set forth in his speech with great trenchancy, he does not stop here. He believes not only that the states have the constitutional and inherent right to legislate for themselves on the subject of prohibition, but also that they should be protected in that right by the federal government; and that if a state elects to live under a system of prohibitory laws, those laws should not be vitiated by an interstate traffic in intoxicating liquor, which the federal government alone has the power to prevent.

Mr. Roosevelt would have been guilty of a serious omission from his speech if he had failed to contrast the unequivocal treatment of prohibition by the Democratic party with the distracted endeavors of the Republicans to achieve a plank that would sound dry to the drys, and wet to the wets.

With neatness and truth, the Governor observed that when it was finished, "it sounded wet to the drys and dry to the wets."

Whatever the fate of the Eighteenth Amendment is to be, we have cause to be thankful that at last sincerity has come upon the scene—sincerity of thought and expression.

"However people may differ," says Gov. Roosevelt, "as to the principle of prohibition, nation or state, they will all agree that a temporizing and insincere policy is disastrous not only to the cause of prohibition, but that to temperance as well."

With temporizing at an end, and sincerity in the saddle, the American people can settle any question—and settle its rights—even the baleful question of prohibition.

Dignity or Comfort?

Gov. Pinchot and One of the Judges Raise the Question by Their Attire.

Gov. Pinchot is leaving his coat at home during the hot weather and doing business at his office in his shirt sleeves. At least one of the judges of our local Common Pleas Court has laid aside his robes because of the heat. A committee of Berks County lawyers has asked the judges of that county to wear robes in order to give dignity to the court. It is a sad state of affairs if dignity cannot be obtained without sacrifice of comfort.

A blunder was made in closing the city's swimming pools Wednesday. It is hard to believe the city is so hard pressed for funds that it could not afford to keep the pools open for a few days more, or until the oppressive heat wave has passed. Pittsburgh does not have enough recreation facilities. Let us utilize to the utmost those that we have.

Hot weather calls for light reading, with plenty of entertaining pictures. They will be found in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The Gravure Section of tomorrow's issue will have some striking photographs of the annual rodeo recently held by the State Constabulary. Photographs of interesting babies and of local scenes of many years ago will be other features.

The County Commissioners have asked Gov. Pinchot to veto a bill authorizing the Poor Board to issue $800,000 of bonds for the relief of the destitute. The Commissioners say the bond issue would cause the county embarrassment and that they will appropriate $100,000 a month for poor relief. But there is reason to believe that such an appropriation would be inadequate.

Demands for relief are increasing and the welfare agencies are looking for a winter that will tax their resources to the utmost. Already some of the unemployed are being furnished less than a full ration. It is better that the county should experience a little financial embarrassment than that the poor should be placed on half rations and thus barely kept from starving.

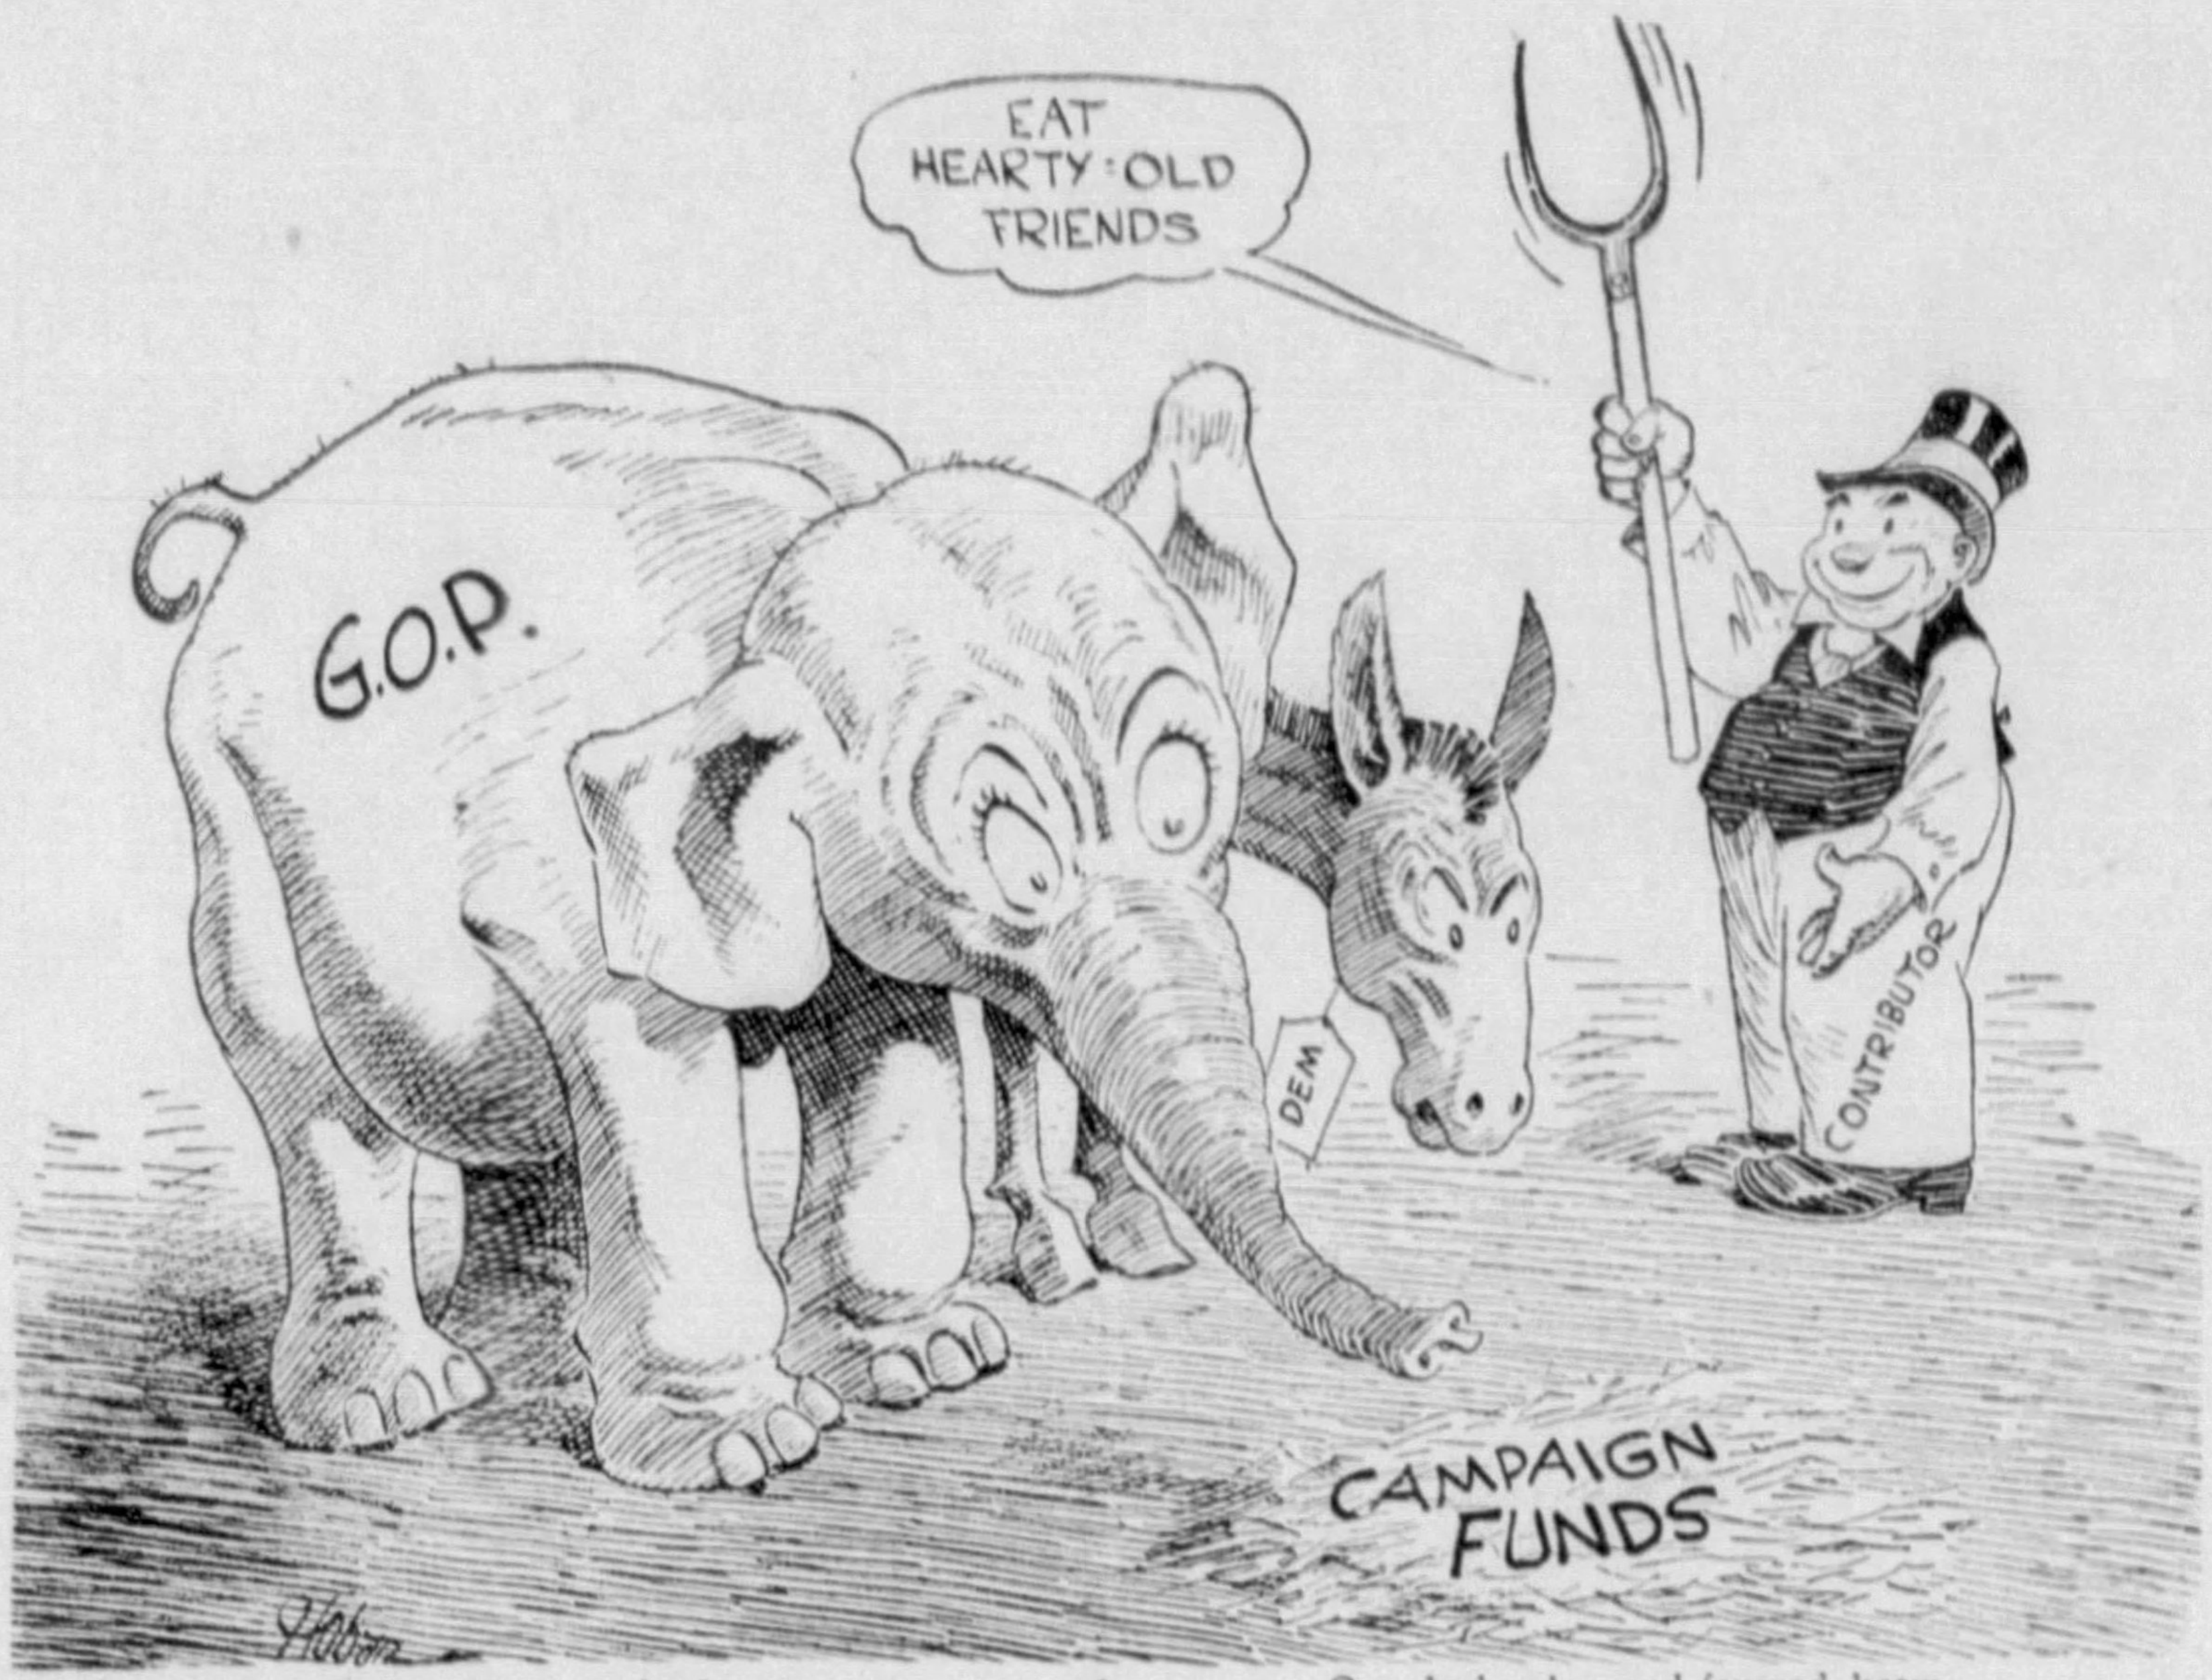
*The American Weekly, distributed as a supple*ment with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will have so many good things that every member of the family will wish to read it. The article on "'Travelers' Tales Everybody Used to Believe'" is especially interesting. The full-page painting of a beautiful girl by Henry Clive will attract much attention.

Taking a Cut

(Copyright, 1932.)



The Donkey and the Pachyderm,
Two hungry institutions,
Were running for a White House term
On scanty contributions.
"It seems," they said in accents firm,
"That we are Lilliputians."

One had a dry and fevered brow
And one was sad and beerful,
For cruel fate had cut their chow
Down to a mouse's earful.
"We're standing in the hay-line now,"
They spoke in accents tearful.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

My Credo of Love and Marriage

I BELIEVE—

* * *

That marriage will survive all the attacks made upon it by free-thinkers, youthful cynics, love cults and pseudo-modern "philosophers." And will still be going strong when Freud and Reno are only memories.

* * *

That, while it may change outwardly, it will always be intrinsically the same old mating. There is an ocean of significance in that assurance of permanence—that "till - death - do - us-part" feeling; that old "forever and forever" idea, whatever the scoffers may say.

* * *

That there are just as many devoted wives, faithful husbands and happily-married people in the world today as there ever were, in spite of all the front-page scandals.

I WANT YOU TO BE THE MOST SUCCESSFUL MAN IN TOWN

That it is a woman's love and ambition for "her man" and man's love and tenderness for "his woman" which make the world go 'round and keep it swinging among the stars.

* * *

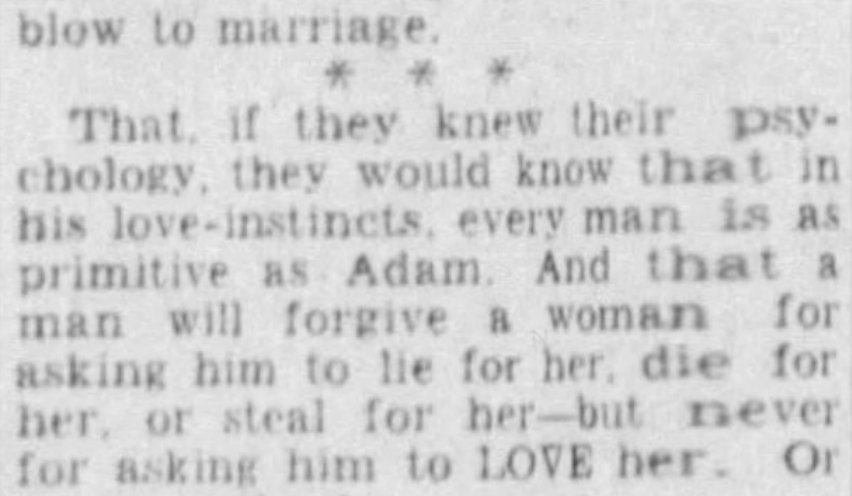
That the married woman who pins the laurels on her Man is happier than the lonely celebrity, who chooses a career in preference to marriage and wins the laurels for herSELF.

* * *

That these "modernists" who cheer girls on to the open pursuit of the elusive male and frankly encourage women to do the wooing and the pursuing are spoiling the love-game, making men insufferable, making spinsters plentiful and dealing a solar-plexus blow to marriage.

* * *

That, if they knew their psychology, they would know that in his love-instincts, every man is as primitive as Adam. And that a man will forgive a woman for asking him to lie for her, die for her, or steal for her—but never for asking him to LOVE her. Or to marry her!



That there is no such thing as a "modern man," when it comes to love. Every man has high moral and conventional standards for his own woman—or the woman he wants to "own."

* * *

That semi-nudism on the beach and in the drawing room has dulled men's interest in woman. And that it was Adam, not Eve, who invented clothes and made the first girl wear skirts.

* * *

That there are 57 varieties of modern marriage; but there is no question of degree in matrimony. You can be just a little bit in love—but you can't be just a little bit married or a little bit dead.

* * *

That the new 50-50 marriage will some day be a glittering success. Because it will be a partnership and a democracy—not a graft or a monarchy.

* * *

I trust that the foregoing "honest confession" will soothe the feelings of those who think me a modern cynic—and not rouse the scorn of those who think me a "horse-hair sofa."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Well, Herb Roth finally got me out in a canoe. Over the bounding waves. And I'll swap three bounds for a rocking chair on the back porch. So far, all I've done is sit here, stiff as an 1890 collar, trying to look as though I'm not scared simple.

I don't know whether I'm sitting fore or aft. I suppose it will be like me to take on an attack of hiccups. Hiccuping, in one of these frail hooduses, is like smoking stogies in a powder factory. One big hiccup and you are floundering around, hanging and shrieking for help.

A fortune teller told me I would drown anyway. Maybe this is the day. I wish it could be put off awhile. I want to help the government all I can with my income taxes.

At best, canoeing is just canoeing. If I never canoe again, I have had more than my share. But I'll be nonchalant. Let one hand trail in the water. That's no good. Something like an eel might take hold. Headline: "Eel Bites Heel." One thing about these mosquitoes, they sing at their work.

It would be a joke if this thing drifted out to sea. Two men in a boat! Like anything it would be a joke. Herb is looking around as though he doesn't know where to go. I could give him an idea. If it was my boat I'd head for that clump of trees.

Clump, clump, clump, the canoe is coming. I'm a little lightheaded and I don't care for that look in his eyes. Maybe, he's suddenly sun struck. The sun is pretty strong, at that. He wants to know if I care to paddle. Who, me? No, I'll just sit here, sweetheart, and dream.

* * *

What's the fool up to now? He's going to take the waves of an Albany side-wheeler. Now, isn't that ducky? Ducky is the very word. He isn't satisfied just to canoe. He must fancy it up, and have us bobbing around like a cork in a typhoon. Flotsam and jetsam, that's what we are. I'll call him Flot for short. They are waving from the side-wheeler. I'd wave back but I'm not feeling any too spry. Anyway, to wave I'd have to let go a side of the boat.

* * *

Someone on board yells, "Yoo, hoo!" It's Roth's pink sweater. I certainly don't look like a target for yoo-hoos. Take a glance at my broad shoulders. And look right through here—the thick jowls, firm neck. I'll yell, "Ahoy!" It sounds like a squeaking "Eee-ee!" That's because I'm a trifle upset, and, if we don't hit that wave right, we will be all the way upset. I couldn't sit home minding my business. No. Somebody must come along and drag me out here in the middle of the river to see how I take waves.

* * *

I can go to the store as well as the next fellow. Or I am pretty fair at sitting on a park bench, but as a wave-taker, I don't amount to shucks. Roth is grinning at me. All right, you baboon. But if this boat turns over and I get a lock hold around your neck, you sink with me. See what the boys in Davy Jones's locker will have. Maybe I'm getting out of my head. He took that itty-bitty wave all right at that. Maybe I'm just getting fussed up, as usual, about nothing. O, I am, am I? Well, that wave was a lollapaloosa and I think it will be over soon. Watch for the bubbles.

* * *

Here comes the biggest of all! It's 15 feet high! Well, two, anyway, and he is taking it wrongside foremost or something. Switch the skiff around there, idiot. I believe he has lost his paddle. Right plunk in the middle of the biggest wave of the day—likely the biggest of the week—and zip goes his paddle. No, he's holding it above his head. He's even laughing. Afloat with a maniac. She's going over. I'll probably come up just at the right spot to catch my head in the side-wheel. Now, she's righted. Saved. All is well. He's still laughing and saying it's fun. I say it's brocolli, and to the bad place with it.

* * *

He asks if I'm frightened. What a fool question. Did anyone hear me holler? There is a touch of the Viking in all the McIntyres. Except Uncle Abner, he's more of a Norseman. Just old water dogs. Drop around to Niagara next week, if I get caught up in my work I may go over the falls in a barrel, standing on one foot.

That old axiom—"Hitch your wagon to a star"—I'll wager it has been responsible for more Inferiority Complexes than anything else on earth.

Nor are the downright failures the most pitiful specimens. It's the ones who get a foothold—and never get anything more—that suffer the keenest anguish. For they won't go back and they can't go forward—and they spend their lives in a misery of maladjustment.

NOTHING CAN MANGLE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE WORSE ... OR SUBJECT YOU TO MORE FAILURE OR HUMILIATION ... THAN TO TACKLE A JOB FOR WHICH YOU ARE NOT AND NEVER CAN BE FITTED.

Yet, yearly, thousands of graduates from business colleges and universities surge into just such jobs.

They're bright young people. They have a smattering of knowledge . . . a smear of cleverness. They've acquired some professional patter and an inkling of technique. And their ambition is only equaled by their self-confidence.

They want to be famous. Then why shouldn't they be famous? Other people have made good. Why can't they?

THE SIMPLE ANSWER IS THAT THEY HAVEN'T THE MAKINGS.

AND, NO MATTER HOW WILLING YOU ARE, OR HOW HARD YOU WORK, YOU CANNOT SUCCEED IN THE STARRY ARTS UNLESS YOU ALSO HAVE THE MYSTERIOUS WHEREWITHAL WITHIN YOUR OWN SPIRIT.

But no one has given them this answer. Instead, they have been encouraged to believe that they can do whatever they wish to do—if they'll hit the line hard enough and long enough.

So these ambitious young people turn from the "mediocre" tasks for which they are fitted and in which they might succeed and proceed to crash the heights.

Then what happens? They get a look in. Some small job which puts them within the magic circle. And there they stick. They haven't the talent to go ahead. Nor, as a matter of fact, have they any conception what "going ahead" means.

THEY ARE NOT ACTUALLY IN LOVE WITH ACHIEVEMENT PER SE. THEY ARE IN LOVE WITH THE GLAMOUR WHICH SURROUNDS ACHIEVEMENT. THEIR SOULS ARE NOT HUNGRY. THEIR IMAGINATIONS ARE AFLAME AND THEIR EGOTISM IS ITCHING—WHICH IS QUITE A DIFFERENT MATTER. AND SO THEY HAVE NO CONCEPTION OF THE REAL DIFFICULTIES OR REWARDS OF THAT ART THEY SEEK TO ENTER.

But of these things they are ignorant. Nor do they seek wisdom. They only seek a thrill—

But instead they find disappointment and humiliation. They are given tasks beyond their capacity. They are constantly forced into competition with people whose record makes their own look like a plugged nickel. And so, they are secretly haunted by a growing sense of frustration and failure. Whereas, had they chosen a career suited to their ability, they could have known the pride and surety of success.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you cannot be relied upon to keep appointments or attend to the duties allotted to you, you don't amount to much.

You may be an expert in your line.

You may turn out work of a superior kind but that does not make up for your failure to do it at the time it is expected of you.

One person who fails to come to time with his or her share of the work puts everything throughout the place a cog or two behind schedule.

Roosevelt Attacks G. O. P. For Double Dealing on Wet Issue

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

GOV. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, in his lucid address at Seagirt, N. J., enlarged his nationwide reputation as an adroit political debater.

With a keen sense of humor and a distinctly human touch, the Democratic nominee made the most of the G. O. P. effort to carry water on both shoulders on the wet-and-dry issue.

Although temperance was the theme of the speech, Mr. Roosevelt also used it as a text for disclosing the ambiguity, the tardiness, and the lack of courage in the thinking of the present incumbent in the presidency.

Mr. Roosevelt used the prohibition issue to illustrate the failure of Republican leadership, saying with the utmost sincerity:

"However people may differ as to the principle of prohibition, national or state, they all will agree that a temporizing and insincere policy is disastrous not only to the cause of prohibition, but to that of temperance as well. The present leadership stands convicted of attempting to evade and confuse this issue. The honest dry will, I know, honor more the honest wet than the shifty dry; and the anti-prohibitionist prefers, I know, the four-square dry to the uncertain wet. All will join in condemning a fearful and timid practice of evasion.

"Here as before I emphasize that the deep question in this campaign is one of confidence in leadership—in leaders. The measure of the truth of what they say is what they have said; the measure of what they will do is what they have done."

THE belated recognition by President Hoover, now that wet sentiment is growing, of the evils of prohibition was characterized by Gov. Roosevelt as "an amazing piece of hindsight."

Likewise, President Hoover's recent analyses of the economic situation constitute "amazing hindsight." When foresight was needed early in the depression, the President was glibly announcing that business was basically sound, and in March, 1930, that the worst of unemployment would be over in 60 days.

Since the main requirement for the presidency at this crucial time is COMPETENCE, the electorate would do well to favor Mr. Roosevelt, who saw events clearly as they were happening, rather than Mr. Hoover, who erred so frequently in his diagnoses and forecasts.

Mr. Roosevelt linked up prohibition with the economic problem, saying:

"Unquestionably our tax burden would not be so heavy nor the forms that it takes so objectionable if some reasonable proportion of the uncounted millions now paid to those whose business has been reared upon this stupendous blunder could be made available for the expenses of government."

IT is to be hoped that the lame duck Congress which meets in December will no longer hesitate to execute the will of the people for a new system, which will promote true temperance, instead of bootleg rule.

While waiting for the tedious process of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, Congress could, as Gov. Roosevelt has advocated, legalize light wines and beer through modification of the Volstead act.

Such a move, besides easing the tax burden, would also give a psychological stimulus which would quicken the developments slowly making for economic recovery.

Self-Righteous

By Winifred Black

She is a hypocrite. She says things she never even thought of meaning.

She is vain—so vain that she spends hours and hours matching the color of her eyes and choosing hats that make her look young and gay.

She's crazy about men; not that she really cares anything for any particular man, but she just can't live unless she can show the world that men admire her.

If she saw a man she liked, and he happened to be her own sister's sweetheart or her own sister's husband, she would work and plan and intrigue until she got him away from her sister.

She is a thief. No, she doesn't steal much except reputations and other people's happiness, but she would steal jewels, fur coats and money if she wasn't afraid somebody would catch her.

She is a murderer—in the same way. There are three or four people right now that she would love to poison, or shoot, or stab, and the only reason she doesn't do any of these things to these particular people, or to somebody else, who is lucky enough not to be anywhere near her just now, is because she doesn't want to climb the steps that lead to the gallows.

She's fond of children—as long as they are pretty and amusing and don't make any trouble for her.

She hates her mother. She thinks her mother is silly, stupid and rather ugly. And why should she pretend to be fond of her?

And she's proud of every one of these traits of hers. She pretends to be ashamed of them, but she isn't. If she were really ashamed, she wouldn't keep talking about it, would she?

I know a man who talks the same way. No, he isn't a preacher or the leader of a revival; he's just a plain man. But he likes to make himself believe that there is no right and no wrong in this world, no good and no evil—everything is all just the same.

"We're all thieves," he said to me the other day, "every one of us."

And what do you think I said, myself?

I said, "Well, you may be a thief, but I am not; and I wouldn't kill anybody, for anything on earth; and I am not jealous of other people's happiness, so I guess I am a great failure in your eyes.

"I'm silly, and stupid, and I make an awful lot of mistakes, but I'm not a thief, and I don't thank you for calling me one."

"Ah-ha," said the woman.

"You are just self-righteous," they both said in a triumphal chorus.

Dear me! I wonder if I really am?
